Clause Hinders Suit

CHICAGO — A labor union seniority contract clause may prevent the Chicago Board of Education from heading off a threatened Justice Department suit to alter teacher assignment policies which the government claims discriminates against ghetto children. The board is currently under attack from the department for furthering racial discrimination by assigning the least experienced teachers to ghetto schools.

Tries To Free POWs

PARIS — American pacifist David Delinger said yesterday he has met with a high-ranking North Vietnamese official on arrangements for the release of three U.S. prisoners of war Hanoi has promised to free. He said he hoped the men could be freed sometime next week.

The North Vietnamese announced last week they would release three Americans as a good will gesture to mark the anniversary of American independence on July 4.

Nixon Orders Cutback

WASHINGTON—President Nixon has ordered a cutback of 20,000 U.S. military personnel and civilian employees abroad to save money and help in "reducing the American presence overseas," the White House announced yesterday.

There was no indication where the 14,900 servicemen would come from. The White House said troop reductions in Vietnam, of which 25,000 already have been ordered, will be considered separately.

'Scott Must OK Bill'

CHICAGO—Atty. Gen. William J. Scott said yesterday that Lt. Gov. Paul Simon must certify legislative approval of the $2 billion highway bond issue even if Simon thinks it was passed by the state Senate illegally.

Simon said he balked at the certification because he thought the bond issue bill violates state law by not carrying an estimate of the total cost. Scott said Simon, "as presiding officer of the Senate, cannot thwart the will of the legislature by refusing to execute his ministerial function."

Cities' Tax Share Up

SPRINGFIELD—Gov. Richard Ogilvie yesterday signed into law bills which allow cities and counties a greater share of the sales tax to aid them with their financial problems.

Under the new distribution breakdown, the cities would get a full 1 cent of the 5-cent sales tax and the state the remaining 4 cents. Also approved by the governor was a measure requiring a supervisor of assessments in all counties except Cook and St. Clair, which already have similar systems.

Found in Waterway

ELGIN—The bound and weighted body of a man identified as Lucas Garcia, 44, was found yesterday at the bottom of a waterway running beneath a foundry where he had been employed.

Garcia had been missing since June 27, when his vacation was scheduled to start. Police said investigation into Garcia's disappearance revealed that 13 residents of the Elgin area had entered this country illegally from Mexico.

Boost for Brainpower

MADISON—Assemblyman Herbert J. Grover of Shawano, Wis., yesterday introduced a bill that would require all candidates for the state Senate and Assembly to take intelligence tests.

Results of the tests, with questions on U.S. history, state government and politics, would be made available to the voters prior to the primary elections. "This would give the people more criteria on which to evaluate the candidates," Grover, a teacher.

ROLLS UPON rolls of toilet tissue added a bit of local color to the John Griffen residence in Mount Prospect yesterday morning. A group of high school graduates, who are friends of the Griffens, added the front yard decorations all in the spirit of good, clean fun. In return, the Griffens invited the teenagers to their home for a barbeque and the clean-up detail.

A GROUP OF high school graduates paid tribute to some empty beer cans by erecting this monument, complete with an authentic granite headstone dated 1855, on the lawn of the John Griffen residence in Mount Prospect.

The Griffens had a good laugh over the incident and invited the pranksters, who are really their neighborhood friends, over for a barbeque and clean-up detail.

Board Will Get Letter

Because of last night's session of the Arlington Heights Plan Commission the Arlington Heights Village Board is going to receive a letter.

William Hennum, plan commission chairman will send a letter to the board expressing deep concern with the possible problem if a zoning variation is granted by the zoning board of appeals to the proposed car wash adjacent to the Marathon gas station at Palatine and Arlington Heights roads.

Commissioner James Ryan admitted that the commission had no jurisdiction over the car wash.

In other action the commission approved individual units of the Chantelaine and the North Gate subdivisions.

Though on the agenda, representatives the Lancer Park and the Three Lakes sub-divisions did not appear. They will be heard at a later date.

2 More File For Con-Con

Two more candidates — a Palatine man and an Arlington Heights woman — have filed nominating petitions for Third Senatorial District delegate seats at the Illinois Constitutional Convention.

Winn C. Davidson of Palatine and Mrs. Madeline Schroeder of Arlington Heights became the 13th and 14th candidates from this district when they filed nominating petitions with the secretary of state's office yesterday.

Filing deadline is Friday.

OTHER THIRD District candidates are Eugene L. Griffin, Arlington Heights; Thomas J. Johnson, Jr., Barrington; Virginia B. Macdonald, Arlington Heights; William R. Engelhardt, Inverness; Lester A. Bonaguro, Prospect Heights; John G. Woods, Arlington Heights; Wilfred L. Robbins, Mount Prospect; Robert A. Bush, Mount Prospect; Annis F. Bush, Mount Prospect; Mary J. Carlson, Prospect Heights; and Douglas Roy Cannon, Mount Prospect.

Davidson, 31, is assistant vice president at the First National Bank of Des Plaines. He is a member of the Des Plaines Kiwanis and the Des Plaines Elks. He and his wife have five children and live at 649 N. Clark in Palatine.

Mrs. Schroeder has been a member of the League of Women Voters (LWV) since 1954 and was president of the Arlington Heights chapter from 1961 to 1963. She also was Con-Con chairman for the local league.

SHE ALSO served on the board of directors of the Cook County LWV for three years and has contributed articles to several publications on government.

Mrs. Schroeder was honored by the Union League Club of Chicago as one of the civic leaders most responsible for the November Victory on the call for the constitutional convention.

Mrs. Schroeder and her husband, George, live at 1923 N. Chestnut Ave. in Arlington Heights. They have two children.

The Con-Con primary election is Sept. 23, at which time four candidates from each of the state's senatorial districts will be slated for the Nov. 18 election. Two delegates will represent each district when the convention opens Dec. 8 in Springfield.

Bond Sale Time Is Decided

Arlington Heights Park Board members decided Tuesday night that now is the time to sell $1.5 million in park development bonds.

The bonds are the second part of the $2.5 million park development referendum approved by voters last summer.

Park Atty. Charles Bobinette was authorized to advertise for bids on the bonds. He will also issue a brochure to be mailed to about 200 financial institutions who might be interested in buying the bonds.

Bobinette was more optimistic about finding a bond buyer than the board members. The members had checked with persons they knew and generally got pessimistic responses.

SOURCES HAD TOLD Bobinette that the board should advertise for bids and it would probably get some response.

The bids will be opened between July 31 and Aug. 12, depending on how soon Bobinette can get the notices of the sale published. According to law, the notices must be published ten days before the bids are opened.

Board members agreed to call a special meeting July 31 if the attorney could arrange to have the bids ready by that time.

In other action, board members approved a use agreement with the First Methodist Church of Arlington Heights. The church offered free use of undeveloped land south of the church at 1903 E.

Euclid St. The district would mainly hold the land as open space and plan to put about $4,000 of grading and seeding work into it.

MONEY SPENT ON playground equipment and backstops for the site could be salvaged by removing the equipment if the lease agreement were terminated.

The agreement guarantees park district use of the land until November of 1971. It also contains an automatic annual renewal clause after the two years. The agreement may be cancelled by either board after the two years if six months notice is given before the cancellation takes effect.

The agreement is scheduled to be approved by the church's governing board on Sunday.

Board members also decided to adjourn Tuesday's meeting until next Monday night to discuss investment procedures. The treasurer's report showed excess funds available for investment, but he was not ready to make a recommendation on how much of the money would be needed to cover operating expenses.

EDWARD URBANSKI, the newly hired treasurer for the park district, said he was unable to consider the matter in so short a time.

Pres. Charles Cronin polled the board members to find out if the board should take up the matter of investing the money by holding another meeting next week or by waiting until their next regular meeting on July 28. Thomas McShane, Edward Condon and E. E. Ormsbee said they "didn't care."

HOWEVER, BOARD member Roy Bressler said, "If we can pick up some extra money for the taxpayers, I'm willing to spend 45 minutes here."

Boy, 9, Dies Despite Aid From Friend

A 9-year-old Arlington Heights boy died after he fell into a ditch containing at least 15 feet of water at an apartment construction site at Thomas and Rand Roads in Arlington Heights.

Mark Allen Johnson, son of Dr. and Mrs. L. A. Johnson of 1728 Wilshire, Arlington Heights, apparently drowned despite efforts by a 10-year-old boy and the rescuer's father to revive him.

Johnson, who was playing with several friends around the ditch, fell into the water as he approached the edge of the bank in an attempt to see how deep the water was, police said.

One of his playmates dived into the water in an attempt to save the youngster. The boy said he held Johnson out of the water for a minute but lost his footing and released Johnson.

The boy swam out of the ditch and ran home to tell his parents. His mother called the police while the father went back to the scene and tried to locate the youth.

Officers Preston Haig and Bud Bischoff both dove into the water when they reached the scene and pulled the body out. They said they found the boy on a small ledge approximately 10 feet under the water.

Police said the boy was in the water about 15 minutes before the body was retrieved. Police and firemen were unable to revive the boy and he was pronounced dead by Dr. Edward Paulissian, a physician at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

The man-made ditch is located on Thomas, east of Rand Road and is about 450 feet long running between Hersey High School and the Candlewood Trace apartment complex. The body was taken to Haire Funeral Home in Arlington Heights.

The construction site was unfenced. Police Capt. Jack Aldrich said that from all indications, the apparent drowning was accidental.

Tuesday night — right around the house and through the bushes and trees with thousands of feet of pastel-colored toilet tissue blowing gently in the breeze.

But the decorating was all done in the spirit of good, clean fun.

A band of neighborhood students, who call themselves "The Mungers," combined a colorful imagination with a sense of humor and a little bit of the devil that dances in the young.

THEY WRAPPED ROLLS of yellow, green, blue, and pink toilet tissue around the house and through the branches of the bushes and trees. "The Mungers" left the Griffens another surprise: a grave made of beer cans with an authentic granite headstone dating back to 1855.

But the Griffens had the last laugh and the final word. The students, friends of the Griffens and their high school daughters, meet at 101 S. I-Oka for a barbeque and clean-up party last night.

"We know all the kids in the toilet-paper troop. As a matter of fact, they called us at 1:30 Wednesday morning to make sure we didn't miss the decorations," explained Mrs. Griffen.

"My husband and I had a good laugh out of the whole incident. We decided that as long as the house was decorated for a party we'd invite the kids back for hot dogs and hamburgers and the clean-up detail."

THE GRIFFENS LIVE at the corner of I-Oka and Busse Road, which is well traveled by businessmen enroute to the train station in the morning. "So many people stopped to see the house that they created a traffic jam on Busse. Everybody chuckled at the sight of the toilet paper, and some people stopped to ask if we were having a wedding or a baby shower at the house."

"I guess some adults would be mad if a group of kids did the same to their homes, but we don't think that they did anything wrong. There wasn't any damage and no harm done."

"TRUTHFULLY MY husband and I thought the house looked pretty good, as if we were celebrating May Day. The trees looked like maypoles and the colored toilet paper was blowing in the breeze."

"These kids are just bored because the weather has been so bad. It's been a dull summer, and I don't blame them for trying to create their own excitement. I maybe the kids will leave for college a hope the weather gets warmer, soon or little earlier this year."

Johnston Wins Endorsement

It's one for Alan Johnston and zero for 11 other Republican candidates seeking the 13th Congressional District seat.

State Rep. Johnston of Kenilworth in New Trier township received the first — and maybe most important — township endorsement last night in Winnetka.

The New Trier Township GOP gave Johnston the nod on the first ballot easily defeating his closest competitor, Brian Duff, 111 to 34. Candidates needed 109 of 198 votes cast.

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights, the only candidate from the western four township received no votes.

Other totals were: Joseph Mathewson, 19; Gerald Marks, 17; David Roe, 6; Yale Roe, 4; Samuel Young, 4; Philip Crane, 3; John Nimrod, Alban Weber, Lar Daly, and Schlickman received no votes.

A New Trier endorsement was made early in the campaign in an attempt to thin out the pack. Candidates have until Friday to withdraw from the race and there was speculation that there may be some withdrawals following last night's endorsement.

Six of the candidates are from New Trier Township and since only one could get the endorsement of his own township it's unlikely that the others can count on endorsements from the district's seven other townships.

St. Alexius Expansion Recommended

by TOM JACHIMIEC

A recently completed master plan recommends that St. Alexius Hospital in Elk Grove Village expand its facilities to include a seventh and eighth floor at the present building and an additional wing. The plan, completed at a cost of $17,000 by Herman Smith Associates, a hospital consulting firm headquartered in Chicago, recommends that St. Alexius provide room for 800 beds by 1979.

The hospital currently has about 275 beds in its three-year-old building at 800 W. Biesterfeld Road. More than 700 persons are currently employed there.

Addition of the two additional floors is recommended to begin in the fall. They would cost $4.8 million, more than half of the cost to build the $7 million hospital.

The new wing recommended would cost from $12 to $15 million.

The report on long-range needs for the hospital reflects the large population increases that are expected with the continued development of the Northwest suburbs.

Large increases in population are expected to be throughout the area with Schaumburg's population projected at 200,000 in ten years and Elk Grove Village at almost 60,000.

It was on the basis of this population increase in the next ten years that the study was made. The study took eight months to complete.

"The population projections demand that we do something," said Brother Ferdinand Leyva, C.F.A., administrator for the hospital.

At the time the study was proposed, Brother Ferdinand said it would take into consideration the fact that St. Alexius is interested in seeing that all the health care needs of area residents are fulfilled.

Brother Ferdinand cautioned that the report or master plan consists of recommendations of what is needed and is not in itself a pronouncement of what will be done.

He called it a "guideline" for expansion. He added, however, that the hospital will probably abide by the recommendations made in the master plan.

Brother Ferdinand said the hospital's board is studying the plan and that he is in the process of appointing a committee to study ways in which it could be implemented.

He could not say in what phases expansion would take place. He added that a news release would be forthcoming next week.

St. Alexius Hospital opened its doors to patients in June, 1966, following two years of construction. It is operated by the Alexian Brothers who have operated for more than 100 years, Alexian Brothers Hospital, 1200 W. Belden, Chicago.

Closed Circuit TV in Library

by JOAN KLUSMANN

Five small television monitors are now in place at the front desk of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library. The closed circuit television equipment, authorized by trustees in January, was installed last week on a three-month trial basis.

Authorization for the equipment came after several months of discussion and reports from librarians on noise and discipline problems in the building.

The monitors allow staff members to observe activities in the lower lobby and in the back of the adult section of the main library, obscured by book stacks from the main desk.

STAFF MEMBERS, pleased with the equipment themselves, reported mixed reactions from patrons. "As installation of the equipment came at a relatively quiet time during summer vacation, some patrons do not understand what it is like here when school is open," one librarian explained.

Students are trying hard to watch themselves and each other on the small sets.

Trustees hope that staff member time and effort spent on discipline will be reduced through use of the equipment and that librarians will no longer need to patrol problem sections of the building.

Trustee Richard Frisbie, opposed to the plan, said last fall that students should be encouraged to visit the library and the use of television could be interpreted as lack of trust. Other board members said they saw no difference between the actual presence of a staff member in an area and a set which enabled the librarian to watch student activities.

FINAL DECISION on the equipment will be made following an analysis of the results of the experimental period.

In another attempt to cope with the discipline problem, the library banned smoking in the building in May. Librarians reported to trustees following the "no smoking" edict that the atmosphere in the building was considerably more peaceful.

Also in use now are special elevator control cards which will be issued to adults and persons under 18 years of age presenting a written statement from parents stating an appropriate need. Trustees approved the purchase of the cards last October in an effort to cut down on student misuse of the elevator but technical difficulties postponed installation.

A deposit of $2 will be required for each card and an automatic refund will be given to the owner upon return of the card in usable condition. The card is required to operate the library elevator.

Sign Averts A Disaster

A red traffic light and a "No Parking" sign helped avert a disaster yesterday in front of the Arlington Heights Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Road.

A large truck parked near Bowen Hardware on Arlington Heights Road south of the tracks broke loose from its emergency brake and began rolling south on heavily-traveled Arlington Heights Road.

As horrified village employees watched, the truck rolled up on the sidewalk in front of the municipal building, bending the "No Parking" sign.

THE TRUCK then rolled to a stop across Sigwalt Street, Ralph Green, a Bensenville resident, who was waiting to appear in court, raced from the Municipal Building and jumped into the cab of the truck and stopped it from rolling backwards.

The driver of the truck, William P. Dragunas, 51, of 1426 44th Street in Stone Park, had left the truck with the motor running and the emergency brake on. He was charged with damage to public property and leaving an unattended motor vehicle.

The personnel in the village clerk's office, closest to the scene, remarked that the sign prevented the truck hitting the building. They also observed that, by chance, no cars were traveling northbound on Arlington Heights Road at the time.

To View School Budget

The 1969-1970 school year budget for school Dist. 25, now set at $6,800,000, will be discussed by the board of education tonight.

The 50-page tentative budget will then be on file at the district administration building in Arlington Heights so interested residents may read the details of projected income and expenses.

Reports presented to the board include documents from the personnel, special education and instruction departments explaining significant changes in program and budget allocations.

Board members will also adopt additional textbooks and set book fees for next year.

In other action, the board will consider the adoption of a pilot program conducted at Miner Junior High School last spring.

The school gymnasium, kept open on Sundays during March for the use of students and their families, attracted about 100 children each week. The program may be expanded in September.

Advertising Is Questioned

The question of whether advertising should be permitted on government property was brought up Monday when a reading rack of literature sponsored by a local church was spotted in the Arlington Heights Post Office.

Post Office officials from the regional center in Chicago told the Herald that the matter is up to the individual postmaster.

Mrs. Virginia Dodge, Arlington Heights postmaster, told the Herald political literature of any kind is "definitely not permitted" at any time, but she felt if the advertising or literature is of "benefit to everyone" she sees no reason why it should not be displayed in the post office.

SHE ADDED THAT she had no other requests from other local organizations to place literature in the post office, but if there was a flood of requests, "of course, all of this would have to be eliminated."

Mrs. Dodge said they have been advertising community projects such as concerts and plays for "quite some time."

When asked if any group should be permitted to advertise in a post office, officials from Chicago said the local officials would have to decide that, "even if the literature was from SDS or the Birch Society."

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights, a Republican candidate for the 13th Congressional District seat, spent yesterday and part of today in Washington in a series of briefing sessions with Nixon administration spokesmen.

Schlickman visited with Sen. Everett Dirksen R-Ill., in his office yesterday morning and then had a lengthy session with Army Col. Harold Terrell, of the Safeguard Systems Office, who explained the President's viewpoint on the Anti-Ballistic Missile system (ABM).

The meeting was in the office of Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., one of the opponents of the ABM proposal. Schlickman said Percy's staff members were preparing an anti-ABM news release at the time Schlickman was meeting with the ABM spokesmen.

SCHLICKMAN ALSO met with Percy, who pledged his support to those legislators in Illinois who voted in favor of the income tax.

Schlickman's final visit yesterday was with U.S. Rep. John Erlenborn, R-Wheaton and other former state representatives who have gone to Congress.

"I was encouraged by their comments that their service in the Illinois House has aided them substantially in their roles as members of the U.S. Congress," Schlickman said.

Schlickman plans to leave Washington tonight.

Building Permits Are Up

Building permits issued during June by the Arlington Heights' building department exceeded last year's June valuation by almost $1 million.

However, the upward trend in building permits for the first six months of 1969 is only valued at $100,000 ahead of last year's total.

According to the building department's monthly report, 143 permits were issued last month. Last year the June total was 78.

THE LARGEST INCREASE was shown in the area of single family residences. During June, 97 permits were issued at an approximate valuation of $31,000 each. Last year, only 44 permits were issued for about the same average value.

A decrease of $750,000 was shown in the area of permits issued for multi-family residence. Four permits were issued in this area last year while none were issued during June this year.

Two permits for industrial buildings valued at $852,000 were issued this year while none were issued during June last year.

Clause Hinders Suit

CHICAGO — A labor union seniority contract clause may prevent the Chicago Board of Education from heading off a threatened Justice Department suit to alter teacher assignment policies which the government claims discriminates against ghetto children. The board is currently under attack from the department for furthering racial discrimination by assigning the least experienced teachers to ghetto schools.

Tries To Free POWs

PARIS — American pacifist David Delinger said yesterday he has met with a high-ranking North Vietnamese official on arrangements for the release of three U.S. prisoners of war Hanoi has promised to free. He said he hoped the men could be freed sometime next week.

The North Vietnamese announced last week they would release three Americans as a good will gesture to mark the anniversary of American independence on July 4.

Nixon Orders Cutback

WASHINGTON—President Nixon has ordered a cutback of 20,000 U.S. military personnel and civilian employees abroad to save money and help in "reducing the American presence overseas," the White House announced yesterday.

There was no indication where the 14,900 servicemen would come from. The White House said troop reductions in Vietnam, of which 25,000 already have been ordered, will be considered separately.

'Scott Must OK Bill'

CHICAGO—Atty. Gen. William J. Scott said yesterday that Lt. Gov. Paul Simon must certify legislative approval of the $2 billion highway bond issue even if Simon thinks it was passed by the state Senate illegally.

Simon said he balked at the certification because he thought the bond issue bill violates state law by not carrying an estimate of the total cost. Scott said Simon, "as presiding officer of the Senate, cannot thwart the will of the legislature by refusing to execute his ministerial function."

Cities' Tax Share Up

SPRINGFIELD—Gov. Richard Ogilvie yesterday signed into law bills which allow cities and counties a greater share of the sales tax to aid them with their financial problems.

Under the new distribution breakdown, the cities would get a full 1 cent of the 5-cent sales tax and the state the remaining 4 cents. Also approved by the governor was a measure requiring a supervisor of assessments in all counties except Cook and St. Clair, which already have similar systems.

Found in Waterway

ELGIN—The bound and weighted body of a man identified as Lucas Garcia, 44, was found yesterday at the bottom of a waterway running beneath a foundry where he had been employed.

Garcia had been missing since June 27, when his vacation was scheduled to start. Police said investigation into Garcia's disappearance revealed that 13 residents of the Elgin area had entered this country illegally from Mexico.

A GROUP OF high school graduates paid tribute to some empty beer cans by erecting this monument, complete with an authentic granite headstone dated 1855, on the lawn of the John Griffen residence in Mount Prospect.

Dash of Devilness

by GERRY DeZONNA

Some high school students gave the Jack Griffens of Mount Prospect the run-around Tuesday night — right around the house and through the bushes and trees with thousands of feet of pastel-colored toilet tissue blowing gently in the breeze.

But the decorating was all done in the spirit of good, clean fun.

A band of neighborhood students, who call themselves "The Mungers," combined a colorful imagination with a sense of humor and a little bit of the devil that dances in the young.

THEY WRAPPED ROLLS of yellow, green, blue, and pink toilet tissue around the house and through the branches of the bushes and trees. "The Mungers" left the Griffens another surprise: a grave made of beer cans with an authentic granite headstone dating back to 1855.

But the Griffens had the last laugh and the final word. The students, friends of the Griffens and their high school daughters, meet at 101 S. Loka for a barbeque and clean-up party last night.

"We know all the kids in the toilet-paper troop. As a matter of fact, they called us at 1:30 Wednesday morning to make sure we didn't miss the decorations," explained Mrs. Griffen.

"My husband and I had a good laugh out of the whole incident. We decided that as long as the house was decorated for a party we'd invite the kids back for hot dogs and hamburgers and the clean-up detail."

THE GRIFFENS LIVE at the corner of Loka and Busse Road, which is well traveled by businessmen enroute to the train station in the morning. "So many people stopped to see the house that they created a traffic jam on Busse. Everybody chuckled at the sight of the toilet paper, and some people stopped to ask if we were having a wedding or a baby shower at the house."

"I guess some adults would be mad if a group of kids did the same to their homes, but we don't think that they did anything wrong. There wasn't any damage and no harm done."

"TRUTHFULLY MY husband and I thought the house looked pretty good, as if we were celebrating May Day. The trees looked like maypoles and the colored toilet paper was blowing in the breeze."

Two More Join Con-Con Race

Two more candidates — a Palatine man and an Arlington Heights woman — have filed nominating petitions for Third Senatorial District delegate seats at the Illinois Constitutional Convention.

Winn C. Davidson of Palatine and Mrs. Madeline Schroeder of Arlington Heights became the 13th and 14th candidates from this district when they filed nominating petitions with the secretary of state's office yesterday.

Filing deadline is Friday.

OTHER THIRD District candidates are Eugene L. Griffin, Arlington Heights; Thomas J. Johnson, Jr., Barrington; Virginia B. Macdonald, Arlington Heights; William R. Engelhardt, Inverness; Lester A. Bonaguro, Prospect Heights; John G. Woods, Arlington Heights; Wilfred L. Robbins, Mount Prospect; Robert A. Bush, Mount Prospect; Annis F. Bush, Mount Prospect; Mary J. Carlson, Prospect Heights; and Douglas Roy Cannon, Mount Prospect.

Davidson, 31, is assistant vice president at the First National Bank of Des Plaines.

He is a member of the Des Plaines Kiwanis and the Des Plaines Elks. He and his wife have five children and live at 649 N. Clark in Palatine.

Mrs. Schroeder has been a member of the League of Women Voters (LWV) since 1964 and was president of the Arlington Heights chapter from 1961 to 1963. She also was Con-Con chairman for the local league.

SHE ALSO served on the board of directors of the Cook County LWV for three years and has contributed articles to several publications on government.

Mrs. Schroeder was honored by the Union League Club of Chicago as one of the civic leaders most responsible for the November Victory on the call for the constitutional convention.

Mrs. Schroeder and her husband, George, live at 1923 N. Chestnut Ave. in Arlington Heights. They have two children.

Boy, 9, Dies in Accident

A 9-year-old Arlington Heights boy died after he fell into a ditch containing at least 15 feet of water at an apartment construction site at Thomas and Rand Roads in Arlington Heights.

Mark Allen Johnson, son of Dr. and Mrs. L. A. Johnson of 1728 Wilshire, Arlington Heights, apparently drowned despite efforts by a 10-year-old boy and the rescuer's father to revive him.

Johnson, who was playing with several friends around the ditch, fell into the water as he approached the edge of the bank in an attempt to see how deep the water was, police said.

One of his playmates dived into the water in an attempt to save the youngster. The boy said he held Johnson out of the water for a minute but lost his footing and released Johnson.

The boy swam out of the ditch and ran home to tell his parents. His mother called the police and tried to locate the youth.

Officers Preston Haig and Bud Bischoff both dove into the water when they reached the scene and pulled the body out. They said they found the boy on a small ledge approximately 10 feet under the water.

Police said the boy was in the water

$100 a day penalty clause after that date. Construction should begin during the next month, Fishman said.

The district will seek financial advice on the sale of bonds. Ever since March they have been advised to withhold sale because of market conditions, but board members indicated that they wished they had not taken this advice.

Fishman said the first payment on the building project will be due in about 60 days.

The architect also reported on plans for the Lincoln junior high addition which he said are ready for review by the administration. He has prepared a two-pronged proposal which offers the district an alternative if a referendum, tentatively set for Sept. 15, should fail.

Plan A would be built with $400,000 from the sale of Central Junior High plus additional funds up to $200,000 borrowed on tax anticipation warrants against the building fund. This plan would be used if the referendum fails.

On passage of the referendum, the district would build plan B, a million dollar building proposed in the June referendum which failed by 45 votes.

Johnston Wins Endorsement

It's one for Alan Johnston and zero for 11 other Republican candidates seeking the 13th Congressional District seat.

State Rep. Johnston of Kenilworth in New Trier township received the first — and maybe most important — township endorsement last night in Winnetka.

The New Trier Township GOP gave Johnston the nod on the first ballot easily defeating his closest competitor, Brian Duff, 111 to 34. Candidates needed 109 of 198 votes cast.

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights, the only candidate from the western four township received no votes.

Other totals were: Joseph Mathewson, 19; Gerald Marks, 17; David Roe, 6; Yale Roe, 4; Samuel Young, 4; Philip Crane, 3. John Nimrod, Alban Weber, Lar Daly, and Schlickman received no votes.

A New Trier endorsement was made early in the campaign in an attempt to thin out the pack. Candidates have until Friday to withdraw from the race and there was speculation that there may be some withdrawals following last night's endorsement.

The Con-Con primary election is Sept. 23, at which time four candidates from each of the state's senatorial districts will be slated for the Nov. 18 election. Two delegates will represent each district when the convention opens Dec. 8 in Springfield.

Park Board To Meet On Finances, Grounds

Members of the Mount Prospect Park Board will hold a series of meetings to consider matters of finance and buildings and grounds.

The Finance Committee of the district board will meet tonight at 8 in the Country Club Park Community Center.

The Building and Grounds committee will meet July 21, also at 8 p.m. in the Community Center.

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights, the only candidate from the western four township received no votes.

Other totals were: Joseph Mathewson, 19; Gerald Marks, 17; David Roe, 6; Yale Roe, 4; Samuel Young, 4; Philip Crane, 3. John Nimrod, Alban Weber, Lar Daly, and Schlickman received no votes.

A New Trier endorsement was made early in the campaign in an attempt to thin out the pack. Candidates have until Friday to withdraw from the race and there was speculation that there may be some withdrawals following last night's endorsement.

The Con-Con primary election is Sept. 23, at which time four candidates from each of the state's senatorial districts will be slated for the Nov. 18 election. Two delegates will represent each district when the convention opens Dec. 8 in Springfield.

Park Board To Meet On Finances, Grounds

Members of the Mount Prospect Park Board will hold a series of meetings to consider matters of finance and buildings and grounds.

The Finance Committee of the district board will meet tonight at 8 in the Country Club Park Community Center.

The Building and Grounds committee will meet July 21, also at 8 p.m. in the Community Center.

St. Alexis Expansion Recommended

by TOM JACHIMEC

A recently completed master plan recommends that St. Alexis Hospital in Elk Grove Village expand its facilities to include a seventh and eighth floor at the present building and an additional wing.

The plan, completed at a cost of $17,000 by Herman Smith Associates, a hospital consulting firm headquartered in Chicago, recommends that St. Alexis provide room for 800 beds by 1979.

The hospital currently has about 275 beds in its three-year-old building at 800 W. Biesterfeld Road. More than 700 persons are currently employed there.

Addition of the two additional floors is recommended to begin in the fall. They

The new wing recommended would cost from $12 to $15 million.

The report on long-range needs for the hospital reflects the large population increases that are expected with the continued development of the Northwest suburbs.

Large increases in population are expected to be throughout the area with Schaumburg's population projected at 200,000 in ten years and Elk Grove Village at almost 60,000.

It was on the basis of this population increase in the next ten years that the study was made. The study took eight months to complete.

"The population projections demand that we do something," said Brother Ferdinand Leyva, C.F.A., administrator for the hospital.

At the time the study was proposed, Brother Ferdinand said it would take into consideration the fact that St. Alexis is interested in seeing that all the health care needs of area residents are fulfilled.

Brother Ferdinand cautioned that the report or master plan consists of recommendations of what is needed and is not in itself a pronouncement of what will be done.

He called it a "guideline" for expansion. He added, however, that the hospital will probably abide by the recommendations made in the master plan.

Brother Ferdinand said the hospital's board is studying the plan and that he is in the process of appointing a committee to study ways in which it could be implemented.

He could not say in what phases expansion would take place. He added that a news release would be forthcoming next week.

St. Alexis Hospital opened its doors to patients in June, 1966, following two years of construction. It is operated by the Alexian Brothers who have operated for more than 100 years, Alexian Brothers Hospital, 1200 W. Belden, Chicago.

Ask More Opinions on Radar

by TOM WELLMAN

The Arlington Heights Village Board, once again wrestling with the controversial and divisive issue of weather radar, is seeking expert help from public agencies and communities which now use radar.

Village Manager L.A. Hanson yesterday sent out the first of a series of questionnaires to radio and television stations, airports, military bases, and communities which use radar.

The questionnaires, to be returned to the village, cover the maintenance, installation and operation of the equipment.

Under the category of "operation" of the equipment, questions concern the length of time needed to train personnel to use it, the capability of radar to differentiate between severe weather and tornadoes, and an overall evaluation of the usefulness of the equipment.

FIVE TELEVISION stations using radar, the Arlington Heights Nike base, the chief meteorologist at O'Hare Airport, Trans-World Airways, and the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in Chicago will receive the form, with a cover letter.

The answers will be fed back to the village administration, which will funnel them to the full Village Board, rather than the three-man public safety committee.

Monday night five members of the board (trustees Dwight Walton and Charles Bennett were absent) agreed unanimously that the full board should consider specific questions about the installation of the equipment.

The motion to transfer authority came from trustee George Burlingame, chief radar proponent and head of the public safety committee.

Prior to that decision trustees Bennett and William Griffin, the other two members of the committee, had entered statements into the record in response to statements Burlingame had made earlier about the May committee meeting on radar.

AT THAT MEETING the committee recommended, 2 to 1, not to install the equipment. The full village board then recommended that the committee should try to gain answers to specific questions about usage.

Monday night, Bennett's statement outlined his reasons for requesting storage, rather than use, of the equipment. He stressed that he had had enough doubts in his mind to force him to vote for storage.

Griffin's report was stronger. He stated that, contrary to a report by Burlingame, the safety committee "gave careful deliberation to all of the evidence presented, whether by expert or interested citizen.

The committee considered all evidence and all hearsay."

In responding to Burlingame's earlier charge that testimony from WBBM-TV's weatherman, Gerry Peterson, and United Airlines Gary Fichter had been "disregarded," Griffin retorted:

"The charge that the majority did not, or would not, consider the evidence that was presented is totally without foundation, cannot be substantiated and is unbelievably gross."

At the end of his statement, Griffin urged that the board, in view of lack of evidence, lack of investigation, lack of professional support and the presence of "recognizable expert opposition," move to dispose of the equipment.

At the start of the discussion Monday, Griffin began by withdrawing his request to sell the radar, stating that the committee was still considering installation.

Burlingame, however, then read a statement in which he charged Bennett and Griffin with entering "innuendoes and hearsay into the record."

HE THEN MOVED that, "due to the strong opinions by members of the safety committee," the full board should consider the specific questions. The motion passed, as did formal approval of the questionnaires.

So, later this month the board will consider the information on the returned questionnaires. Bennett, Burlingame and Griffin will be joined by Burt Thompson, Frank Palmatier, Dwight Walton, and village pres. John Walsh.

The radar was purchased two months ago by the village. It was formerly used as standard equipment on United Airline Viscounts to help detect weather turmoil, including thunderstorms and tornadoes.

Board members have been unable, in the past, to determine if the equipment would be valuable as a supplement to existing weather information in detecting approaching storms or if it would be unworkable, expensive to maintain, and unreliable as a weather tool in the community.

Teacher Economy Plan Told

by SUE CARSON

A plan aimed at promoting economy in the Dist. 23 schools by initiating a ratio of three assistant teachers to one teacher holding a college degree was outlined by Ralph Van Petten, president of the Prospect Heights Improvement Association. He made his recommendation at Monday's school board meeting.

Under Van Petten's plan, the teacher with a degree would supervise 100 students and three assistant teachers. The teacher would prepare lesson plans and teach special subjects, rotating between four classes of 25 students each. Assistants would handle routine subjects in the absence of the teacher.

Van Petten said this plan would save the district approximately $100,000 in operating cost per year.

VAN PETTEN suggested that the degreed teacher who would have supervisory responsibilities, be paid a salary base of $8,500 or $9,000 a year. He proposed that the assistants be paid $3 an hour.

Van Petten listed suggested qualifications for a teaching assistant: the person must live in the school district, have a minimum of an eighth grade education, have a proficiency in English and have passed qualifying tests determined by the school administration.

"Under the present system, classroom teachers for 1,000 students would cost approximately $320,000 as opposed to $210,000 per 1,000 students if teaching assistants were to replace three out of four teachers," Van Petten said.

Van Petten said he talked with many people in the community and thought there would be no problem locating teaching assistants who could perform proficiently with a week of indoctrination.

"THIS WOULD BE a step in the direction of giving education back to the community and would certainly lead to upgrading education in this district," Van Petten said.

He added that the only drawback to the program was that it was against the rules as they now stand.

"However, since laws can be bent and changed, I see no reason why an exception could not be made in our case, since these exceptions are constantly being made in other areas," he stated.

Dist. 23 Supt. Edward Grodsky stated he would look into Van Petten's proposal, but thought the plan would be illegal.

"Persons without at least 30 hours of college coursework are not allowed to supervise classrooms in the absence of a degreed teacher," Grodsky said. "I honestly think the law would have to be changed before the plan could be implemented, but its worth looking into." He said he would discuss the plan with officials at the State Department of Public Instruction, but added the plan could not be implemented in the fall even if approved.

"THIS IS A VERY interesting proposal, and worth looking into," commented Board Pres. Robert LeForge.

However Gerald McGovern, assistant principal at MacArthur Junior High School, opposed the plan. He stated he thought teaching assistants would "experience great difficulty" because of a lack of professional training.

To Recommend Annexing

The Mount Prospect Judiciary Committee will recommend that the village board annex a 17-acre tract of land on Busse Road north of the Crumley retention basin.

The property is subdivided into private lots with approximately 10 homes on the site. The land slated for annexation is bordered on all sides by the village.

The village board can annex any property less than 60 acres without the consent of the residents whose homes are affected by the annexation.

"This is an involuntary annexation. The residents would prefer not to live within the village because county taxes are lower than those of Mount Prospect.

"FOR ALL PRACTICAL purposes, the village provides these people with police and fire protection, and they're not paying for any of these services. But on the other hand, they'll benefit by the annexation because the village will provide water and sewage facilities. At present these residents have wells and septic tanks." Acting Village Mgr. John Zimmerman said.

Other action taken by the judiciary committee Tuesday night included a recommendation to approve a rezoning request on a 70-foot strip of land, part of a four-acre parcel, on Elmhurst Avenue and Central Road for a new post office.

THE PROPERTY is owned by Fire Chief Edwin Haberkamp. If the rezoning is approved by the village board, the federal government will have the only option on the site. If the site is denied by the post office, the rezoning classification will be automatically canceled.

Lindstrom Answers Critics

The Rev. Paul D. Lindstrom, pastor of the Church of Christian Liberty in Prospect Heights, answered charges that his church is abusing the American flag.

Last week Larry Brandau and Scott Ehret of Prospect Heights, two Hersey High School seniors, revealed they had been seeking a citizen's complaint against the church for allegedly abusing the flag.

The two seniors said they had noticed for the past four months that the flag is displayed on church property 24 hours a day, regardless of the weather.

Brandau said he asked Rev. Lindstrom to either take the flag down in the evenings or illuminate it, after he noticed it was still flying late at night.

Rev. Lindstrom denies having ever been contacted by Brandau. "No one has asked me to take the flag down or to illuminate it," he said.

"We have had floodlights (on the flag) since September. Until then we would take the flag down each night," Rev. Lindstrom stated.

Rev. Lindstrom did admit that about three or four times in the last 10 months the floodlights were not turned on. "There have been occasions when I haven't had the opportunity to turn on the lights. Those occasions have been rare and far between."

"On another occasion," he said, "the floodlight burned out and had to be replaced."

Rev. Lindstrom said that the flag is of the all-weather type and that it is legal to fly this type of flag when it rains. "If the flag is made of such material so as to stand up in all weather, it can be flown at all times," he said. Rev. Lindstrom cited federal laws supporting his claim.

He said that he had checked with Army officials at Ft. Sheridan, Ill., both before and after the boys made their charges.

According to Rev. Lindstrom the Army also flies the American flag during rain and the snow. "They call the flag they fly at all times a 'storm flag,'" he said.

Clause Hinders Suit

CHICAGO — A labor union seniority contract clause may prevent the Chicago Board of Education from heading off a threatened Justice Department suit to alter teacher assignment policies which the government claims discriminates against ghetto children. The board is currently under attack from the department for furthering racial discrimination by assigning the least experienced teachers to ghetto schools.

Tries To Free POWs

PARIS — American pacifist David Delinger said yesterday he has met with a high-ranking North Vietnamese official on arrangements for the release of three U. S. prisoners of war Hanoi has promised to free. He said he hoped the men could be freed sometime next week.

The North Vietnamese announced last week they would release three Americans as a good will gesture to mark the anniversary of American independence on July 4.

Nixon Orders Cutback

WASHINGTON—President Nixon has ordered a cutback of 20,000 U.S. military personnel and civilian employees abroad to save money and help in "reducing the American presence overseas," the White House announced yesterday.

There was no indication where the 14,900 servicemen would come from. The White House said troop reductions in Vietnam, of which 25,000 already have been ordered, will be considered separately.

'Scott Must OK Bill'

CHICAGO—Atty. Gen. William J. Scott said yesterday that Lt. Gov. Paul Simon must certify legislative approval of the $2 billion highway bond issue even if Simon thinks it was passed by the state Senate illegally.

Simon said he balked at the certification because he thought the bond issue bill violates the state law by not carrying an estimate of the total cost. Scott said Simon, "as president of the office of the Senate, cannot thwart the will of the legislature by refusing to execute his ministerial function."

Cities' Tax Share Up

SPRINGFIELD—Gov. Richard Ogilvie yesterday signed into law bills which allow cities and counties a greater share of the sales tax to aid them with their financial problems.

Under the new distribution breakdown, the cities would get a full 1 cent of the 5-cent sales tax and the state the remaining 4 cents. Also approved by the governor was a measure requiring a supervisor of assessments in all counties except Cook and St. Clair, which already have similar systems.

Found in Waterway

ELGIN—The bound and weighted body of a man identified as Lucas Garcia, 44, was found yesterday at the bottom of a waterway running beneath a foundry where he had been employed.

Garcia had been missing since June 27, when his vacation was scheduled to start. Police said investigation into Garcia's disappearance revealed that 13 residents of the Elgin area had entered this country illegally from Mexico.

GRANDMOTHER HAS a lot of experience in reading to children. She was a kindergarten teacher in Stuart Paddock and Gray Sanborn schools. Now in retirement, Mrs.

Marcella Lommen will have time to read to her own grandchildren, Elizabeth, David and Mike Ramsdale.

She Looks Back on Teaching

by JUDY BRANDES

Every teacher has tales to tell about her students, and Marcella Lommen is no different.

Retiring after 16 years as a kindergarten teacher in Dist. 15, Mrs. Lommen can sit for hours and tell you stories about the children she has taught. But when a school superintendent can do the same thing about a teacher, the humor has a different tone and purpose.

Dist. 15 Supt. E. S. Castor was principal of Stuart Paddock school when Mrs. Lommen taught there.

"THINGS WERE ALWAYS happening in her class. The kids were excited, and when a visitor came in, he felt a part of the group," Castor says.

"I often visited classrooms and the kindergarten children didn't know I was someone special. One day I walked in while Mrs. Lommen was reading them a story.

"One of the children scooted over to me and invited me to join them — on the floor. As soon as I sat down, the child began to give me the background of the story so I would understand. That child never realized there was an age difference."

Castor was telling stories about Mrs. Lommen to the board of education the night it presented her a recognition plaque for her teaching efforts.

"There was another time when I took some visitors through the school. Some of the kindergarteners were painting when we entered Mrs. Lommen's room. As we walked by one little girl who was making large, sweeping strokes with her black paint, I asked her what she was painting.

"Without missing a stroke, she replied 'If you'd like to have a copy, I'll see that you get one.' The children were always like that: very busy and enjoying their work."

MRS. LOMMEN FEELS kindergarten is the place to learn to like school and to increase a child's understanding of the world about him. "Sometimes, in their honest way, they would tell me what the world is like," she says.

"The class was out in the playground during recess when a storm blew up. The sky darkened just before it began to rain and there was a sudden streak of lightning. One boy looked up and said, 'God just took a picture of us.'"

Another child told the teacher she couldn't have any sweets because her teeth were on a diet.

The kindergarten child has to learn to think of others as well as himself and to coordinate his movements. "A boy came to me complaining that Michael hit him on the head. I asked 'What did you do to Michael?' 'Nothing, I missed him.'"

Mrs. Lommen encourages her students to use their hands. "We are always making things — tuna can candles, pictures, silhouettes. One Easter we made a five-foot paper mache bunny. I used it for several years."

INTRODUCING children to good reading habits was one of Mrs. Lommen's goals. "I often wrote down on the board the poems the children thought up, and then read them to them so they would get used to moving their eyes from left to right.

"You'd be surprised how little some children know when they come to kindergarten," she says. "Mothers don't sit down and read and play with their young children today. When the child comes to school, he can't even hold a pencil or crayon."

"Television has replaced many of their early play activities. One boy explained why there are Saturdays and Sundays: Saturdays are for watching cartoons, Sundays for going to church."

"Children talk a lot about what they don't understand. I heard one boy remark that God was dead. His companion dis-

Johnston Wins Endorsement

It's one for Alan Johnston and zero for 11 other Republican candidates seeking the 13th Congressional District seat.

State Rep. Johnston of Kenilworth in New Trier township received the first — and maybe most important — township endorsement last night in Winnetka.

The New Trier Township GOP gave Johnston the nod on the first ballot easily defeating his closest competitor, Brian Duff, 111 to 34. Candidates needed 100 of 198 votes cast.

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights, the only candidate from the western four township received no votes.

Other totals were: Joseph Mathewson, 19; Gerald Marks, 17; David Roe, 6; Yale Roe, 4; Samuel Young, 4; Philip Crane, 3. John Nimrod, Alban Weber, Lar Daly, and Schlickman received no votes.

Hopeful Pre-Views

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights, a Republican candidate for the 13th Congressional District seat, spent yesterday and part of today in Washington in a series of briefing sessions with Nixon administration spokesmen.

Schlickman visited with Sen. Everett Dirksen R-Ill., in his office yesterday morning and then had a lengthy session with Army Col. Harold Terrell, of the Safeguard Systems Office, who explained the President's viewpoint on the Anti-Ballistic Missile system (ABM).

The meeting was in the office of Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., one of the opponents of the ABM proposal. Schlickman said Percy's staff members were preparing an anti-ABM news release at the time Schlickman was meeting with the ABM spokesmen.

SCHLICKMAN ALSO met with Percy, who pledged his support to those legislators in Illinois who voted in favor of the income tax.

Schlickman's final visit yesterday was with U.S. Rep. John Erlenborn, R-Wheaton and other former state representatives who have gone to Congress.

"I was encouraged by their comments that their service in the Illinois House has aided them substantially in their roles as members of the U.S. Congress," Schlickman said.

Schlickman plans to leave Washington tonight.

Two more candidates — a Palatine man and an Arlington Heights woman — have filed nominating petitions for Third Senatorial District delegate seats at the Illinois Constitutional Convention.

Winn C. Davidson of Palatine and Mrs. Madeline Schroeder of Arlington Heights became the 13th and 14th candidates from this district when they filed nominating petitions with the secretary of state's office yesterday.

Filing deadline is Friday.

OTHER THIRD District candidates are Eugene L. Griffin, Arlington Heights; Thomas J. Johnson, Jr., Barrington; Virginia B. Macdonald, Arlington Heights; William R. Engelhardt, Inverness; Lester A. Bonaguro, Prospect Heights; John G. Woods, Arlington Heights; Wilfred L. Robbins, Mount Prospect; Robert A. Bush, Mount Prospect; Annis F. Bush, Mount Prospect; Mary J. Carlson, Prospect Heights; and Douglas Roy Cannon, Mount Prospect.

Davidson, 31, is assistant vice president at the First National Bank of Des Plaines.

He is a member of the Des Plaines Kiwanis and the Des Plaines Elks. He and his wife have five children and live at 649 N. Clark in Palatine.

Mrs. Schroeder has been a member of the League of Women Voters (LWV) since 1954 and was president of the Arlington Heights chapter from 1961 to 1963. She also was Con-Con chairman for the local league.

SHE ALSO served on the board of directors of the Cook County LWV for three years and has contributed articles to several publications on government.

Mrs. Schroeder was honored by the Union League Club of Chicago as one of the civic leaders most responsible for the November Victory on the call for the constitutional convention.

Mrs. Schroeder and her husband, George, live at 1923 N. Chestnut Ave. in Arlington Heights. They have two children.

The Con-Con primary election is Sept. 23, at which time four candidates from each of the state's senatorial districts will be slated for the Nov. 18 election. Two delegates will represent each district when the convention opens Dec. 8 in Springfield.

Center Limited

by BOB ZANIC

"Congress did not appropriate us any funds for the summer so we were limited in what we could do concerning our summer program," said Don Maldonado, director of the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows.

Center is able to hold summer programs in English for Spanish-speaking families, consumer education for housewives, driver training, general education development (to begin in August), Spanish language class, Head Start and a tutorial and recreation program at various area churches.

"We just stretched whatever programs we had going before summer began," he said, "and added the others."

Approximately 2,500 persons are in-involved in the program.

He hopes to continue these programs on a year-round basis.

"CERTAINLY I WOULD be more happy with more money for the summer months," he said. "I would like to increase and introduce new programs and reach more families."

Maldonado said he is very pleased with the response the center received in its plea for volunteers for its summer program.

"But the center can still use the services of about 10 more people, especially those interested in teaching English and driver education."

The driver education program is in its fifth week and, according to Maldonado, has been working very well. But there are requests from more persons than the program can handle.

Twenty students are supervised by nine instructors and there is just one driver. Many names are on the waiting list and some persons even visit the center in hopes that one student will not show up so they can take his place.

ENGLISH IS placed the most important program at the center, according to Maldonado.

"Many of the Spanish workers can do the job they apply for but the barrier is always language. We must help upgrade the ability of the workers to communicate and to help them compete successfully for jobs," he continued.

He said that many have problems just filling out an application for employment.

The general education development program (GED) will begin in August and cover a period of four to five months. The purpose of the program is to prepare the student to pass this test, which is equivalent to a high-school diploma.

"Many jobs require a high school education so we are preparing the Spanish-speaking worker to obtain it," he said.

To prove his point that low-income workers have the ability to improve themselves, he said 21 workers in a recently concluded training program at Western Electric moved into drafting and clerical jobs.

NOT ALL THE low-income families are migrants. Almost 800 families are permanent residents of the Northwest suburbs. They earn an average of $4,000 a year to support an average of 5.2 people. Sixty per cent of them speak only Spanish.

Maldonado tries to help migrants as well as ex-migrants. He sees their problem as three-fold: housing, education and unemployment.

He said their problems are inter-related. "If you can't speak English, you can't get an education. And if you can't get an education, you can't get a good job, and if you don't have a good job, you can't find a place to live."

The Northwest Opportunity Center is trying to cope with these three areas.

A summer employment referral service at the center works closely with the Illinois State Department of Employment. It refers people to the state office or directly to jobs. Close liaison with employment needs of private industry is also kept during the summer.

Maldonado HAD also hoped to begin day care and planned parenthood programs this summer.

He said there is a great need for these programs and emphasis will be placed on them this fall.

The center is open Monday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Maldonado plans to keep the center open on Sunday too.

Dist. 15 Supt. E. S. Castor was principal of Stuart Paddock school when Mrs. Lommen taught there.

"THINGS WERE ALWAYS happening in her class. The kids were excited, and when a visitor came in, he felt a part of the group," Castor says. "I often visited classrooms and the kindergarten children didn't know I was someone special. One day I walked in while Mrs. Lommen was reading them a story."

"One of the children scooted over to me and invited me to join them — on the floor. As soon as I sat down, the child began to give me the background of the story so I would understand. That child never realized there was an age difference."

Castor was telling stories about Mrs. Lommen to the board of education the night it presented her a recognition plaque for her teaching efforts.

"There was another time when I took some visitors through the school. Some of the kindergarteners were painting. When we entered Mrs. Lommen's room. As we walked by one little girl who was making large, sweeping strokes with her black paint, I asked her what she was painting."

"Without missing a stroke, she replied 'If you'd like to have a copy, I'll see that you get one.' The children were always like that: very busy and enjoying their work."

MRS. LOMMEN FEELS kindergarten is the place to learn to like school and to increase a child's understanding of the world about him. "Sometimes, in their honest way, they would tell me what the world is like," she says.

"The class was out in the playground during recess when a storm blew up. The sky darkened just before it began to rain and there was a sudden streak of lightning. One boy looked up and said, 'God just took a picture of us.'"

Another child told the teacher she couldn't have any sweets because her teeth were on a diet.

The kindergarten child has to learn to think of others as well as himself and to coordinate his movements. "A boy came to me complaining that Michael hit him on the head. I asked 'What did you do to Michael?' 'Nothing, I missed him.'"

Mrs. Lommen encourages her students to use their hands. "We are always making things — tuna can candles, pictures, silhouettes. One Easter we made a five-foot paper mache bunny. I used it for several years."

INTRODUCING children to good reading habits was one of Mrs. Lommen's goals. "I often wrote down on the board the poems the children thought up, and then read them to them so they would get used to moving their eyes from left to right."

"You'd be surprised how little some children know when they come to kindergarten," she says. "Mothers don't sit down and read and play with their young children today. When the child comes to school, he can't even hold a pencil or crayon."

"Television has replaced many of their early play activities. One boy explained why there are Saturdays and Sundays: Saturdays are for watching cartoons, Sundays for going to church."

"Children talk a lot about what they don't understand. I heard one boy remark that God was dead. His companion disagreed. The boy replies 'Yes he is. I heard it on TV.'"

In general, the kindergarten is business-like, but he can be realistic one minute and in a pretend world the next. He is helpful, but depends on adult support and supervision. Sometimes the kindergarten teacher is like a second mother.

"I'LL MISS THE children this fall, but I have plenty to do."

While she taught, Mrs. Lommen kept up her hobbies of gardening, refinishing antique furniture, sewing and making wall plaques. This fall she's going to Guam to visit her daughter's family.

"I'm not going to be completely out of it. I plan to substitute teach when I get back. I still love to work with children."

Johnston Wins Endorsement

It's one for Alan Johnston and zero for 11 other Republican candidates seeking the 13th Congressional District seat.

State Rep. Johnston of Kenilworth in New Trier township received the first — and maybe most important — township endorsement last night in Winnetka.

The New Trier Township GOP gave Johnston the nod on the first ballot easily defeating his closest competitor, Brian Duff, 111 to 34. Candidates needed 109 of 198 votes cast.

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights, the only candidate from the western four township received no votes.

Other totals were: Joseph Mathewson, 19; Gerald Marks, 17; David Roe, 6; Yale Roe, 4; Samuel Young, 4; Philip Crane, 3. John Nimrod, Alban Weber, Lar Daly, and Schlickman received no votes.

Hopeful Pre-Views

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights, a Republican candidate for the 13th Congressional District seat, spent yesterday and part of today in Washington in a series of briefing sessions with Nixon administration spokesmen.

Schlickman visited with Sen. Everett Dirksen R-Ill., in his office yesterday morning and then had a lengthy session with Army Col. Harold Terrell, of the Safeguard Systems Office, who explained the President's viewpoint on the Anti-Ballistic Missile system (ABM).

The meeting was in the office of Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., one of the opponents of the ABM proposal. Schlickman said Percy's staff members were preparing an anti-ABM news release at the time Schlickman was meeting with the ABM spokesmen.

SCHLICKMAN ALSO met with Percy, who pledged his support to those legislators in Illinois who voted in favor of the income tax.

Schlickman's final visit yesterday was with U.S. Rep. John Erlenborn, R-Wheaton and other former state representatives who have gone to Congress.

"I was encouraged by their comments that their service in the Illinois House has aided them substantially in their roles as members of the U.S. Congress," Schlickman said.

Schlickman plans to leave Washington tonight.

Two more candidates — a Palatine man and an Arlington Heights woman — have filed nominating petitions for Third Senatorial District delegate seats at the Illinois Constitutional Convention.

Winn C. Davidson of Palatine and Mrs. Madeline Schroeder of Arlington Heights became the 13th and 14th candidates from this district when they filed nominating petitions with the secretary of state's office yesterday.

Filing deadline is Friday.

OTHER THIRD District candidates are Eugene L. Griffin, Arlington Heights; Thomas J. Johnson, Jr., Barrington; Virginia B. McDonald, Arlington Heights; William R. Engelhardt, Inverness; Lester A. Bonaguro, Prospect Heights; John G. Woods, Arlington Heights; Wilfred L. Robbins, Mount Prospect; Robert A. Bush, Mount Prospect; Annis F. Bush, Mount Prospect; Mary J. Carlson, Prospect Heights; and Douglas Roy Cannon, Mount Prospect.

Davidson, 31, is assistant vice president at the First National Bank of Des Plaines.

He is a member of the Des Plaines Kiwanis and the Des Plaines Elks. He and his wife have five children and live at 649 N. Clark in Palatine.

Mrs. Schroeder has been a member of the League of Women Voters (LWV) since 1954 and was president of the Arlington Heights chapter from 1961 to 1963. She also was Con-Con chairman for the local league.

SHE ALSO served on the board of directors of the Cook County LWV for three years and has contributed articles to several publications on government.

Mrs. Schroeder was honored by the Union League Club of Chicago as one of the civic leaders most responsible for the November Victory on the call for the constitutional convention.

Mrs. Schroeder and her husband, George, live at 1923 N. Chestnut Ave. in Arlington Heights. They have two children.

The Con-Con primary election is Sept. 23, at which time four candidates from each of the state's senatorial districts will be elected for the Nov. 18 election. Two delegates will represent each district when the convention opens Dec. 8 in Springfield.

Center Limited

by BOB ZANIC

"Congress did not appropriate us any funds for the summer so we were limited in what we could do concerning our summer program," said Don Maldonado, director of the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows.

He said that despite this handicap, the center is able to hold summer programs in English for Spanish-speaking families, consumer education for housewives, driver training, general education development (to begin in August), Spanish language class, Head Start and a tutorial and recreation program at various area churches.

"We just stretched whatever programs we had going before summer began," he said, "and added the others."

Approximately 2,500 persons are involved in the program.

He hopes to continue these programs on a year-round basis.

"CERTAINLY I WOULD be more happy with more money for the summer months," he said. "I would like to increase and introduce new programs and reach more families."

Maldonado said he is very pleased with the response the center received in its plea for volunteers for its summer program.

"But the center can still use the services of about 10 more people, especially those interested in teaching English and driver education."

The driver education program is in its fifth week and, according to Maldonado, has been working very well. But there are requests from more persons than the program can handle.

Twenty students are supervised by nine instructors and there is just one driver. Many names are on the waiting list and some persons even visit the center in hopes that one student will not show up so they can take his place.

ENGLISH IS probably the most important program at the center, according to Maldonado.

"Many of the Spanish workers can do the job they apply for but the barrier is always language. We must help upgrade the ability of the workers to communicate and to help them compete successfully for jobs," he continued.

He said that many have problems just filling out an application for employment.

The general education development program (GED) will begin in August and cover a period of four to five months. The purpose of the program is to prepare the student to pass this test, which is equivalent to a high-school diploma.

"Many jobs require a high school education so we are preparing the Spanish-speaking worker to obtain it," he said.

To prove his point that low-income workers have the ability to improve themselves, he said 21 workers in a recently concluded training program at Western Electric moved into drafting and clerical jobs.

NOT ALL THE low-income families are migrants. Almost 800 families are permanent residents of the Northwest suburbs. They earn an average of $4,000 a year to support an average of 5.2 people. Sixty per cent of them speak only Spanish.

Maldonado tries to help migrants as well as ex-migrants. He sees their problem as three-fold: housing, education and unemployment.

He said their problems are inter-related. "If you can't speak English, you can't get an education. And if you can't get an education, you can't get a good job, and if you don't have a good job, you can't find a place to live."

The Northwest Opportunity Center is trying to cope with these three areas.

A summer employment referral service at the center works closely with the Illinois State Department of Employment. It refers people to the state office or directly to jobs. Close liaison with employment needs of private industry is also kept during the summer.

MALDONADO HAD also hoped to begin day care and planned parent-hood programs this summer.

He said there is a great need for these programs and emphasis will be placed on them this fall.

The center is open Monday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Maldonado plans to keep the center open on Sunday too.

St. Alexius Expansion Recommended

by TOM JACHIMEC

A recently completed master plan recommends that St. Alexius Hospital in Elk Grove Village expand its facilities to include a seventh and eighth floor at the present building and an additional wing.

The plan, completed at a cost of $17,000 by Herman Smith Associates, a hospital consulting firm headquartered in Chicago, recommends that St. Alexius provide room for 800 beds by 1979.

The hospital currently has about 275 beds in its three-year-old building at 800 W. Biesterfeld Road. More than 700 persons are currently employed there.

Addition of the two additional floors is recommended to begin in the fall. They would cost $4.8 million, more than half of the cost to build the $7 million hospital.

The new wing recommended would cost from $12 to $15 million.

The report on long-range needs for the hospital reflects the large population increases that are expected with the continued development of the Northwest suburbs.

Large increases in population are expected to be throughout the area with Schaumburg's population projected at 290,000 in ten years and Elk Grove Village at almost 60,000.

It was on the basis of this population increase in the next ten years that the study was made. The study took eight months to complete.

"The population projections demand that we do something," said Brother Ferdinand Leyva, C.F.A., administrator for the hospital.

At the time the study was proposed, Brother Ferdinand said it would take into consideration the fact that St. Alexius is interested in seeing that all the health care needs of area residents are fulfilled.

Brother Ferdinand cautioned that the report or master plan consists of recommendations of what is needed and is not in itself a pronouncement of what will be done.

He called it a "guideline" for expansion. He added, however, that the hospital will probably abide by the recommendations made in the master plan.

Brother Ferdinand said the hospital's board is studying the plan and that he is in the process of appointing a committee to study ways in which it could be implemented.

He could not say in what phases expansion would take place. He added that a news release would be forthcoming next week.

St. Alexius Hospital opened its doors to patients in June, 1966, following two years of construction. It is operated by the Alexian Brothers, who have operated for more than 100 years, Alexian Brothers Hospital, 1200 W. Belden, Chicago.

The Arlington Heights Village Board, once again wrestling with the controversial and divisive issue of weather radar, is seeking expert help from public agencies and communities which now use radar.

Village Manager L.A. Hanson yesterday sent out the first of a series of questionnaires to radio and television stations, airports, military bases, and communities which use radar.

The questionnaires, to be returned to the village, cover the maintenance, installation and operation of the equipment.

Under the category of "operation" of the equipment, questions concern the length of time needed to train personnel to use it, the capability of radar to differentiate between severe weather and tornadoes, and an overall evaluation of the usefulness of the equipment.

FIVE TELEVISION stations using radar, the Arlington Heights Nike base, the chief meteorologist at O'Hare Airport, Trans-World Airways, and the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in Chicago will receive the form, with a cover letter.

The answers will be fed back to the village administration, which will funnel them to the full Village Board, rather than the three-man public safety committee.

Monday night five members of the board (trustees Dwight Walton and Charles Bennett were absent) agreed unanimously that the full board should consider specific questions about the installation of the equipment.

The motion to transfer authority came from trustee George Burlingame, chief radar proponent and head of the public safety committee.

Prior to that decision trustees Bennett and William Griffin, the other two members of the committee, had entered statements into the record in response to statements Burlingame had made earlier about the May committee meeting on radar.

AT THAT MEETING the committee recommended, 2 to 1, not to install the equipment. The full village board then recommended that the committee should try to gain answers to specific questions about usage.

Monday night, Bennett's statement outlined his reasons for requesting storage, rather than use, of the equipment. He stressed that he had had enough doubts in his mind to force him to vote for storage.

Griffin's report was stronger. He stated that, contrary to a report by Burlingame, the safety committee "gave careful deliberation to all of the evidence presented, whether by expert or interested citizen.

The committee considered all evidence and all hearsay."

In responding to Burlingame's earlier charge that testimony from WBBM-TV's weatherman, Gerry Peterson, and United Airlines Gary Fichter had been "disregarded," Griffin retorted:

"The charge that the majority did not, or would not, consider the evidence that was presented is totally without foundation, cannot be substantiated and is unbelievably gross."

At the end of his statement, Griffin urged that the board, in view of lack of evidence, lack of investigation, lack of professional support and the presence of "recognizable expert opposition," move to dispose of the equipment.

At the start of the discussion Monday, Griffin began by withdrawing his request to sell the radar, stating that the committee was still considering installation.

Burlingame, however, then read a statement in which he charged Bennett and Griffin with entering "innuendoes and hearsay into the record."

HE THEN MOVED that, "due to the strong opinions by members of the safety committee," the full board should consider the specific questions. The motion passed, as did formal approval of the questionnaires.

So, later this month the board will consider the information on the returned questionnaires. Bennett, Burlingame and Griffin will be joined by Burt Thompson, Frank Palmatier, Dwight Walton, and village pres. John Walsh.

The radar was purchased two months ago by the village. It was formerly used as standard equipment on United Airlines Viscounts to help detect weather turmoil, including thunderstorms and tornadoes.

Board members have been unable, in the past, to determine if the equipment would be valuable as a supplement to existing weather information in detecting approaching storms or if it would be unworkable, expensive to maintain, and unreliable as a weather tool in the community.

Teacher Economy Plan Told

by SUE CARSON

A plan aimed at promoting economy in the Dist. 23 schools by initiating a ratio of three assistant teachers to one teacher holding a college degree was outlined by Ralph Van Petten, president of the Prospect Heights Improvement Association. He made his recommendation at Monday's school board meeting.

Under Van Petten's plan, the teacher with a degree would supervise 100 students and three assistant teachers. The teacher would prepare lesson plans and teach special subjects, rotating between four classes of 25 students each. Assistants would handle routine subjects in the absence of the teacher.

Van Petten said this plan would save the district approximately $100,000 in operating cost per year.

VAN PETTEN suggested that the degreed teacher who would have supervisory responsibilities, be paid a salary base of $8,500 or $9,000 a year. He proposed that the assistants be paid $3 an hour.

Prete Will Spend 8 Weeks in India

Frederick R. Prete of Rolling Meadows, a Southern Illinois University senior, will spend eight weeks in India on a mission to study the operation of the Gandhi Center.

His trip is being sponsored by Intercultural, interdisciplinary culture program, the university's Gandhi Centennial Committee and the Indiana Student Association.

Southern Illinois is participating in the year-long observance of the 100th anniversary of the Indian leader's birth.

Van Petten listed suggested qualifications for a teaching assistant: the person must live in the school district, have a minimum of an eighth grade education, have a proficiency in English and have passed qualifying tests determined by the school administration.

"Under the present system, classroom teachers for 1,000 students would cost approximately $320,000 as opposed to $210,000 per 1,000 students if teaching assistants were to replace three out of four teachers," Van Petten said.

Van Petten said he talked with many people in the community and thought there would be no problem locating teaching assistants who could perform proficiently with a week of indoctrination.

Boy, 9, Dies Despite Aid From Friend

A 9-year-old Arlington Heights boy died after he fell into a ditch containing at least 15 feet of water at an apartment construction site at Thomas and Rand Roads in Arlington Heights.

Mark Allen Johnson, son of Dr. and Mrs. L. A. Johnson of 1728 Wilshire, Arlington Heights, apparently drowned despite efforts by a 10-year-old boy and the rescuer's father to revive him.

Johnson, who was playing with several friends around the ditch, fell into the water as he approached the edge of the bank in an attempt to see how deep the water was, police said.

One of his playmates dived into the water in an attempt to save the youngster. The boy said he held Johnson out of the water for a minute but lost his footing and released Johnson.

The boy swam out of the ditch and ran home to tell his parents. His mother called the police while the father went back to the scene and tried to locate the youth.

Officers Preston Haig and Bud Bischoff both dove into the water when they reached the scene and pulled the body out. They said they found the boy on a small ledge approximately 10 feet under the water.

Police said the boy was in the water about 15 minutes before the body was retrieved. Police and firemen were unable to revive the boy and he was pronounced dead by Dr. Edward Paulsian, a physician at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

The man-made ditch is located on Thomas, east of Rand Road and is about 450 feet long running between Hersey High School and the Candlewood Trace apartment complex. The body was taken to Haire Funeral Home in Arlington Heights.

The construction site was unfenced. Police Capt. Jack Aldrich said that from all indications, the apparent drowning was accidental.

Water, Sidewalk Plans Approved

An expansion of the water system and sidewalk improvement program were approved by the Rolling Meadows City Council Tuesday night.

As much as $60,000 will be needed to drill the well, said Gary Machunze, city manager.

The well will be located in Northwest Industrial Park, and is part of the expansion of the water system that has been taking place over the past several years, he said.

THE WELL WILL help retain the margin of reserve capacity for the city, he said. It will primarily serve in industry and the Zale property by the industrial park, he added.

Drilling should begin sometime late this summer, he said.

A sidewalk improvement estimated at nearly $40,000 was also approved by the council. This program is eligible for matching funds from the state from the motor fuel tax fund.

Machunze said the city engineer will report on deteriorating sidewalk conditions. This program is expected to begin late this summer, he said.

"THIS WOULD BE a step in the direction of giving education back to the community and would certainly lead to upgrading education in this district," Van Petten said.

He added that the only drawback to the program was that it was against the rules as they now stand.

"However, since laws can be bent and changed, I see no reason why an exception could not be made in our case, since these exceptions are constantly being made in other areas," he stated.

Dist. 23 Supt. Edward Grodzky stated he would look into Van Petten's proposal, but thought the plan would be illegal.

"Persons without at least 30 hours of college coursework are not allowed to supervise classrooms in the absence of a degreed teacher," Grodzky said. "I honestly think the law would have to be changed before the plan could be implemented, but its worth looking into." He said he would discuss the plan with officials at the State Department of Public Instruction, but added the plan could not be implemented in the fall even if approved.

"THIS IS A VERY interesting proposal, and worth looking into," commented Board Pres. Robert LeForge.

However Gerald McGovern, assistant principal at MacArthur Junior High School, opposed the plan. He stated he thought teaching assistants would "experience great difficulty" because of a lack of professional training.

Discuss Civil Defense Plans

A civil defense budget of approximately $26,000 was discussed by the Palatine trustees at this week's meeting.

The program is eligible for state matching funds. Village Pres. John Moodie questioned how effective the present system is and how many people pay attention to it.

Trustee Wendell E. Jones said he thought people took notice of the warning when it is used for tornado notification.

Village Mgr. Berton Braun said the present system is inadequate to meet needs, especially in a case of severe warning. Not all parts of Palatine can hear the warning.

He said in a new system, the tones would be different for fire and other warnings. Jones said now he didn't know what the signals were for different warnings.

TRUSTEE FRED ZAJONC said the village needed warnings to prevent damage in case of tornadoes. "If one comes, we want to have a warning system," he said.

Braun said the problem is the availability of state money. It might be a year before the village can receive matching funds. The state would match half the expense of the program, bringing village cost to $11 to $13,000.

Braun said Palatine now meets the minimal requirements as outlined by the state.

Rain Will Not Stop Naval Band Concert

Tonight's concert of the Great Lakes Naval Training Center Band in Hoffman Estates will be held at Hillcrest School in the event of rain.

The 8 p.m. concert will otherwise be held at Vogel Park, Higgins and Jones roads. It is one of the events planned as part of the fourth annual Hoffman Estates Park District summer concert series.

Composed of 40 military musicians, the Great Lakes Naval Training Center Band travels more than 25,000 miles annually to perform for residents of the Ninth Naval District, which includes 13 states.

Nixon Orders Cutback

WASHINGTON—President Nixon has ordered a cutback of 20,000 U.S. military personnel and civilian employees abroad to save money and help in "reducing the American presence overseas," the White House announced yesterday.

There was no indication where the 14,900 servicemen would come from. The White House said troop reductions in Vietnam, of which 23,000 already have been ordered, will be considered separately.

'Scott Must OK Bill'

CHICAGO—Atty. Gen. William J. Scott said yesterday that U.S. Gov. Paul Simon must certify legislative approval of the $2 billion highway bond issue even if Simon thinks it was passed by the state Senate illegally.

Seeks Agnew Pay Hike

WASHINGTON—Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., claims Vice President Spiro Agnew needs a pay raise because he is hurting financially "because of the expenses of the office."

He has to buy his wife $600 dresses, and she can only wear them three or four times," Dirksen said Tuesday. Dirksen said the way has been cleared for Senate passage of a bill increasing Agnew's pay, along with that of other Congressional leaders, including Dirksen.

Cities' Tax Share Up

SPRINGFIELD—Gov. Richard Ogilvie yesterday signed into law bills which allow cities and counties a greater share of the sales tax to aid them with their financial problems.

Under the new distribution breakdown, the cities would get a full 1 cent of the 5-cent sales tax and the state the remaining 4 cents. Also approved by the governor was a measure requiring a supervisor of assessments in all counties except Cook and St. Clair, which already have similar systems.

Found in Waterway

ELGIN—The bound and weighted body of a man identified as Lucas Garcia, 44, was found yesterday at the bottom of a waterway running beneath a foundry where he had been employed.

Garcia had been missing since June 27, when his vacation was scheduled to start. Police said investigation into Garcia's disappearance revealed that 13 residents of the Elgin area had entered this country illegally from Mexico.

Ogilvie: Follow Me

CHICAGO—Gov. Richard Ogilvie yesterday urged the Young Republicans' national convention to follow his example and revitalize state governments.

Ogilvie said he found a "political disaster area" upon taking office in January, but in the six months since had halted the headlong rush of Illinois government toward mediocrity. The Democratic castle is crumbling," he predicted.

BOUNCING HIGH ARE two young participants in Buffalo Grove Park Commission's summer program.

500 Romp in Park Programs

More than 500 children are participating in the Buffalo Grove Park Commission summer programs, reported Sam Geati, director of parks and recreation.

Geati and a staff of 17 summer instructors and two afternoon program supervisors are conducting the activities. The commission's summer program, lasting eight weeks, will end Aug. 16. Activities are held at Alcott and Kilmer schools and at Emmerich Park.

Among the activities offered is one for children from 4 to 6 years old. The program, scheduled for two days each week, is held in the morning.

Other activities include archery, guitar

classes, tumbling classes, baton instruction, arts and crafts classes and model building.

ONE OF THE park commission's year-round programs is its twirling corps. The corps recently placed first in state competition.

For the boys, a two-part baseball instruction and flag football program is being conducted. Geati said the baseball instruction is primarily for boys who don't play in Little League.

Two cheerleaders from Wheeling High School teach cheerleading. Golf instruction programs for teenagers and adults were held earlier in the summer at the Buffalo Grove Golf Course.

Geati said the formal classes are conducted in the morning.

"We hold general activities in the afternoon," he said. Geati said that children registered for morning activities are also allowed to participate in the afternoon activities at Alcott School and Emmerich Park.

Lindstrom Answers Critics

The Rev. Paul D. Lindstrom, pastor of the Church of Christian Liberty in Prospect Heights, answered charges that his church is abusing the American flag.

Last week Larry Brandau and Scott Ehre of Prospect Heights, two Hersey High School seniors, revealed they had been seeking a citizen's complaint against the church for allegedly abusing the flag.

The two seniors said they had noticed for the past four months that the flag is displayed on church property 24 hours a day, regardless of the weather.

Brandau said he asked Rev. Lindstrom to either take the flag down in the evenings or illuminate it, after he noticed it was still flying late at night.

Rev. Lindstrom denies having ever been contacted by Brandau. "No one has asked me to take the flag down or to illuminate it," he said.

"We have had floodlights (on the flag) since September. Until then we would take the flag down each night," Rev. Lindstrom said.

Rev. Lindstrom did admit that about three or four times in the last 10 months the floodlights were not turned on. "There have been occasions when I haven't had the opportunity to turn on the lights. Those occasions have been rare and far between."

"On another occasion," he said, "the floodlight burned out and had to be replaced."

Rev. Lindstrom said that the flag is of the all-weather type and that it is legal to fly this type of flag when it rains. "If the flag is made of such material so as to stand up in all weather, it can be flown at all times," he said. Rev. Lindstrom cited federal laws supporting his claim.

He said that he had checked with Army officials at Ft. Sheridan, Ill., both before and after the boys made their charges.

According to Rev. Lindstrom the Army also flies the American flag during rain the snow. "They call the flag they fly at all times a 'storm flag,'" he said.

Sanitary District To Construct Sewer

The Metropolitan Sanitary District has made application with the Illinois Division of Waterways to construct a sewer under and across McDonald Creek northeast of Mount Prospect.

The application by the MSD was one of six such requests for construction permits received by the state office recently.

Persons favoring or opposing the proposed construction may write to John C. Guillou, chief waterway engineer, 201 W. Monroe St., Springfield.

Referendum Set Sept. 6

Residents in Dist. 96 will vote Sept. 6 on a two-part referendum to issue $140,000 in bonds and to levy taxes for rental of the new Dist. 96 school to be built in Buffalo Grove.

The school board decided at its meeting Monday night to submit the referendum to the voters.

William Hitzeman, superintendent of schools for the district, said the $140,000 would be spent for improvements on school buildings and sites. The money would also go for equipment and future school sites.

The second proposition to be decided is the levying of a tax to pay the rent on the new school to be adjacent to Twisted Oak Lane. Funds for the new school will come from the Illinois School Building Commission (ISBC).

RENTAL FEES PAID by the school district will go to the ISBC. Hitzeman said the rents would be paid for 16 years, until the ISBC interest-free loan is repaid.

Hitzeman said he did not know yet how much the bond issue and tax levy for the rent would raise the tax rate in the district. Presently the total tax rate in Dist. 96 is $2.58 per 100 dollars assessed valuation.

The new school, the second for the district, is expected to house about 700 students. Last year's enrollment in the district was 418. Next fall the enrollment is expected to jump to about 700.

Budget Is On the Way

"Buffalo Grove will have a budget in a few weeks," Trustee Robert Gleeson, chairman of the village finance committee, said Tuesday night.

The village trustee made the statement as he discussed the argument that flared among the trustees at Monday's village board meeting over the lack of a budget in Buffalo Grove.

During that argument, Gleeson termed a budget "meaningless" and budget hearings "a farce."

By "a farce," Gleeson explained he meant that the budget is a way of "knowing where money is coming from and where it is going." As long as there is no method of monitoring where money is being spent, he maintains the budget is useless.

"A budget to me is a plan, and a plan is useless unless you can follow it," says Gleeson.

"THE BUDGET is normally used as an operating tool, and it can only be a tool if you report back against it," he added.

Gleeson criticized the other trustees for what he called their procrastination on choosing a method of budget monitoring.

He said the previous board had decided to contract for an on-line computer system. Under this system equipment would be installed in the village hall. The equipment would be connected to a computer by telephone lines.

However, according to Gleeson, the newly elected trustees, Gary Armstrong, Ed Fabish and Mrs. Beverly Warner, wanted to investigate the cost of the off-line system.

With an off-line system, data must be taken to the computer. No computer equipment would be installed in the village hall under the off-line system.

Essentially the difference between the two is that the on-line system will handle matters much quicker.

Gleeson said an unofficial committee was formed to investigate the costs and advantages of both systems. "But, there has been a good deal of procrastination on resolving the reporting situation," he said.

GLEESON SAID this is the primary reason he has been holding up progress on the budget. He said he was doing this to "dramatize the need" for a monitoring system.

Gleeson did admit, however, that he was having trouble finding time to work on the budget. He cited this as another reason of the lack of progress on the budget.

While Gleeson favors the on-line system, he conceded that "it might be more than the village may need initially."

Worldwide Timesharing Inc. submitted the low bid for the on-line system. Gleeson is an employee of that company. However, because of his position on the village board, he has signed an agreement waiving any remuneration in connection with the sale of the equipment to the village.

AFTER PREDICTING Buffalo Grove would have its budget within a few weeks, Gleeson said he planned to set up an interim reporting system until the method of computer usage is decided. "I'll probably have to hire someone to do the reporting," he said.

Gleeson also said that he would hold budget hearings. "Both we (the village board) and the department heads have gotten a lot out of them in the past," he said.

He qualified his remark that such hearings were farcical by saying "They are a farce as the system (without a monitoring plan) stands now."

Next Monday the village board will consider its appropriation ordinance. This ordinance is required by the state. Unless an item is listed in the ordinance the village cannot spend money on it. Also, the village cannot spend more than it specifies in its appropriation ordinance. For this reason said Gleeson, "these ordinances are heavily padded." Gleeson is also responsible for the appropriation ordinance.

Gleeson predicted the matter of the budget probably would be discussed again at Monday's meeting when the board considers the appropriation ordinance.

Meeting Is July 17

The regular meeting of the Prospect Heights Rural Fire Protection District has been changed to 7:30 p.m. Thursday, July 17, at the fire station on McDonald Road.

The meeting was originally scheduled for July 15.

Teacher Economy Plan Told

by SUE CARSON

A plan aimed at promoting economy in the Dist. 23 schools by initiating a ratio of three assistant teachers to one teacher holding a college degree was outlined by Ralph Van Petten, president of the Prospect Heights Improvement Association. He made his recommendation at Monday's school board meeting.

Under Van Petten's plan, the teacher with a degree would supervise 100 students and three assistant teachers. The teacher would prepare lesson plans and teach special subjects, rotating between four classes of 25 students each. Assistants would handle routine subjects in the absence of the teacher.

Van Petten said this plan would save the district approximately $100,000 in operating cost per year.

VAN PETTEN suggested that the de-greed teacher who would have supervisory responsibilities, be paid a salary base of $3,500 or $3,000 a year. He proposed that the assistants be paid $3 an hour.

Van Petten listed suggested qualifications for a teaching assistant: the person must live in the school district, have a minimum of an eighth grade education, have a proficiency in English and have passed qualifying tests determined by the school administration.

"Under the present system, classroom teachers for 1,000 students would cost approximately $320,000 as opposed to $210,000 per 1,000 students if teaching assistants were to replace three out of four teachers," Van Petten said.

Van Petten said he talked with many people in the community and thought there would be no problem locating teaching assistants who could perform proficiently with a week of indoctrination.

"THIS WOULD BE a step in the direction of giving education back to the community and would certainly lead to upgrading education in this district," Van Petten said.

He added that the only drawback to the program was that it was against the rules as they now stand.

"However, since laws can be bent and changed, I see no reason why an exception could not be made in our case, since these exceptions are constantly being made in other areas," he stated.

Dist. 23 Supt. Edward Grodzky stated he would look into Van Petten's proposal, but thought the plan would be illegal.

"Persons without at least 30 hours of college coursework are not allowed to supervise classrooms in the absence of a de-greed teacher," Grodzky said. "I honestly think the law would have to be changed before the plan could be implemented, but its worth looking into." He said he would discuss the plan with officials at the State Department of Public Instruction, but added the plan could not be implemented in the fall even if approved.

Nixon Orders Cutback

WASHINGTON—President Nixon has ordered a cutback of 20,000 U.S. military personnel and civilian employees abroad to save money and help in "reducing the American presence overseas," the White House announced yesterday.

There was no indication where the 14,900 servicemen would come from. The White House said troop reductions in Vietnam, of which 25,000 already have been ordered, will be considered separately.

'Scott Must OK Bill'

CHICAGO—Atty. Gen. William J. Scott said yesterday that Lt. Gov. Paul Simon must certify legislative approval of the $2 billion highway bond issue even if Simon thinks it was passed by the state Senate illegally.

Simon said he balked at the certification because he thought the bond issue bill violates state law by not carrying an estimate of the total cost. Scott said Simon, "as presiding officer of the Senate, cannot thwart the will of the legislature by refusing to execute his ministerial function."

Seeks Agnew Pay Hike

WASHINGTON—Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., claims Vice President Spiro Agnew needs a pay raise because he is hurting financially "because of the expenses of the office."

He has to buy his wife $600 dresses, and she can only wear them three or four times," Dirksen said Tuesday. Dirksen said the bill increasing Agnew's pay, along with that of other Congressional leaders, including Dirksen.

Cities' Tax Share Up

SPRINGFIELD—Gov. Richard Ogilvie yesterday signed into law bills which allow cities and counties a greater share of the sales tax to aid them with their financial problems.

Under the new distribution breakdown, the cities would get a full 1 cent of the 5-cent sales tax and the state the remaining 4 cents. Also approved by the governor was a measure requiring a supervisor of assessments in all counties except Cook and St. Clair, which already have similar systems.

Found in Waterway

ELGIN—The bound and weighted body of a man identified as Lucas Garcia, 44, was found yesterday at the bottom of a waterway running beneath a foundry where he had been employed.

Garcia had been missing since June 27, when his vacation was scheduled to start. Police said investigation into Garcia's disappearance revealed that 13 residents of the Elgin area had entered this country illegally from Mexico.

Ogilvie: Follow Me

CHICAGO—Gov. Richard Ogilvie yesterday urged the Young Republicans' national convention to follow his example and revitalize state governments.

Ogilvie said he found a "political disaster area" upon taking office in January, but in the six months since had halted "the headlong rush of Illinois government toward mediocrity. The Democratic castle is crumbling," he predicted.

500 Romp in Park Programs

More than 500 children are participating in the Buffalo Grove Park Commission summer programs, reported Sam Geati, director of parks and recreation.

Geati and a staff of 17 summer instructors and two afternoon program supervisors are conducting the activities. The commission's summer program, lasting eight weeks, will end Aug. 16. Activities are held at Alcott and Kilmer schools and at Emmerich Park.

Among the activities offered is one for children from 4 to 6 years old. The program, scheduled for two days each week, is held in the morning.

Other activities include archery, guitar

classes, tumbling classes, baton instruction, arts and crafts classes and model building.

ONE OF THE park commission's year-round programs is its twirling corps. The corps recently placed first in state competition.

For the boys, a two-part baseball instruction and flag football program is being conducted. Geati said the baseball instruction is primarily for boys who don't play in Little League.

Two cheerleaders from Wheeling High School teach cheerleading. Golf instruction programs for teenagers and adults were held earlier in the summer at the Buffalo Grove Golf Course.

Geati said the formal classes are conducted in the morning.

"We hold general activities in the afternoon," he said. Geati said that children registered for morning activities are also allowed to participate in the afternoon activities at Alcott School and Emmerich Park.

Lindstrom Answers Critics

The Rev. Paul D. Lindstrom, pastor of the Church of Christian Liberty in Prospect Heights, answered charges that his church is abusing the American flag.

Last week Larry Brandau and Scott Ehrer of Prospect Heights, two Hersey High School seniors, revealed they had been seeking a citizen's complaint against the church for allegedly abusing the flag.

The two seniors said they had noticed for the past four months that the flag is displayed on church property 24 hours a day, regardless of the weather.

Brandau said he asked Rev. Lindstrom to either take the flag down in the evenings or illuminate it, after he noticed it was still flying late at night.

Rev. Lindstrom denies having ever been contacted by Brandau. "No one has asked me to take the flag down or to illuminate it," he said.

"We have had floodlights (on the flag) since September. Until then we would take the flag down each night," Rev. Lindstrom stated.

Rev. Lindstrom did admit that about three or four times in the last 10 months the floodlights were not turned on. "There have been occasions when I haven't had the opportunity to turn on the lights. Those occasions have been rare and far between."

"On another occasion," he said, "the floodlight burned out and had to be replaced."

Rev. Lindstrom said that the flag is of the all-weather type and that it is legal to fly this type of flag when it rains. "If the flag is made of such material so as to stand up in all weather, it can be flown at all times," he said. Rev. Lindstrom cited federal laws supporting his claim.

He said that he had checked with Army officials at Ft. Sheridan, Ill., both before and after the boys made their charges.

According to Rev. Lindstrom the Army also flies the American flag during rain the snow. "They call the flag they fly at all times a 'storm flag,'" he said.

Sanitary District To Construct Sewer

The Metropolitan Sanitary District has made application with the Illinois Division of Waterways to construct a sewer under and across McDonald Creek northeast of Mount Prospect.

The application by the MSD was one of six such requests for construction permits received by the state office recently.

Persons favoring or opposing the proposed construction may write to John C. Guillou, chief waterway engineer, 201 W. Monroe St., Springfield.

Referendum Set Sept. 6

Residents in Dist. 96 will vote Sept. 6 on a two-part referendum to issue $140,000 in bonds and to levy taxes for rental of the new Dist. 96 school to be built in Buffalo Grove.

The school board decided at its meeting Monday night to submit the referendum to the voters.

William Hitzeman, superintendent of schools for the district, said the $140,000 would be spent for improvements on school buildings and sites. The money would also go for equipment and future school sites.

The second proposition to be decided is the levying of a tax to pay the rent on the new school to be adjacent to Twisted Oak Lane. Funds for the new school will come

Boy, 9, Dies in Accident

A 9-year-old Arlington Heights boy died after he fell into a ditch containing at least 15 feet of water at an apartment construction site at Thomas and Rand Roads in Arlington Heights.

Mark Allen Johnson, son of Dr. and Mrs. L. A. Johnson of 1728 Wilshire, Arlington Heights, apparently drowned despite efforts by a 10-year-old boy and the rescuer's father to revive him.

Johnson, who was playing with several friends around the ditch, fell into the water as he approached the edge of the bank in an attempt to see how deep the water was, police said.

One of his playmates dived into the water in an attempt to save the youngster. The boy said he held Johnson out of the water for a minute but lost his footing and released Johnson.

The boy swam out of the ditch and ran home to tell his parents. His mother called the police while the father went back to the scene and tried to locate the youth.

Officers Preston Haig and Bud Bischoff both dove into the water when they reached the scene and pulled the body out. They said they found the boy on a small ledge approximately 10 feet under the water.

Police said the boy was in the water about 15 minutes before the body was retrieved. Police and firemen were unable to revive the boy and he was pronounced dead by Dr. Edward Paulsian, a physician at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

The man-made ditch is located on Thomas, east of Rand Road and is about 450 feet long running between Hersey High School and the Candlewood Trace apartment complex. The body was taken to Haire Funeral Home in Arlington Heights.

The construction site was unfenced.

Police Capt. Jack Aldrich said that from all indications, the apparent drowning was accidental.

He added that the only drawback to the program was that it was against the rules as they now stand.

"However, since laws can be bent and changed, I see no reason why an exception could not be made in our case, since these exceptions are constantly being made in other areas," he stated.

St. Alexis Expansion Recommended

by TOM JACHIMEC

A recently completed master plan recommends that St. Alexis hospital in Elk Grove Village expand its facilities to include a seventh and eighth floor at the present building and an additional wing. The plan, completed at a cost of $17,000 by Herman Smith Associates, a hospital consulting firm headquartered in Chicago, recommends that St. Alexis provide room for 800 beds by 1979.

The hospital currently has about 275 beds in its three-year-old building at 800 W. Biesterfeld Road. More than 700 persons are currently employed there.

Addition of the two additional floors is recommended to begin in the fall. They would cost $4.8 million, more than half of the cost to build the $7 million hospital. The new wing recommended would cost from $12 to $15 million.

The report on long-range needs for the hospital reflects the large population increases that are expected with the continued development of the Northwest suburbs.

Large increases in population are expected to be throughout the area with Schaumburg's population projected at 200,000 in ten years and Elk Grove Village at almost 60,000.

It was on the basis of this population increase in the next ten years that the study was made. The study took eight months to complete.

"The population projections demand that we do something," said Brother Ferdinand Leyva, C.F.A., administrator for the hospital.

At the time the study was proposed, Brother Ferdinand said it would take into consideration the fact that St. Alexis is interested in seeing that all the health care needs of area residents are fulfilled.

Brother Ferdinand cautioned that the report or master plan consists of recommendations of what is needed and is not in itself a pronouncement of what will be done.

He called it a "guideline" for expansion. He added, however, that the hospital will probably abide by the recommendations made in the master plan.

Brother Ferdinand said the hospital's board is studying the plan and that he is in the process of appointing a committee to study ways in which it could be implemented.

He could not say in what phases expansion would take place. He added that a news release would be forthcoming next week.

St. Alexis Hospital opened its doors to patients in June, 1966, following two years of construction. It is operated by the Alexian Brothers who have operated for more than 100 years, Alexian Brothers Hospital, 1200 W. Belden, Chicago.

Ask More Opinions on Radar

by TOM WELLMAN

The Arlington Heights Village Board, once again wrestling with the controversial and divisive issue of weather radar, is seeking expert help from public agencies and communities which now use radar.

Village Manager L.A. Hanson yesterday sent out the first of a series of questionnaires to radio and television stations, airports, military bases, and communities which use radar.

The questionnaires, to be returned to the village, cover the maintenance, installation and operation of the equipment.

Under the category of "operation" of the equipment, questions concern the length of time needed to train personnel to use it, the capability of radar to differentiate between severe weather and tornadoes, and an overall evaluation of the usefulness of the equipment.

FIVE TELEVISION stations using radar, the Arlington Heights Nike base, the chief meteorologist at O'Hare Airport, Trans-World Airways, and the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in Chicago will receive the form, with a cover letter.

The answers will be fed back to the village administration, which will funnel them to the full Village Board, rather than the three-man public safety committee.

Monday night five members of the board (trustees Dwight Walton and Charles Bennett were absent) agreed unanimously that the full board should consider specific questions about the installation of the equipment.

The motion to transfer authority came from trustee George Burlingame, chief radar proponent and head of the public safety committee.

Prior to that decision trustees Bennett and William Griffin, the other two members of the committee, had entered statements into the record in response to statements Burlingame had made earlier about the May committee meeting on radar.

AT THAT MEETING the committee recommended, 2 to 1, not to install the equipment. The full village board then recommended that the committee should try to gain answers to specific questions about usage.

Monday night, Bennett's statement outlined his reasons for requesting storage, rather than use, of the equipment. He stressed that he had had enough doubts in his mind to force him to vote for storage.

Griffin's report was stronger. He stated that, contrary to a report by Burlingame, the safety committee "gave careful deliberation to all of the evidence presented, whether by expert or interested citizen."

The committee considered all evidence and all hearsay."

In responding to Burlingame's earlier charge that testimony from WBBM-TV's weatherman, Gerry Peterson, and United Airlines Gary Fichter had been "disregarded," Griffin retorted:

"The charge that the majority did not, or would not, consider the evidence that was presented is totally without foundation, cannot be substantiated and is unbelievably gross."

At the end of his statement, Griffin urged that the board, in view of lack of evidence, lack of investigation, lack of professional support and the presence of "recognizable expert opposition," move to dispose of the equipment.

At the start of the discussion Monday, Griffin began by withdrawing his request to sell the radar, stating that the committee was still considering installation.

Burlingame, however, then read a statement in which he charged Bennett and Griffin with entering "innuendoes and hearsay into the record."

HE THEN MOVED that, "due to the strong opinions by members of the safety committee," the full board should consider the specific questions. The motion passed, as did formal approval of the questionnaires.

So, later this month the board will consider the information on the returned questionnaires. Bennett, Burlingame and Griffin will be joined by Burt Thompson, Frank Palmatier, Dwight Walton, and village pres. John Walsh.

The radar was purchased two months ago by the village. It was formerly used as standard equipment on United Airlines Viscounts to help detect weather turmoil, including thunderstorms and tornadoes.

Board members have been unable, in the past, to determine if the equipment would be valuable as a supplement to existing weather information in detecting approaching storms or if it would be unworkable, expensive to maintain, and unreliable as a weather tool in the community.

Two More Join Con-Con Race

Two more candidates — a Palatine man and an Arlington Heights woman — have filed nominating petitions for Third Senatorial District delegate seats at the Illinois Constitutional Convention.

Winn C. Davidson of Palatine and Mrs. Madeline Schroeder of Arlington Heights became the 13th and 14th candidates from this district when they filed nominating petitions with the secretary of state's office yesterday.

Filing deadline is Friday.

OTHER THIRD District candidates are Eugene L. Griffin, Arlington Heights; Thomas J. Johnson, Jr., Barrington; Virginia B. Macdonald, Arlington Heights; William R. Engelhardt, Inverness; Lester A. Bonaguro, Prospect Heights; John G. Woods, Arlington Heights; Wilfred L. Robbins, Mount Prospect; Robert A. Bush, Mount Prospect; Annis F. Bush, Mount Prospect; Mary J. Carlson, Prospect Heights; and Douglas Roy Cannon, Mount Prospect.

Davidson, 31, is assistant vice president at the First National Bank of Des Plaines.

He is a member of the Des Plaines Kiwanis and the Des Plaines Elks. He and his wife have five children and live at 649 N. Clark in Palatine.

Mrs. Schroeder has been a member of the League of Women Voters (LWV) since 1954 and was president of the Arlington Heights chapter from 1961 to 1963. She also was Con-Con chairman for the local league. SHE ALSO served on the board of directors of the Cook County LWV for three years and has contributed articles to several publications on government.

Mrs. Schroeder was honored by the Union League Club of Chicago as one of the civic leaders most responsible for the November Victory on the call for the constitutional convention.

List Youth Plans

Under the leadership of recently elected chairman Jack Costello, the Mount Prospect Youth Commission Monday outlined its plans for the next year.

Several new committees were formed and plans for committee chairmen to make an interim report in two weeks were announced.

Costello said he felt the need for the three standing committees now in existence had waned and suggested they be dissolved.

Members of the commission agreed and proposed a committee structure which would consist of special committees formed to perform an express function and dissolve when the project is completed.

COSTELLO SAID the areas in which he is specifically interested are drug abuse, juvenile court, interpretation of the police report, the new free school in Mount Prospect, St. Mark's youth center and a summer dance project for young people.

"We would welcome suggestions from young people and adults of the community concerning what they would like to see the youth commission do. There are many things we can accomplish which would be interesting and challenging," Costello added.

Several other suggestions for action in the next year were considered by the commission, including a suggestion by Ty Clements that they consider obtaining information from an Evanston group studying drug abuse.

Costello asked Clements to report to the commission on the information he obtains at these meetings.

IT WAS ALSO announced that the Cook County school superintendent's office is currently researching the possibility of formulating its own drug abuse program to be used in all areas from the elementary schools through adult education.

"Although the drug abuse problem is first on my list of areas we should study," Costello said, "I don't want to over-emphasize the problem. I would like to coordinate the effort to give the community information on the subject."

A letter was read from Mount Prospect youth counselor John Strong in appreciation of Acting Village Pres. John Zimmerman for finding him office space in which to perform his counseling work.

The counseling center will be at Village Well 5 at the corner of Emerson and Highland, near the American Legion Post.

Sign Averts A Disaster

A red traffic light and a "No Parking" sign helped avert a disaster yesterday in front of the Arlington Heights Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Road.

A large truck parked near Bowen Hardware on Arlington Heights Road south of the tracks broke loose from its emergency brake and began rolling south on heavily-traveled Arlington Heights Road.

As horrified village employees watched, the truck rolled up on the sidewalk in front of the municipal building, bending the "No Parking" sign.

THE TRUCK then rolled to a stop across Sigwalt Street. Ralph Green, a Bensenville resident, who was waiting to appear in court, raced from the Municipal Building and jumped into the cab of the truck and stopped it from rolling backwards.

The driver of the truck, William P. Dragumas, 51, of 1426 44th Street in Stone Park, had left the truck with the motor running and the emergency brake on. He was charged with damage to public property and leaving an unattended motor vehicle.

The personnel in the village clerk's office, closest to the scene, remarked that the sign prevented the truck hitting the building. They also observed that, by chance, no cars were traveling northbound on Arlington Heights Road at the time.

Centex-Schaumburg is being built by the world's most efficient industrial park development team, Schaumburg Village Pres. Robert O. Atcher said Tuesday.

Planned development zoning for the $200 million industrial park was approved by trustees Tuesday. The team developing it is Bennett-Kahnweiler, Centex and the Pritzker family.

"This team has its own money. It doesn't depend on banks or other institutions. Surveyors are already on the land," Atcher said.

The same group has developed the Centex Industrial Park in Elk Grove Village. It has holdings in 20 other states, including Dallas, Tex., and Denver, Colo.

The 586-acre tract in southwest Schaumburg is bounded by Rodenburg Road on the west, unincorporated Taylorville on the east, Irving Park Road on the south and Wise Road on the north.

THE INDUSTRIAL park will cost about $200 million to develop, James Dana, Bennett-Kahnweiler project manager, said. The assessed valuation will be about $100 million and it will provide about $6 million a year in taxes to local school districts and other taxing bodies, Dana said.

Under terms of the ordinance, the park may be developed in six stages, though Dana said it would probably be developed in four stages. It is scheduled for completion in 10 years.

The third stage will include a commercial area, with a hotel or motel, restaurant and office buildings. The park may also include an airport.

Centex-Schaumburg is the property formerly known as the Milwaukee Road industrial park. The Centex team purchased the land recently from the railroad.

Variations for the Centex property include provisions to have Milwaukee Road rail lines serve the park.

THE PROPOSED Elgin-O'Hare Expressway is expected to cut east and west through the center of the park.

Tenants will be light industrial manufacturers and warehouses.

"This is the most important development in Schaumburg from a standpoint of the tax base it will furnish. It is the culmination of years of work. The work of Bennett-Kahnweiler, Marshall Bennett, the Pritzkers and Centex is appreciated. We're happy to have you with us," Atcher said.

THE CLOWNS AND TILLIE, the elephant, will entertain tomorrow in Wheeling on Heritage Park grounds when the Sells & Gray Circus opens for two performances. The big under canvas shows, sponsored by the Rotary Club, will start at 2 and 8 p.m.

Dist. 57 To Join Bureau

The school board of Dist. 57 approved approximately $144 to $150 in funds that will allow them to become a part of a four-township volunteer bureau with temporary headquarters in Arlington Heights.

Presently the bureau is headed by Mrs. Dennis Moore, Arlington Heights, but Mrs. Charles Kimball, Dist. 57 board member, reported this week that a Mount Prospect director will be named soon who will be responsible for interviewing volunteers and coordinating placement within this village.

While the volunteer bureau will handle schools, social agencies, libraries, hospitals, etc., the action of the Dist. 57 board Monday night committed them only to pay for a training course for eight or nine volunteers who will be responsible for one district school each. The board agreed that the local director should also take the training course.

VOLUNTEERS ARE being used informally through the PTAs in some Dist. 57 schools at the present time to work in school libraries, as teacher aides, to handle typing and clerical chores for individual teachers and to provide some cultural enrichment.

The program being developed in Arlington Heights is modeled after one that has been successful on the north shore. Mrs. Janet Freund, director of the north shore program, will present the fall training course.

Volunteers can be of any age and may work with outlets such as Headstart, the Opportunity Center, local libraries, historical societies, or in tutorial programs.

IT WILL BE THE job of the local director to interview volunteers and place them where their talents and experiences can be of most benefit.

"I hope," said Charles Houchins, a Dist. 57 board member, "that someday when this gets on its feet it might include something for that difficult age between 12 and 15 when the young people can't get jobs and need useful outlets."

Nixon Orders Cutback

WASHINGTON—President Nixon has ordered a cutback of 20,000 U.S. military personnel and civilian employees abroad to save money and help in "reducing the American presence overseas," the White House announced yesterday.

There was no indication where the 14,900 servicemen would come from. The White House said troop reductions in Vietnam, of which 25,000 already have been ordered, will be considered separately.

'Scott Must OK Bill'

CHICAGO—Atty. Gen. William J. Scott said yesterday that Lt. Gov. Paul Simon must certify legislative approval of the $2 billion highway bond issue even if Simon thinks it was passed by the state Senate illegally.

Simon said he balked at the certification because he thought the bond issue bill violates state law by not carrying an estimate of the total cost. Scott said Simon, "as presiding officer of the Senate, cannot thwart the will of the legislature by refusing to execute his ministerial function."

Seeks Agnew Pay Hike

WASHINGTON—Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., claims Vice President Spiro Agnew needs a pay raise because he is hurting financially "because of the expenses of the office."

"He has to buy his wife $600 dresses, and she can only wear them three or four times," Dirksen said Tuesday. Dirksen said the way has been cleared for Senate passage of a bill increasing Agnew's pay, along with that of other Congressional leaders, including Dirksen.

Cities' Tax Share Up

SPRINGFIELD—Gov. Richard Ogilvie yesterday signed into law bills which allow cities and counties a greater share of the sales tax to aid them with their financial problems.

Under the new distribution breakdown, the cities would get a full 1 cent of the 5-cent sales tax and the state the remaining 4 cents. Also approved by the governor was a measure requiring a supervisor of assessments in all counties except Cook and St. Clair, which already have similar systems.

Found in Waterway

ELGIN—The bound and weighted body of a man identified as Lucas Garcia, 44, was found yesterday at the bottom of a waterway running beneath a foundry where he had been employed.

Garcia had been missing since June 27, when his vacation was scheduled to start. Police said investigation into Garcia's disappearance revealed that 13 residents of the Elgin area had entered this country illegally from Mexico.

Ogilvie: Follow Me

CHICAGO—Gov. Richard Ogilvie yesterday urged the Young Republicans' national convention to follow his example and revitalize state governments.

Ogilvie said he found a "political disaster area" upon taking office in January, but in the six months since had halted "the headlong rush of Illinois government toward mediocrity. The Democratic castle is crumbling," he predicted.

Drivers Beware: Willow Is One-Way

The shortcut used by Schaumburg Township commuters trying to avoid detours and delays through the construction area on Higgins Road has come to an end.

Commuters will no longer be able to cut through the Lexington Fields subdivision. Unhappy members of the Lexington Fields Homeowners Association appeared at Tuesday's village board meeting and suggested that Willow Road be made a one-way from Meacham to Columbine.

After considering several alternatives, the board passed an ordinance making Willow one-way west between 6 and 9 a.m. and one-way east between 4 and 7 p.m.

A squad car will be stationed in the subdivision "to put teeth" in the ordinance. Drivers violating the new one-ways will be subject to fines.

THE COMMUTERS are trying to miss traffic jams at Meacham and Higgins Road during rush hours and cut through Lexington Fields. Streets in the subdivision were not built for that kind of traffic and it's creating a hazard for Lexington Fields residents, especially children, Mayor Robert O. Atcher said.

Thomas O'Rourke, president of the Lexington Fields homeowners, said 53 families in the subdivision have signed a petition requesting the one-way on Willow.

Other possible solutions included making

Martingale and Lexington Roads one-way, but this would have also inconvenienced subdivision residents.

Another rejected solution was putting up no right turn signs at Willow and no left turn signs at Martingale and Lexington. This also would have inconvenienced Lexington Fields residents.

Dr. Martin Coniglio, a member of the fire and police commission and zoning board of appeals and a resident of the subdivision, said he was against making Willow one-way.

"I WILL BE inconvenienced considerably, I'll have to leave and return by the clock and calendar," he said.

Chester Mayner, a member of the zoning board and subdivision resident, said a police count showed some 80 cars traveling through Lexington Fields in a 45 minute period during rush hour.

"The problem occurred before the widening of Higgins Road started. It's the same cars. What we need is education for those drivers. Traffic is backed up in both directions in the morning. I can't get out of my driveway," Mayner said.

Dr. Coniglio said that making Willow one-way will present danger from people being forced to turn around in the subdivision.

Residents said drivers don't slow down to normal subdivision speed limits.

O'Rourke was asked to return to the Aug. 12 board meeting and report on how effective the one-way system is.

Tenants will be light industrial manufacturers and warehouses.

"This is the most important development in Schaumburg from a standpoint of the tax base it will furnish. It is the culmination of years of work. The work of Bennett-Kahnweiler, Marshall Bennett, the Pritzkers and Centex is appreciated. We're happy to have you with us," Atcher said.

Unhappy Over Busing Plan

by LARRY EVERHART

To be bused or not to be bused. That is the question these days among Hanover Park parents and school Dist. U-46 officials.

Busing to Elgin may be necessary for the coming school year for elementary students in the area. Hanover Park's new elementary school will not open until September, 1971.

In the meantime, accommodations must be found for the increasing number of students. Dist. U-46 officials plan to bus some elementary students of all grades from Hanover Park and the Robinswood and Glenbrook areas of Streamwood to Lincoln and Franklin schools in Elgin during the 1969-70 school year.

These developments were announced and discussed by school officials and a gathering of parents Tuesday night at Laurel Hill School, Hanover Park.

Sentiment among parents was strongly opposed to busing and several alternatives were suggested. At the request of Village Pres. Richard Baker, U-46 Supt. Dr. Paul Lawrence will meet with the school board to discuss these alternatives and meet again with a committee of parents.

THE SCHOOL district has proposed that a projected total of 344 students (as of May 1) be placed in the Elgin schools. This would include 71 from Laurel Hill, 87

Approve Yard Variation

One proposed side yard variation in Hoffman Estates was approved at the village board meeting Monday night and another was deferred for more study.

The board approved the plans of Richard Ekstrom, 251 Milton Lane, to add 13 feet to his home, widening his garage to add two cars. The zoning board of appeals had recommended to variation, saying the addition would enhance the neighborhood.

Plans of David Olsen, 299 Monticello Road, were deferred until a report is submitted by Village Public Works Supt. Will Boim.

Olsen plans to build a detached garage and driveway. Questioning by trustees revealed that the driveway would cross a storm sewer, and a grate presently on the property would be in the middle of the driveway.

TRUSTEES wanted Olsen to assume all possible damages both to the sewer under the driveway and to his driveway as a result of any repairs made to the sewer. Olsen did not say whether he would agree.

Trustee Bruce Lind also requested Olsen to agree not to park in the driveway because parked cars could be a vision hazard to motorists Olsen refused.

The plans are scheduled for discussion again at next week's board meeting.

Name Park Commissioner

John Koutsogianis was appointed commissioner of the Hanover Park Park District at Monday night's meeting of the park board.

Koutsogianis replaces Richard Baker, who vacated the position in May when he was elected village president.

It was announced that the park district baton twirling corps had won a trophy in the Streamwood Fourth of July parade as the best coordinated youth group of 1969. The Gold Diggers of the corps were lauded for their performance. The parade, which included groups from several surrounding communities, was the longest in the history of Streamwood.

The park board also accepted a complete program of activities for the coming fall and winter. A printed list of programs being offered, including all information on each activity, will be mailed to every resident in Hanover Park.

ALL CHILDREN 8-13 years old who are interested in participating in the Paddock Olympics, a meet of various field and sports events, may now register with a supervisor at one of three schools: Hanover-Highland, Anne Fox, or Ahlstrand.

A playground instructor will work with each child who registers to help him decide in which event he will participate.

A recommendation was accepted for the park district to provide $40 for a bus to transport participants in the olympics to Mount Prospect, where this year's events will be staged. The recommendation was made by James Kamradt, park director.

Another motion was accepted by the board to obtain a large bulletin board, to be placed in Gromer's Shopping Center, which would advertise all programs being offered by the park district. A request will be made to display such a board.

VILLAGE PRES. Baker suggested that a larger board be purchased, with the village paying half the cost. The board would be shared by the park district and village.

A petition from a group of teenagers in Hanover Park was presented, requesting more park district activities for teens. A meeting was scheduled for Tuesday night with these teens and two commissioners, Pres. Harold Humphreys and James Lyons, plus Kamradt.

One of the possibilities discussed was a weekly supervised get-together for teens.

It was voted to charge residents not in the Hanover Park Park District area an amount twice the regular fee for all park district programs offered, with a $5 minimum.

PARK DISTRICT committees and chairmen were appointed for this fiscal year.

Wayne Dodson will be chairman of the land development committee, and members will be commissioners Lyons and John Morrissey.

Morrissey will head the purchasing and financing committee with Koutsogianis assisting him. The maintenance committee is under the direction of Koutsogianis, who will work with Humphreys.

Humphreys heads the recreation committee, with commissioners Lyons and Dodson also members. Publicity is directed by Lyons, assisted by Humphreys. Humphreys is chairman of the land acquisition committee, with all other commissioners — Lyons, Morrissey, Dodson, and Koutsogianis — also on the committee.

Drop Apartments

It's going to be a happy ending for the Knightsbridge subdivision in Schaumburg.

The subdivision will have 107 single-family homes priced between $45,000 and $55,000. Townhouses and apartments that were originally requested by the developers have been dropped.

Tuesday the village board concurred with the recommendation of the plans commission that the preliminary plat for Knightsbridge be approved.

The 40-acre parcel, zoned for single-family development, is west of Jones Road, a half-mile north of Higgins Road. It is adjacent to the Churchill subdivision of Schaumburg and the Highlands and Highpoint subdivisions of Hoffman Estates.

RESIDENTS FROM those three areas protested the plans to build apartments and townhouses in Knightsbridge. Petitioner H.F.S. Engineering Co., Schaumburg, withdrew the request for planned development zoning that would have permitted the multi-family units after the protest at a June 11 zoning hearing.

T. W. Anderson, plans commission chairman, said Coventry and Churchill roads should be extended from Churchill subdivision into Knightsbridge for fire and safety purposes.

Anderson said Nicholas Herman, president of H.F.S., sent a letter stating that he will grade and seed 2.5 acres for public use. The property is adjacent to Churchill School.

"Let me tell you about Mr. Herman. He offered to pay $100 per home to the cultural center fund. This is the first single-family homebuilder to do so. The lots will be 12,000 square feet in size, even though 10,000 square feet would be permissible.

"This surpasses any development we have. I would like to personally thank Mr. Herman. I hope he finds another piece of land in the village to build what he proposed for this property," Mayor Robert O. Atcher said.

Library To Exhibit Westgor Paintings

A collection of oil paintings and watercolors by Mrs. Vergil Westgor of Hoffman Estates will be on exhibit at the Schaumburg Township Library during July.

Mrs. Westgor attended Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, and graduated from Iowa State University in Ames as an art major. She has subsequently taught art in junior high school.

Since moving to the Chicago area, Mrs. Westgor has studied at the Art Institute and taken art instruction under June Wilhelm and Joan Thompson.

Mrs. Westgor has previously exhibited her paintings at the Park Ridge Art Fair and the Des Plaines Art Fair. She resides at 501 Blair Lane in Hoffman Estates.

Plastic Garbage Bags OK, Atcher Suggests

Plastic bags for garbage will be allowed in Schaumburg, Mayor Robert O. Atcher suggested Tuesday that the garbage ordinance be amended to permit them.

He said a study made by the Northwest Municipal Conference showed that the bags are more acceptable than cans. "The bags are cleaner and faster," he said.

Busing Plan Opposed

from the Robinswood area, and 185 from the Glenbrook region.

Dr. Lawrence said that 72 students would be bused from the first grade, 60 from second grade, 61 from third, 49 from fourth, 41 from fifth, and 53 from sixth.

The Lincoln and Franklin schools would handle a total of 22 classrooms of students from the area. Until now, Glenbrook and Streamwood students have been using these facilities. They will not attend the new Ridge Circle elementary school in Streamwood.

"After evaluating all alternatives," said Lawrence, "we decided that split shifts are not the answer. We feel that busing some students to Elgin, while not desirable, is the best solution."

One of the objections to this plan is that first graders are perhaps too young to be bused 10 miles to school every day. Mrs. Beverly McFarland, 7351 Briarwood, Hanover Park, voiced this opinion.

"IT'S ASKING TOO much of first graders to sit still that long on a bus every day," said Mrs. McFarland. They are insecure and at a critical learning age. Why can't only older kids be bused?"

Dissenting opinions were that the first graders would become secure once they get accustomed to riding buses; older students would be more difficult to discipline on a bus; and many younger students enjoy riding buses.

Another alternative is the purchasing of more mobile units to add to local school facilities. Six such units have been used this year at Laurel Hill and 23 total in the school district.

The use of more mobile units might eliminate the need for busing, but would also present problems. Mrs. Dennis McKinney, president of the Laurel Hill Parent-Teacher Association, represented feeling against more units. She said there is not enough room for more units and that facilities they provide are inadequate.

Another suggestion was the use of unoccupied space in the nearby shopping plaza and office building complex. Mrs. McKinney countered by stating that no bathrooms or gym would be available and that transportation to and from these sites would be a problem.

Some parents expressed doubt that the new school would be ready by 1971, fearing that their children might need to be bused for more than one year.

IN ANSWER to other questions about the adequacy of facilities at the Elgin schools, Dr. Lawrence assured parents that the classrooms are safe, clean, and probably bigger than those at Laurel Hill.

Baker echoed these feelings, stating that he had toured the schools and that "a fine job has been done to get them ready. I have kids who will attend those schools," added Baker.

"I don't like busing either, but it is the most logical alternative."

A petition was circulated for those wishing to go on record as being against busing and had about 15 signatures.

Speaking for the petition signers, Tom Rogers, 7310 Gladiola Ave., Hanover Park, recommended that the school board consider purchasing more mobile units. It appears this is the most popular alternative to busing at the moment.

Split sessions are not a strong possibility, as that solution is sharply opposed by both school officials and parents.

7 Are Appointed

Appointed to the plan commission were John Gappa, Michael L. Redmond and Richard C. Regan. Mrs. Helen Wozniak was appointed to the zoning board of appeals, the Rev. Thomas C. Truscott and Ronald G. Stewart were named to the youth commission and Mrs. Geraldine A. Deguisne was approved as health officer.

Gappa has served the village as a member of the fire department and is employed as a design engineer for Packaging Corp. His term on the commission expires

April 30, 1970.

Redmond is employed as assistant director of Louis A. Weiss Memorial Hospital and has done graduate work at Northwestern in hospital administration. His term expires in 1971.

FORMER PRESIDENT of the Regular Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township and campaign manager of the village Republicans in the April election, Regan is employed as a sales and marketing manager for Standard Kollsman. He is currently a member of the YMCA board of directors. Regan's term runs until 1972.

Stewart is an assistant professor in sociology at Harper College and an active participant in several professional organizations. His term on the youth commission expires April 30, 1972.

Truscott is pastor of the Church of the Cross in Hoffman Estates and was appointed for a four-year term on the commission.

Mrs. Wozniak has been active in several women's clubs and church organizations and formerly was employed as a bookkeeper and Girl Friday. Her term on the zoning board of appeals expires in 1971.

Mrs. Deguisne is a registered nurse and has worked on hospital staffs, as a private duty nurse and school nurse. She also is active in several public service organizations involving medical training. The board also approved a salary of $600 for her term expiring next year.

Nixon Orders Cutback

WASHINGTON—President Nixon has ordered a cutback of 20,000 U.S. military personnel and civilian employees abroad to save money and help in "reducing the American presence overseas," the White House announced yesterday.

There was no indication where the 14,000 servicemen would come from. The White House said troop reductions in Vietnam of which 25,000 already have been ordered, will be considered separately.

'Scott Must OK Bill'

CHICAGO—Atty. Gen. William J. Scott said yesterday that Lt. Gov. Paul Simon must certify legislative approval of the $2 billion highway bond issue even if Simon thinks it was passed by the state Senate illegally.

Simon said he balked at the certification because he thought the bond issue bill violates state law by not carrying an estimate of the total cost. Scott said Simon, "as presiding officer of the Senate, cannot thwart the will of the legislature by refusing to execute his ministerial function."

Seeks Agnew Pay Hike

WASHINGTON—Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., claims Vice President Spiro Agnew needs a pay raise because he is hurting financially "because of the expenses of the office."

He has to buy his wife $600 dresses, and she can only wear them three or four times," Dirksen said Tuesday. Dirksen said the way has been cleared for Senate passage of a bill increasing Agnew's pay, along with that of other Congressional, including Dirksen.

Cities' Tax Share Up

SPRINGFIELD—Gov. Richard Ogilvie yesterday signed into law bills which allow cities and counties a greater share of the sales tax to aid them with their financial problems.

Under the new distribution breakdown, the cities would get a full 1 cent of the 5 cent sales tax and the state the remaining 4 cents. Also approved by the governor was a measure requiring a supervisor of assessments in all counties except Cook and St. Clair which already have similar systems.

Found in Waterway

ELGIN—The bound and weighted body of a man identified as Lucas Garcia, 44, was found yesterday at the bottom of a waterway running beneath a foundry where he had been employed.

Garcia had been missing since June 27, when his vacation was scheduled to start. Police said investigation into Garcia's disappearance revealed that 13 residents of the Elgin area had entered this country illegally from Mexico.

Ogilvie: Follow Me

CHICAGO—Gov. Richard Ogilvie yesterday urged the Young Republicans' national convention to follow his example and revitalize state governments.

Ogilvie said he found a "political disaster area" upon taking office in January, but in the six months since had halted "the headlong rush of Illinois government toward mediocrity. The Democratic castle is crumbling," he predicted.

Plan Recommends Alexius Expansion

by TOM JACHIMIEC

A recently completed master plan recommends that St. Alexius Hospital in Elk Grove Village expand its facilities to include a seventh and eighth floor at the present building and an additional wing.

The plan, completed at a cost of $17,000 by Herman Smith Associates, a hospital consulting firm headquartered in Chicago, recommends that St. Alexius provide room for 800 beds by 1979.

The hospital currently has about 275 beds in its three-year-old building at 800 W. Biesterfeld Road. More than 700 persons are currently employed there.

Addition of the two additional floors is recommended to begin in the fall. They would cost $4.8 million, more than half of the cost to build the $7 million hospital.

The new wing recommended would cost from $12 to $15 million.

The report on long-range needs for the hospital reflects the large population increases that are expected with the continued development of the Northwest suburbs.

Large increases in population are expected to be throughout the area with Schaumburg's population projected at 200,000 in ten years and Elk Grove Village at almost 60,000.

It was on the basis of this population increase in the next ten years that the study was made. The study took eight months to complete.

"The population projections demand that we do something," said Brother Ferdinand Leyva, C.F.A., administrator for the hospital.

At the time the study was proposed, Brother Ferdinand said it would take into consideration the fact that St. Alexius is interested in seeing that all the health care needs of area residents are fulfilled.

Brother Ferdinand cautioned that the report or master plan consists of recommendations of what is needed and is not in itself a pronouncement of what will be done.

He called it a "guideline" for expansion. He added, however, that the hospital will probably abide by the recommendations made in the master plan.

Brother Ferdinand said the hospital's board is studying the plan and that he is in the process of appointing a committee to study ways in which it could be implemented.

He could not say in what phases expansion would take place. He added that a news release would be forthcoming next week.

St. Alexius Hospital opened its doors to patients in June, 1966, following two years of construction. It is operated by the Alexian Brothers who have operated for more than 100 years, Alexian Brothers Hospital, 1200 W. Belden, Chicago.

Board Spending

The Elk Grove Village Board Tuesday voted to approve a policy statement in which the village president, village trustees, and village clerk could spend up to $100 on travel and meeting expenses without board approval.

Trustee Charles Zetek, chairman of the personnel committee, made the recommendation after having been asked to review the board's expense account policy in the light of criticism aimed at the village president by two trustees.

Zetek said his recommendation, the same one made a year ago but not voted on then, was predicated on the fact that the board should have enough faith in persons to let them spend $100 without board approval.

ALL THE TRUSTEES, with the exception of Tom Ullmann who abstained, voted to approve the policy as recommended by Zetek.

Ullmann is against the village board's policy of paying expenses of Village President Jack Pahl. He believes Pahl's expenses should come out of his $2,400 salary as village president.

Trustee Eugene Keith opposes Pahl's representing the village in the state legislature without the board's approval.

WHEN THE VILLAGE pays expenses the board has the right to prior knowledge, said Keith.

Keith said he is against some of the legislation that Pahl has supported, especially the granting of additional power to tax without referendum.

Testifying on this type of legislation should be discussed with the board, Keith said.

Pahl said he did not testify on the revenue articles up for consideration before the legislature but for home rule.

Pahl has visited Springfield on several occasions this past session as village president and chairman of the Council of Governments.

KEITH ALSO BROUGHT up a future trip by Pahl to Washington, D.C., in which Pahl has been invited to attend a conference on urban problems July 25.

The board voted to authorize Pahl to make the trip but not spend more than $125 for travel, room, and board.

Keith voted in favor of the motion, though he said it was of "nebulous value." Trustee Ullmann voted against the motion, which won 5-1.

IN OTHER ACTION, the board voted to: —issue a permit to a firm wanting to put a pipeline in the village.

—allow St. Alexius Hospital free use of village water for one year.

—authorize annexation agreements with Centex Corp. for 100 acres and with VFW Post 9284 for 1 1/4 acres.

—authorize the awarding of a $79,000 contract with Chicago Bridge and Iron Co. for construction of a one million gallon water reservoir near Well No. 6 at Greenleaf Avenue and Illinois 83.

No action was taken on a recommendation to increase the authorized strength of the police and fire departments.

Students See School Changes

Plans for a more liveable high school for the Rolling Meadows area were shown Monday to the high school Dist. 214 school board.

Saying "I was asked to be succinct," architect Alden Orput ticked off close to a dozen changes in the Rolling Meadows high school plans made in the last two weeks.

Many of the changes had been suggested by a group of 10 students who reviewed the plans on two occasions, but Orput also pointed out on arguments intended to satisfy earlier criticisms from school board members.

The architect said the Rolling Meadows school will have a broader main foyer facing onto Central Road, with access to the gymnasium making it possible for sports crowds to be directed into that area quickly.

BOARD MEMBERS HAD worried that the early plans for the new school brought visitors directly into the cluttered student commons area. The revised plans avoid that.

Students asked that the building have a courtyard area like one at Forest View High School.

Orput said the Rolling Meadows school cannot have a closed courtyard. Instead the new plans call for the new school to have two courtyards, one adjacent to the main entrance of the building and another further to the east and adjoining the library and central office area.

Orput suggested the eastern courtyard could be used for reading groups as well as student lounging in good weather.

Homeowners to the east of the 40-acre high school site will have the high school building between them and the lighted football field and tennis court areas.

The students asked for more open dining area and criticized an earlier plan in which one of two student eating areas would be enclosed. The plans shown the board Monday had both cafeteria eating areas open to the main school corridor.

Approve Yard Variation

One proposed side-yard variation in Hoffman Estates was approved at the village board meeting Monday night and another was deferred for more study.

The board approved the plans of Richard Ekstrom, 251 Milton Lane, to add 13 feet to his home, widening his garage to hold two cars. The zoning board of appeals had recommended to variation, saying the addition would enhance the neighborhood.

Plans of David Olsen, 299 Monticello Road, were deferred until a report is submitted by Village Public Works Supt. Wally Bohm.

It was voted to charge residents not in the Hanover Park Park District area an amount twice the regular fee for all park district programs offered, with a $5 minimum. ORPUT said the students pointed out that having two cafeteria areas would give them one place to dance and another to talk.

"They said they couldn't talk over the music of the dancing so they had to go somewhere else," he said.

The high school plans now call for only two access roads, both of them feeding onto Central Road. The school board asked Orput to estimate the cost of adding a third road at the rear of the property feeding either to the east or to the west across Salt Creek.

and driveway. Questioning by trustees revealed that the driveway would cross a storm sewer, and a grate presently on the property would be in the middle of the driveway.

TRUSTEES wanted Olsen to assume all possible damages both to the sewer under the driveway and to his driveway as a result of any repairs made to the sewer. Olsen did not say whether he would agree.

Trustee Bruce Lind also requested Olsen to agree not to park in the driveway because parked cars could be a vision hazard to motorists. Olsen refused.

The plans are scheduled for discussion again at next week's board meeting.

Willow Rd. One-Way

The shortcut used by Schaumburg Township commuters trying to avoid detours and delays through the construction area on Higgins Road has come to an end.

Commuters will no longer be able to cut through the Lexington Fields subdivision. Unhappy members of the Lexington Fields Homeowners Association appeared at Tuesday's village board meeting and suggested that Willow Road be made a one-way from Meacham to Columbine.

After considering several alternatives, the board passed an ordinance making Willow one-way west between 6 and 9 a.m. and one-way east between 4 and 7 p.m.

A squad car will be stationed in the subdivision "to put teeth" in the ordinance. Drivers violating the new one-ways will be subject to fines.

THE COMMUTERS are trying to miss traffic jams at Meacham and Higgins Road during rush hours and cut through Lexington Fields. Streets in the subdivision were not built for that kind of traffic and it's creating a hazard for Lexington Fields residents, especially children, Mayor Robert O. Atcher said.

Thomas O'Rourke, president of the Lexington Fields homeowners, said 53 families in the subdivision have signed a petition requesting the one-way on Willow.

Other possible solutions included making Martingale and Lexington Roads one-way, but this would have also inconvenienced subdivision residents.

Another rejected solution was putting up no right turn signs at Willow and no left turn signs at Martingale and Lexington. This also would have inconvenienced Lexington Fields residents.

Dr. Martin Coniglio, a member of the fire and police commission and zoning board of appeals and a resident of the subdivision, said he was against making Willow one-way.

"I WILL BE inconvenienced considerably. I'll have to leave and return by the clock and calendar," he said.

Chester Mayner, a member of the zoning board and subdivision resident, said a police count showed some 80 cars traveling through Lexington Fields in a 45 minute period during rush hour.

"The problem occurred before the widening of Higgins Road started. It's the same cars. What we need is education for those drivers. Traffic is backed up in both directions in the morning. I can't get out of my driveway," Mayner said.

Dr. Coniglio said that making Willow one-way will present danger from people being forced to turn around in the subdivision.

Residents said drivers don't slow down to normal subdivision speed limits.

O'Rourke was asked to return to the Aug. 12 board meeting and report on how effective the one-way system is.

7 Are Appointed

Seven appointments to various Hoffman Estates positions were approved Monday night by the village board.

Appointed to the plan commission were John Gappa, Michael L. Redmond and Richard C. Regan. Mrs. Helen Wozniak was appointed to the zoning board of appeals, the Rev. Thomas C. Truscott and Ronald G. Stewart were named to the youth commission and Mrs. Geraldine A. Deguisne was approved as health officer.

Gappa has served the village as a member of the fire department and is employed as a design engineer for Packaging Corp. His term on the commission expires April 30, 1970.

Redmond is employed as assistant director of Louis A. Weiss Memorial Hospital and has done graduate work at Northwestern in hospital administration. His term expires in 1971.

FORMER PRESIDENT of the Regular Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township and campaign manager of the village Republicans in the April election, Regan is employed as a sales and marketing manager for Standard Kollsman. He is currently a member of the YMCA board of directors. Regan's term runs until 1972.

Stewart is an assistant professor in sociology at Harper College and an active participant in several professional organizations. His term on the youth commission expires April 30, 1972.

Truscott is pastor of the Church of the Cross in Hoffman Estates and was appointed for a four-year term on the commission.

Mrs. Wozniak has been active in several women's clubs and church organizations and formerly was employed as a bookkeeper and Girl Friday. Her term on the zoning board of appeals expires in 1971.

Mrs. Deguisne is a registered nurse and has worked on hospital staffs, as a private duty nurse and school nurse. She also is active in several public service organizations involving medical training. The board also approved a salary of $600 for her term expiring next year.

Crews having completed a most brilliant military career," and for services to the Marine Corps League and other civilian organizations.

Elgin Offers Art Degrees

The "Triple A" — an Associate of Arts in Art — has been added to the list of degrees conferred by Elgin Community College.

Approval was received earlier this month from the Illinois Junior College Board, and the first class will be admitted to this new curriculum in September.

The two year program provides an educational opportunity on the junior college level for the individual who has an interest in the visual arts and who plans to pursue art as a career. It includes art oriented courses as well as general liberal arts subjects required for transfer to four year institutions.

ECC CURRENTLY offers six courses in art: art appreciation (primarily for non art majors), sculpture, jewelry, painting, drawing and design. According to E. Max von Isser, chairman of the college's art department, printmaking will be added in the fall.

Three other courses, history of art photography and ceramics, will become part of the curriculum as soon as facilities are available.

Lindstrom Answers Critics

The Rev. Paul D. Lindstrom, pastor of the Church of Christian Liberty in Prospect Heights, answered charges that his church is abusing the American flag.

Last week Larry Brandau and Scott Ehret of Prospect Heights, two Hersey High School seniors, revealed they had been seeking a citizen's complaint against the church for allegedly abusing the flag.

The two seniors said they had noticed for the past four months that the flag is displayed on church property 24 hours a day, regardless of the weather.

Brandau said he asked Rev. Lindstrom to either take the flag down in the evenings or illuminate it, after he noticed it was still flying late at night.

Rev. Lindstrom denies having ever been contacted by Brandau. "No one has asked me to take the flag down or to illuminate it," he said.

"We have had floodlights (on the flag) since September. Until then we would take the flag down each night," Rev. Lindstrom stated.

Rev. Lindstrom did admit that about three or four times in the last 10 months

Since moving to the Chicago area, Mrs. Westgor has studied at the Art Institute and taken art instruction under June Wilhelm and Joan Thompson.

Mrs. Westgor has previously exhibited her paintings at the Park Ridge Art Fair and the Des Plaines Art Fair. She resides at 301 Blair Lane in Hoffman Estates.

Teacher Economy Move in Dist. 23 Outlined

by SUE CARSON

A plan aimed at promoting economy in the Dist. 23 schools by initiating a ratio of three assistant teachers to one teacher holding a college degree was outlined by Ralph Van Petten, president of the Prospect Heights Improvement Association. He made his recommendation at Monday's school board meeting.

Under Van Petten's plan, the teacher with a degree would supervise 100 students and three assistant teachers. The teacher would prepare lesson plans and teach special subjects, rotating between four classes of 25 students each. Assistants would handle routine subjects in the absence of the teacher.

Van Petten said this plan would save the district approximately $100,000 in operating cost per year.

VAN PETTEN suggested that the degreed teacher who would have supervisory responsibilities, be paid a salary base of $8,500 or $9,000 a year. He proposed that the assistants be paid $3 an hour.

Van Petten listed suggested qualifications for a teaching assistant: the person must live in the school district, have a minimum of an eighth grade education, have a proficiency in English and have passed qualifying tests determined by the school administration.

"Under the present system, classroom teachers for 1,000 students would cost approximately $329,000 as opposed to $210,000 per 1,000 students if teaching assistants were to replace three out of four teachers," Van Petten said.

Van Petten said he talked with many people in the community and thought there would be no problem locating teaching assistants who could perform proficiently with a week of indoctrination.

"THIS WOULD BE a step in the direction of giving education back to the community and would certainly lead to upgrading education in this district," Van Petten said.

He added that the only drawback to the program was that it was against the rules as they now stand.

"However, since laws can be bent and changed, I see no reason why an exception could not be made in our case, since these exceptions are constantly being made in other areas," he stated.

Dist. 23 Supt. Edward Grodsky stated he would look into Van Petten's proposal, but thought the plan would be illegal.

Membership in NIPC Urged

Members of the Hoffman Estates Village Board Monday night heard a representative of the Northeast Illinois Planning Commission (NIPC) explain the activities of the commission in an attempt to get the village to join.

NIPC's representative, Carl Genrich, appeared at the request of the board.

The activities of NIPC are divided into three responsibilities, Genrich said. They include work in the areas of open space, air pollution and water supply, effecting a comprehensive plan adopted by the commission last year and primarily assisting municipalities in their planning responsibilities.

Operations of NIPC are financed by $100,000 per biennium in state funds and about $30,000 per year in contributions from member municipalities, Genrich said. He did not mention how much Hoffman Estates would be expected to contribute.

IN A QUESTION PERIOD, Genrich said that NIPC limits its service to groups of villages with a single problem, rather than the problems of individual municipalities. "It's more like working with the Northwest Municipal Conference," he said.

Village Pres. Frederick Downey told Genrich that several mayors in the area believed NIPC was working against the villages rather than for them.

Downey cited the area of transportation in which mayors were under the impression that NIPC was promoting too much mass transportation planning. "People living in this area have elected the automobile as their means of transportation except for a few commuter lines."

Genrich explained, at the request of trustees, that under the federal planning act, states have to appoint an agency to review regional plans and approve them before requesting federal funds for a project.

"THE COMMISSION as a matter of policy tries to promote development in certain areas which will be well provided with public services. Therefore, we try to get the various agencies to cooperate and moving in the same direction," he said.

Discussion of whether Hoffman Estates will join NIPC was placed on the agenda for Monday's meeting.

"Persons without at least 30 hours of college coursework are not allowed to supervise classrooms in the absence of a degreed teacher," Grodsky said. "I honestly think the law would have to be changed before the plan could be implemented, but it's worth looking into." He said he would discuss the plan with officials at the State Department of Public Instruction, but added the plan could not be implemented in the fall even if approved.

"THIS IS A VERY interesting proposal, and worth looking into," commented Board Pres. Robert LeForge.

However Gerald McGovern, assistant principal at MacArthur Junior High School, opposed the plan. He stated he thought teaching assistants would "experience great difficulty" because of a lack of professional training.

80 Acres Are Disannexed

The Hoffman Estates Village Board Monday night approved the disannexation of two 4-acre pieces of land so the Village of Streamwood can annex them.

The areas are owned by Carl Klehm, a nursery owner in Arlington Heights, and are completely surrounded by Streamwood.

Streamwood will provide sewer and water facilities if the land remains zoned for commercial development, according to correspondence from the village to Hoffman Estates.

The ordinances brought a protest from Trustee Virginia Hayter, who said that the board should have requested some kind of donation in return for the disannexation.

"WE'RE GIVING away land and getting nothing in return. Streamwood is making a profit, Klehm is making a profit, and we're making nothing," she said.

Trustee William Cowin said the village is getting rid of a problem. "The land is a liability because it is not contiguous to Hoffman Estates, and we cannot provide water and sewer lines."

Other village trustees agreed, but said it wouldn't have hurt to request some kind of donation.

Sewer, Flood Bill on Governor's Desk

by MIKE KLEIN

A bill recently passed by the state legislature will provide the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) with $380 million for extension of sewer systems, construction of sewage-treatment plants and flood prevention.

Vinton Bacon, general superintendent of MSD, said the bill is still unsigned but is on Governor Richard Ogilvie's desk and should be signed soon.

If the bill is signed within the next month, Bacon said the MSD would be able to offer the nonreferendum bonds for sale by September or October of this year.

The money will be used for a 10-year plan to help alleviate the "great overflow" when it rains heavily. But Bacon hopes to have the project completed within seven years.

In a telephone interview, Bacon stressed that this was "by no means a complete solution to the problem. It will merely be a big step forward in helping solve the problem."

BY PASSING THE BILL, the state legislature has enabled the MSD to save approximately $2 million and two years' time. "They gave us tremendous cooperation and understanding," Bacon stated.

Although the plan to clean up Cook County waterways will cost an estimated $793 million, the rest of the expenditure will be picked up by the federal and state governments.

The northwest suburbs stand to get $121,092,000 worth of improvements in the long-range program.

Projects that will go into effect when the money is available are: a Poplar Creek reclamation plant and interception sewers, $14,194,500; Hanover reclamation plant additions, $5,165,000; a Salt Creek reclamation plant and interceptor sewers, $57,777,000, and an O'Hare reclamation plant and interceptors sewers, $45,856,000.

Flood control programs which will be adopted for the immediate area will include reservoirs in Buffalo Creek, Salt Creek in both Palatine and Arlington Heights, Willow-Higgins Creek and the Mount Prospect area.

BACON ASSERTED the Northwest suburbs would get preferential treatment when spending bond money because of its growth rate. The south and southwest suburbs would also benefit heavily, he added.

Bacon said the $380 million in bonds could be issued without raising the tax rate as the levy for construction bonds would be dropped.

The construction fund levy came to 14 cents per $100 assessed valuation in 1968 but the 1970 bond and interest levy is predicted at four cents per $100 assessed value.

Over the 20-year bonding period, the bond and interest tax rate would never rise over 13 cents per $100, the superintendent pointed out.

He said it would be cheaper to taxpayers in the long-run to support five to six percent interest costs, rather than the average ten per cent, per year inflation costs.

Water treatment has become an important issue over recent years across the entire nation.

IT HAS BEEN projected by some authorities that by the year 2000, the population-water balance will be out of proportion and there will no longer be enough water available to serve the demands of a population which will be pushing the 230 million mark. This is especially true in western states and the northeast.

In Illinois alone, estimates show that approximately 2.65 billion gallons per day will be used by 1980. By the year 2020, the figure is expected to be 3.7 billion gallons per day. It must be stressed that these figures represent only municipal water use. Rural water use places an additional stress on the state's water resources.

Perhaps one of the saddest cases of lack of water treatment is Lake Erie. This lake which once was a great supplier of water and fish now is "dead." There is no organic life in the lake. Much of it is covered by an oil slick. Lake Erie, which could have been one of the cures to a drastic water shortage in the northeastern states was left to pollution and subsequent waste of a great natural resource.

With the new techniques now available for reconditioning water, the passage of the bill to provide the MSD with funds for the necessary projects will prove an important move in Illinois water planning.

He Heads Ballot

Top spot on the ballot for Third Senatorial District Convention delegates is held by Eugene L. Griffin, 37, of 603 E. Thornetree Terrace, Arlington Heights, who did not announce his candidacy until Monday.

Griffin is one of 12 who filed Monday to run for the two delegate seats from the Third Senatorial District.

Four candidates will be elected in the Sept. 22 primary and two of those will be elected from this district in the Nov. 18 Con-Con election. The Third Senatorial District includes the townships of Palatine, Elk Grove, Wheeling, Schaumburg, Hanover, Barrington and part of North-GRIFIN, a practicing lawyer for 10 years, specializes in tax problems. He feels a Constitutional Convention would best serve the interests of all people of Illinois if it were composed of ordinary citizens, lawyers, labor leaders, educators, financiers, persons in government and other relevant occupations.

"The constitution can be a key instrument in proposing revenue reform, long overdue," he says. "A more flexible revenue article will enable legislators to explore new revenue sources to supplement real and personal property taxes."

"Such an article would make it possible to reduce the inequitable burden now shouldered by the real property owner."

License Deadline Near for Trucks

The deadline for displaying new fiscal year license plates on most trucks and other second-division vehicles is now nearly a week away.

Midnight, July 15 is the deadline for having the 1968-70 plates displayed on the vehicles. At present, registration totals about 550,000 of an expected 965,000 according to a release from Secretary of State Paul Powell's office.

Enforcement agencies have been notified in Illinois and other states so enforcement can begin in all areas at the same time.

IN 1967, registration of most second-division vehicles was changed from a calendar to a fiscal year basis effective this year. The plates are valid from July 1, 1968 to June 30, 1970.

Second-division vehicles which remain on a calendar year basis include those issued M plates, vehicles owned by governmental units other than state and federal; BM plates, local buses, BS plates, school buses operated under contract with school districts, FRM plates and agricultural equipment.

Young Urges Support of Nixon in War, ABM

by ED MURNANE
Atty. Samuel H. Young of Glenview, one of 12 candidates seeking the Republican nomination for the 13th Congressional District seat, feels the American people must support the President on the issues of Vietnam and the ABM (anti-ballistic missile).
Young told Herald reporters his views on the major issues of the Congressional campaign at a press conference yesterday at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel. He said the Vietnam war is just "part of an over-all confrontation between the free world and the Communist world" and the United States must not back down in this struggle.

"UNLIKE ANY OTHER WAR in history, the public doesn't support the country in this one," Young said. "And I think that's because they're confused."
"We can't look on this war as an individual situation. It's part of the over-all confrontation," he said.

He said one of the reasons why the free world-Communist world struggle has been at a minimum recently has been the internal struggle within the Communist countries.
"It could break out on any of several different fronts very soon," Young said.
The Northfield Township Republican leader said he believes President Nixon

"has things moving now, that we'll get out of Vietnam by the end of next year, either through negotiations or by letting the South Vietnamese take over the fighting."
HE CALLED FOR PUBLIC support of the President "because he has to negotiate with the North Vietnamese and if they feel we will pull out, they can sit back and relax at the negotiating table."
Young said the ABM system is on the same principle — it's part of the over-all confrontation between the free world and the Communist world.
"I can see a compromise coming within the next few weeks, and I don't think this will be an issue within the next month or so," he said.

"But I do think we must stand behind the President on this. He wants the authority to spend the funds for it, and I think if he gets it, it will urge the Russians to sit down and talk."
Young said the United States must stay "militarily stronger than Russia."
He also called for an end to foreign aid, "to be replaced with a more carefully controlled system of foreign investments."

Young said he feels his experience in the party and his age (46) should work in his favor.
He is former securities commissioner of Illinois and was assistant secretary of state from 1956 to 1958.
Young has served as Northfield Township GOP committeeman since 1962 and was chairman of the Republican judicial slate-making committee in Cook County last year.

Will Press for Endorsement

Republican candidates for the 13th Congressional District seat will make their push for endorsement in two townships next week, Northfield and Palatine.
The Northfield Township GOP organization announced this week it will hold a candidates' night July 16, at the Glenview Community Church, Glenview.

Thursday night, the Palatine Township GOP will hear the candidates.
Northfield Republicans will make their endorsement July 23. Palatine's GOP is expected to endorse around the end of July.
Northfield GOP Committeeman Samuel Young is one of the 12 candidates and is considered likely to get the Northfield endorsement.

ACCORDING TO Raymond A. Morley, Northfield GOP campaign director, the candidates will be allowed 10 minutes each for a presentation that will cover political background and political philosophy.
The candidates will speak in alphabetical order.

In addition to Young, the candidates are Philip Crane of Winnetka, Brian Duff of Wilmette, State Rep. Alan Johnston of Kenilworth, Gerald Marks of Wilmette, Joseph Mathewson of Winnetka, John Nimrod of Skokie, David Roe of Glenview, Yale Roe (no relation) of Winnetka, State Rep. Eugene Schlickman of Arlington, Alban Weber of Evanston and Lar (America First) Daly of Chicago.

Johnston Opens His Headquarters

"Johnston for Congress" headquarters have been opened in Wilmette by State Rep. Alan R. Johnston of Kenilworth, one of 12 Republican candidates for the 13th Congressional District seat.
The headquarters, at 1223 Green Bay Road, will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays through Saturdays and from 2 to 5 p.m. on Sundays.
The "Johnston for Congress" committee will hold an open house in the headquarters between 4 and 6 p.m. Saturday.
Johnston is a four-term member of the Illinois House of Representatives.

YOUNG SAID THE public "is tired of foreign aid. Look at the money we spend in South America and the reception we get down there."
"The public also is opposed to spending that allows money to be paid to the Blackstone Rangers to keep peace in Chicago," he said.

Young said he is opposed to relief programs that "allow people to collect money and not go to work."
He said there is "no question we must give some help to black people, but along Republican lines. We must get these people out of the ghettos and into jobs, give them better motivation and better training."
Young also called for an end to campus disruptions that allow students to forcibly take over offices and prevent other students from attending classes.
"STUDENTS WHO TAKE the law into their own hands should be expelled," Young said.

Foster News Director For Mathewson Drive

Jack Foster, former Chicago Tribune reporter, has been named news director for the 13th Congressional District campaign of Joseph Mathewson, Winnetka Republican.
Mathewson is one of 12 GOP candidates seeking the party's nomination to replace former U.S. Rep. Donald Rumsfeld, who resigned in May to become director of the Office of Economic Opportunity.
FOSTER, ALSO of Winnetka, was deputy chief of information for the Illinois Sesquicentennial Commission during the past two years.
He began his newspaper career with the City News Bureau in 1934 and worked for the Tribune until he enlisted in the Navy in World War II. He covered the Allied landing at Omaha Beach on D-Day for Stars and Stripes, a service newspaper.

Military Fee Set

Members of the Illinois National Guard and Naval Militia who purchase cars between now and Dec. 1 will have to pay the same half-year license fees as persons who are not members of either of those organizations, Secretary of State Paul Powell announced.

In future years, they will have to pay the same full annual fees as other motor vehicle owners, Powell said.

The recent session of the General Assembly enacted legislation repealing the $2 registration fee previously offered to National Guard and Naval Militia members.

MOST LEGISLATION changing license fee structures becomes effective at the start of the next licensing period, but this measure became effective July 1 and consequently applies to any purchases between now and Dec. 1.

The present fee schedule of $8, $12, $18, and $24, depending upon horsepower, remains in effect until Dec. 1, meaning that the fees to be paid during that period would be $4, $6, $9 and $12, respectively.

Roe Appoints Campaign Head

Donald S. Lowitz, 1968 campaign manager for former U.S. Rep. Donald L. Rumsfeld, has been named campaign manager for David A. Roe, one of 12 Republicans seeking to replace Rumsfeld in the 13th District.

Lowitz, 40, of Glenview, had been a campaign aide to Rumsfeld since 1962.

"After meeting with many of the candidates and after much serious deliberation, I have concluded that Dave Roe is best qualified to make the kind of congressman I want to represent me," Lowitz said.

HE SAID THE new 13th District congressman "must have the leadership qualities required by this district and must be able to continue the record of communication between congressman and constituents which has been the hallmark of congressional representation through the terms of Mrs. Margaret Stitt Church and Rumsfeld."

Lowitz has been active in the New Trier Township Republican Organization, serving as a member of the board of directors and vice president of the Republican workshop from 1964 to 1967.

He is a partner in the Chicago law firm of Lowitz, Vihon, Lowitz and Stone. He is a former assistant U.S. attorney for the Northern District of Illinois.

Three Villages Rank in Top 20 For Car Fines

Three Northwest suburban communities rank among the top 20 Cook County towns in the amount of traffic fine collections during the last five years, the Cook County Circuit Court has announced.

More than $12 million has been received by Cook County municipal districts in the last five years.

Arlington Heights ranks 12th on the list, with $261,978 collected.

Elk Grove is 16th with $222,380 and Schaumburg is 17th with $213,377.

OTHERS IN THIS area, and their rank and amount received, are Mount Prospect, 28, $123,968; Palatine, 30, $122,065; Wheeling, 51, $90,427; Hanover Park, 54, $88,460; Hoffman Estates, 71, $86,999; Streamwood, 72, $46,429; Rolling Meadows, 81, $45,056; Buffalo Grove, 107, $14,447; and Inverness, 115, $5,516.

The top five recipients are among the largest in the Cook County area. They are Evanston, Oak Park, Cicero, Skokie and Des Plaines. Evanston received $519,631.

MATTHEW J. Danaher, clerk of the court, said the survey was made possible by the installation of a new data processing system in the clerk's office.

"Usually, when a town has a substantial population, it will have larger amounts of revenue than small communities," Danaher said.

"The exception to this rule occurs when smaller towns have an unusual number of state highways or thoroughfares running through their village limits," he said.

Teenagers Attend Mock Legislative Sessions

by SANDRA BROWNING

Four high school juniors from Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect took a week off from their summer jobs recently to become a state representative, a mayor, a city clerk and a circuit court judge.

During the last week of June, the four went to the American Legion's Premier

'How to Study' Course

A man who deals daily with the problems of freshman students at the University of Purdue North Central Campus will teach the "How to Study in College" course at the Elgin YMCA.

Professor James R. Blackwell is involved in the counseling program for new freshmen and supervises and coordinates the entire academic counseling program on the North Central Campus.

The "How to Study in College" course will meet at the Elgin YMCA, 111 N. Channing St., Aug. 4 through Aug. 8 each evening from 7 to 9 p.m.

Registration deadline is July 15. Some registrations will be accepted after July 15, but the enrollees will have to pay a late registration fee.

BLACKWELL is assistant dean and associate professor of industrial engineering technology at the Purdue University North Central Campus.

He is president of the consulting firm of Blackwell, Bobillo and Associates, Inc.

Only high school graduates may enroll in the course, which is open to students who have attended a year of college and feel they need the help or to adults planning to return to their studies.

For registration information, contact the Elgin YMCA, 695-1100.

Boys State held on the Illinois State Fair Grounds in Springfield.

The teenagers agreed the week of self-government was worthwhile and gave them a better understanding of government's structure. They said they also liked meeting boys from other areas of the state.

The group said they wanted to thank Merle Guild Post 208 of the American Legion, Arlington Heights, for sponsoring their week's stay in Springfield.

THE FOUR WHO attended and their high schools were Bob Boer, Arlington High School; Mike Dorosh, Forest View

High School; Dan Kivlahan, St. Viator High School; and Tom Ruprecht, John Hersey High School.

"It wasn't just a group of guys," Dorosh said. The boys attending Boys' State were chosen because of school participation records and civic interest. Thus, every boy there was civic minded and really interested in getting involved, Dorosh said.

The concept of Boys' State is to provide juniors in high school with training in the functional aspects of citizenship. When the teenagers arrived at the fair grounds, they were divided into two political parties. The boys sleeping in the top bunks belonged to one party, the boys in the bottom bunk were in the other party.

few days to be elected, establish itself and get to work not many bills were passed by the state congress and on to the governor. The supreme court did not have a chance to rule on any cases because there wasn't enough time.

SINCE POLITICAL affiliation was decided by upper or lower bunk, there wasn't much party loyalty, Dorosh said.

Ruprecht said one issue which bothered many of the boys was that they were not allowed to discuss any controversial issues. He said congress passed a bill to change the Boys' State constitution so that next year the participants could discuss and pass resolutions on issues, including the war in Vietnam and lowering the voting age.

"We're getting old enough to discuss these issues. If the congress of Boys' State passed a resolution, maybe someone would listen to us," he said.

The teenagers told numerous stories including one city taking a tin can, filling it with water, and naming it a park.

BAER, WHO SERVED as a circuit court judge, said one case was brought before him from the board of health.

One boy attending the Boys' State hadn't taken a shower for two days. His punishment was to stand in the shower for an hour.

Employees Get 5 Per Cent Pay Raise

by RICHARD BARTON

DuPage County employees were given a 3 per cent across-the-board pay increase Tuesday after voting and discussion split the DuPage County Board of Supervisors nearly 50-50.

Several attempts were made to hike the pay raise up to 10 per cent. After that failed, an attempt at passing a 7½ per cent increase was tried, but failed.

The raises will be retroactive to July 1, as promised by county board chairman Paul Ronske two weeks ago when the pay proposal was first brought up for a vote. The matter was referred back to the Wages and Benefits Committee for further study. The increase affects all salaried employees.

Arguments for a larger pay increase included a rumored threat of a mass walk-out of employees unless they were given more money.

"I WILL TELL you plainly unless you (the county board) give better than a 5 per cent across-the-board increase, you will have a mass walkout of dissatisfied employees on your hands," Donald J. Wall, Bloomington Township assistant supervisor.

"The forest preserve employees, the sheriff's department and the highway department have received much more in pay raises only recently, as high as 15 per cent."

According to Pat Saviano, Bloomington Township supervisor, the highway department first asked for a 30 per cent pay increase. He said a compromise of a 15 per cent increase was reached.

John Earl, Downers Grove assistant supervisor and chairman of the wages and benefits committee, said the people in the county's public works department who had similar jobs to those in the highway department would get equal pay. He said the matter of equal job, equal pay between departments was under study.

EARL FIRST introduced the motion for a 5 per cent increase two weeks ago, but had it thrown back at him by the board for study.

Pat Riedy, supervisor from Lisle Township, said the new state income tax of 2½ per cent would eat up most of the meager Earl's motion to read a 10 per cent in 5 per cent raise. He moved to amend crease. The amendment motion lost, 14-13.

Then, proponents of higher pay brought the lack of insurance benefits presently given to county employees as a reason for higher pay.

EARL REPLIED THAT fringe benefits were to be kept separate from pay considerations. He added that an insurance group was making a study of the employee benefits and that a program will be introduced soon. He also said a 10 per cent increase would put many employees above surrounding industry which couldn't be allowed.

The Way We See It

Cooperation: It Pays

Most Northwest suburbs have failed to meet the need for comprehensive social services demanded by expanding populations. In addition, there has been too little effort to fully utilize existing facilities, resources, and personnel through sharing of specialized services already available from village, school, library, park district, and youth agencies as well as other areas of government.

There are some notable exceptions where strides are being made to pinpoint such community needs.

Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, and Prospect Heights are served by TORCH, a voluntary organization which is successfully providing a medium for cooperation among municipal, school, church, social and civic organizations.

Elk Grove Community Services is a publicly-financed agency which deals with "people-oriented problems" not otherwise served by local government. It does not engage in social service; it serves as a vehicle for social service by providing a communications link between government and the people, and by exercising initiative in developing new community programs and services.

In Palatine and Schaumburg townships, Board Pres. Lyle Johnson of High School Dist. 211 recently proposed establishment of a coordinating agency to achieve better cooperation and coordination of recreational, educational, and municipal programs in the two townships.

Similar assessments are lacking for other communities, however. We hope the efforts of TORCH, Elk Grove Community Services, and High School Dist. 211 will serve as an example for other Northwest suburbs.

Too long unrecognized and untended are the growing social problems of individual adults, families, youth, the aged, handicapped or disabled.

Solving such problems requires community-wide cooperation and coordination in providing family counseling, day care services for pre-school children, psychological assistance for police departments, mental health facilities, emergency homemaker services, drug addiction treatment and education, community health centers, and corrective treatment for disturbed or delinquent youth.

A community coordinating agency could discuss, evaluate, and help develop such programs and services. It could gather together the enormous reservoir of untapped community talent and resource, identify areas of unmet need, establish and maintain channels of communication, and coordinate programs to enable more effective utilization of existing resources.

Through the exercise of community leadership and initiative, the coordinating agency could begin to build those bonds of shared interest and respect, of concern and cooperation that make a community more than a collection of strangers.

Uncanny Silence of Progress

by MARY REIFSCHNEIDER

The silence that has come to Hanover Park since the April election is uncanny. It's just not the way things have been for the past several years.

According to people in the know, the new mayor, Richard Baker, is quietly and efficiently learning his new job and solving some of the problems.

One group that is pleased with Baker is Homeowners to Eliminate Loss of Property (HELP). Their problems with a local builder seem to be solved. The repairs they asked the builder to take care of in January were made after Baker took office in May.

The new mayor worked successfully with the state highway division to have the proposed Elgin-O'Hare Expressway skirt the village to the south instead of cutting it in half by following a more northerly route.

BAKER ALSO SEEMS to be drawing Hanover Park out of the isolated shell it's been in for so long. He's attended the Northwest Municipal Conference meetings, a positive step toward involving the village with its neighbors.

One of his priorities after taking office was annexation of land to the village south of Hanover Park's present borders. This has been accomplished with a small tract zoned for apartments. Hanover Park now has a toe into DuPage County, the only area where the village can expand.

The Baker administration also is giving priority to a master plan and the updating of building codes, building ordinances and subdivision codes. It's hard to believe that the village existed 10 years without professional planning. And once a master plan is completed, residents can look forward to a more orderly development. Development in the past has been at the whims of the builders.

Baker has pledged to give the plan commission and zoning board of appeals more of a voice.

During the past administration, the plan commission was hampered in its efforts to hire professional planners to draw up a master plan because ex-Pres. Eugene Domingue and a majority of his trustees did not see the need for one.

RECOMMENDATIONS of the zoning board were often cast aside. But that, too, seems to be a thing of the past. New trustees, like Rev. David Eugh, who served on the zoning board for several years, are aware of the importance of auxiliary boards.

It looks like it will be a good four years for the Baker administration.

Several problems still remain, including the perennial flooding of the creek in the eastern portion of the village. The creek, known as the west branch of the DuPage River, has been a bugaboo since development began in Hanover Highlands and Longmeadows.

Residents in Longmeadows South have sent petitions to the village board. Residents are tired of having backed-up sewage in their homes.

THE DOMINGUE administration could not solve the flooding problem. It remains as a challenge for Baker.

Other things the village board should be working towards include the formation of a chamber of commerce and hiring a village manager.

A former trustee said after this spring's bitter election, "We lost. But this new group will serve four years and be defeated by another reform group. That's the way it is in Hanover Park."

That won't necessarily be the case if Baker's administration remains responsive to the needs of Hanover Park residents.

Shelter Program A Cruel Delusion

A nice kettle of fish was produced in the recent report on the $1.6 billion taxpayers have spent on civil defense shelters in the last two decades.

After all the propaganda, the thousands of political patronage jobs, and the money spent on building shelters to protect us from nuclear fallout, half of the nation's 195,000 shelters are not even stocked with basic supplies such as food and water. And those that do have such bare bones provisions are hard to find.

Even if the shelters were available and able to house and feed millions of Americans for lengthy stays, most are not equipped to withstand blast and firestorm effects of a nuclear attack. They might well turn out to be mass crematoriums.

In the light of modern weapons and the capability of the world's great powers to deliver them, the shelter program is a cruel delusion. But it has created and sustained another bureaucracy which provides jobs for the political faithful, and that's why it lives on.

We hope President Nixon's order this spring for a review of the civil defense program will put a stop to this waste.

News Is News, And Not Always Good

by SANDRA BROWNING

"Today in Arlington Heights a 4-year-old girl crossed the street, safely reaching the other side."

"Trixie Smith, 902 Fictitious Lane, stopped at the corner of Campbell Street and Vail Avenue, looked both ways and waited for a break in the traffic before she crossed the street."

The above could hardly be classified as a news story. If pedestrians crossing that intersection usually didn't get across safely, then it would be news. One criterion for news is that it describes an unusual event.

For example, readers are more interested in reading about a man who raises baby aardvarks than a man who raises poodles. Aardvark raising is not a common hobby.

The Herald came under fire for its coverage of a drowning in Lake Briarwood in Mount Prospect last month. It was front page news because it was a tragic, uncommon event.

Readers complained that the story was sensationalized. What could be more tragic than a young girl losing her life?

Sandy Browning

PERHAPS WE SHOULD have run the story on the back page of the paper without pictures. Only a few persons would have noticed the story, and more teenagers might take unsupervised swims in the lake and drown.

I often hear village residents criticize newspapers because most of the news is "bad news." When persons say that, it shows how well they read a paper.

Readers forget the "good news" about weddings, births, and volunteer workers who give up their time to help others. People buy papers to read both the good and the bad news, but usually read the bad news first and remember it longer.

If I report that a board held a meeting without notifying the press and the public, I'm pointing out that this is unusual. I'm saying that the board usually adheres to the Open Meetings Law but that in this case, they failed to inform the public and the press of the meeting.

I'M NOT SAYING that the board is trying to take secret action, nor that the board is playing dirty, underhanded tricks on the public.

Another time, I wrote a story about a Board of Local Improvements meeting in which the board's engineer was severely criticized for his handling of a project. I didn't make the story up. I merely told what happened during a meeting and accented the criticism because I thought it was the most important thing that happened during the meeting.

I have not only the right, but the duty, to report what goes on at meetings. If board members argue heatedly about an issue, it should be reported. Citizens should know the stands taken by their officials, both elected and appointed.

IF MY MAIN concern were to write "good news," I wouldn't be doing my job and I would be cheating the public.

How would you like to read a story like the following?

"Park board members last night all agreed to change the procedures for registering for summer activities."

I wouldn't say that any board members questioned the proposal; that might show there was disagreement on the board. I wouldn't say that the park district was in a dilemma and the change was the best way to handle the problem; that would show the Park District in a bad light and would be "bad public relations."

To report more than the mere action a board takes is, according to some people, "stirring up trouble" and "creating issues." But to write only of a board's actions with no explanation is to cheat the public.

I don't stir up trouble or create issues. I just report them and I think the public benefits.

The Fence Post

'ABM Question Is Survival'

In the June 23, 1969, issue of "The Herald" there was an article regarding the speech given by Brig. Gen. Howard Markely on the proposed ABM System.

In my opinion, the principle involved in the ABM question is simply one of national survival. Does America — which has not introduced the new weapons system, defense or offense, for eight years — now have the will to adopt a system proposed by the new administration, or have our public officials lost all will to introduce any measures to defend our nation?

Although many Americans will be deceived by the propaganda of our enemies, our allies — who must depend upon us for their defense, or seek to accommodate with the Soviets — will know the significance of the vote taken by our elected representatives.

Seldom have the communists concentrated on a single issue as strongly as they have for the past two months against President Nixon's proposed anti-ballistic system. The communist newspaper, The Daily World — which instructs party agents where to direct their activities — has been filled with articles designed to organize mass opposition to the mere thought of the United States deploying a defensive system to protect America against a Russian or Chinese nuclear attack.

THE COMMUNIST press reveals that the number one Red objective today is the defeat of all anti-missile proposals, including President Nixon's limited ABM called the Safe Guard. The Daily World Editorial on March 18th gives this directive to all party members: "It is urgent that every union and other peoples organization renew its demand on Congress and the White House that the ABM be abandoned."

Even the Vietnam war has taken second place on the communist propaganda priority list in order to make room for such three inch high Daily World anti-ABM headlines as these: "Cities Menaced by Missile Sites" (February 6), "Congress Ducking Missile Protests" (February 7), "Scientists enter Fight on Missiles" (February 12), "Stop Missile Lobby Rally at Capital" (February 28).

During February and March, The Daily World attacked the ABM in 61 significant articles, 12 editorials, and two clever cartoons. The theme of this propaganda barrage can be summarized as follows:

1. The ABM will escalate the arms race — ridiculous when the fact is discussed that for the past three years the Soviets have been deploying their own ABM systems.

2. The ABM is a danger to the people living in the area — ridiculous when as Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird pointed out on February 13 that, in handling about 15,000 nuclear weapons all over the world, the United States has never experienced an accident which has resulted in a nuclear explosion.

3. The high cost of the ABM will divert money from poverty programs and other social needs — ridiculous when President Nixon pointed out that the cost of the proposed ABM System will be approximately $5 per person per year. Isn't your life worth $5?

4. All scientists oppose the ABM System — ridiculous when such an esteemed scientist as Dr. Edward Teller said on April 1, "It is absolutely necessary that we deploy the ABM System that President Nixon has proposed."

Before you fall victim to this barrage of propaganda put forth by our enemies take time to analyze the source.

When Jackson Was As Far As The Moon

by BOB ZANIC

The headline read: U.S. TO PUT MAN ON MOON IN JULY.

Certainly a historical event of great magnitude. Undoubtedly a great time to be alive.

Even in this day of the jumbo jet and Telstar, the thought of man exploring other worlds still staggers the imagination.

Now, only a few humans are making the journey, but surely others will follow. Yet most will remain earthbound.

With all of this in mind, I can't help but recall a personal incident during a car trip across the southern half of this country, not so long ago.

It was mid-July and the weather was hot and humid the afternoon I pulled into a small town gas station 16 miles outside of Jackson, Miss.

WHILE MY CAR was being serviced, I moved out of the sun's brutal glare and towards the welcome sight of a Coke machine.

There was little traffic on the highway and the air was so quiet I could hear the sound from birds a great distance away. The air had a pleasant aroma, an aroma one could never find in a large city.

This heavy nature-amen emanated from large open and undisturbed fields, from huge oaks with Spanish moss dripping from thick leaves, and from slow-moving, unseen rivers.

I noticed that the attendant was almost finished so I took one last swallow and walked back to the car. An elderly white man, dressed in bib jeans, long-sleeved checkered shirt, and heavy work shoes, sat on a bicycle inspecting my car. I handed the attendant a ten dollar bill and the old man looked up at me and said: "Y'all own this car?"

"Yes," I said.

HE SHIFTED his weight on the bicycle. "I see ya'all from California," he said.

"That's right."

"Going or coming?" he asked.

"Going to Florida."

He studied me from head to toe with his watery blue eyes.

"Y'all got a long way to go."

"I sure do."

He ran his corky fingers through a shock of white hair.

"Spect ya'all be passing through Jackson."

"Yes," I said. "About another 16 miles."

THE OLD MAN studied the car's license plate and then kicked the pedal of his bike.

"I hope to get to Jackson, someday," he said. "My boy Clay, he been there. Says it's a mighty fine place."

"I imagine it is."

"Been born and lived here all my life but never been to Jackson. Fact of the matter is I never been more'n 10 mile in any direction. But I might get to see Jackson someday."

"I'm sure you will," I said as I got into the car.

"Y'all come back this way, ya' hear?"

"I will," I said.

Once on the highway I looked into the rear view mirror and saw that he remained seated on his bicycle and stared after the car. He remained that way until I made a turn in the highway.

Humphrey Still Has His Eyes On The Room At The Top

Editor's Note: Recently, a UPI reporter caught Hubert H. Humphrey in a relaxed moment at his Macalester College office in St. Paul. The result was this exclusive interview in which the former vice president and defeated presidential candidate speaks very frankly of his remaining political life.

By PAUL G. REED JR.

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI)—Hubert H.

Humphrey isn't hiding the fact that he still hopes to step up to the nation's No. 1 job.

But eight months after losing to Richard M. Nixon in one of the closest elections in U.S. history, Humphrey is fatalistic about his chances of moving into the White House in 1972.

"Events are going to affect elections more than personalities now," he said. "I think we're in a very volatile period of American life."

The former U.S. Vice president sat talking in a high-backed, black leather swivel chair in his brightly remodeled office on the campus of Macalester College.

At 58 he knows he has only one chance left to be President. He knows, too, there are others in his party, younger men, waiting to try and seize the nomination themselves if Richard Nixon should fall between now and 1972.

But if fate is kind to Nixon, Humphrey feels there is little hope for any Democrat before 1976.

"For example, if Mr. Nixon should be able to settle the war in Vietnam on some terms that are acceptable to the American people," Humphrey said. "If he is able to curb the rising tide of inflation, even to settle it a bit. If we can maintain a strong and growing economy."

"Just take those three things. I think he'd be very difficult to defeat for anybody. Anybody!"

But if events "kick back" on Nixon, "then I think he'd be easy to beat," Humphrey said. "And here will be a greater scramble for the (Democratic) nomination."

But first there is 1970. Humphrey must decide in the next six months whether to make a political comeback next year and seek the Senate seat now held by fellow Democrat Eugene McCarthy.

at the Senate thing and saw it was more complicated than I would like it, then the privilege of serving in this state would be a wonderful opportunity," he said.

In an effort to "decompress" from the pressure of top-level Washington and to keep his mind off the past Humphrey has plunged into private life at a hectic pace.

He travels more now than he did as vice president, delivering as many as 20 speeches a month in various cities.

He holds two top jobs with Encyclopedia Britannica. He is a trustee of Brandeis University and a part-time professor on two Minnesota campuses — Macalester and the University of Minnesota.

He is earning more money than ever before, though he says reports that he'll earn $200,000 this year are "exaggerated a little."

Humphrey spends three full days every two weeks teaching.

French '4th of July' In Louisiana?

KAPLAN, La. (UPI)—Around the turn of the century, a Russian Jewish immigrant named Abram Kaplan propelled his pushcart overland from the East Coast to southwestern Louisiana to build an empire in the marshlands.

It is doubtful too, that modern Frenchmen would find much comparison between their own celebrations and the greasy pole-climbing and watermelon-eating festivities planned here.

Bastille Day, French equivalent of our Fourth of July, has been celebrated in this rice farming community for more than 60 years.

Kaplan, located about 30 miles from the Gulf of Mexico, is part of an area chosen as a refuge by the French Canadians, or Bastille Day, French equivalent of our Fourth of July, has been celebrated in this rice farming community for more than 60 years.

Kaplan, located about 30 miles from the Gulf of Mexico, is part of an area chosen as a refuge by the French Canadians, or Acadians, when they migrated during the late 1700s.

A latecomer as Acadian communities go, Kaplan was founded in 1902 by the Irving Irrigation Company and named for the company's president, Kaplan, who had drained the marshy town site and encouraged its settlement.

The first glimmerings of loyalty to the motherland, the French Republic, came with the 1920 election of Eugene Eleazar as mayor of the hamlet.

Eleazar had migrated from France in 1888, and he was determined to preserve something of the old country ways among the Acadians, most of them several generations removed from France.

Given the Acadian's love of festivals, the idea of celebrating Bastille Day caught on. The first revel was held in 1906, and the local farmers have been celebrating annually ever since.

But state Democratic farm and labor leaders think there is a good chance McCarthy will run as an independent to test his strength as a possible third party presidential candidate in 1972.

Humphrey said he has not yet made up his mind. But when he does, he said McCarthy's possible entry into the race will not deter him.

Most observers agree, too, that he could be governor if he wanted to.

"My feeling about it is this way. If, in my own mind, I had foreclosed, once and for all, any possibility of '72 and I looked

By United Press International

Today is Thursday, July 10, the 191st day of 1969 with 174 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase.

The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1808 Howard Hughes and a crew of 4 flew around the world in 91 hours.

In 1953 Lavrenti Beria, Russian chief of Soviet internal security forces, was purged by the Communists on charges of "criminal anti-state activities."

In 1962 the Telstar satellite relayed television pictures from the United States to Europe— and Americans received clear pictures back from France and Britain.

In 1968 French President Charles de Gaulle appointed Maurice Couve de Murville premier of France, replacing Georges Pompidou who became president in June, 1969.

A thought for the day: Sir William Osler said—"Tact is the saving virtue without which no woman can be a success."

Early Triumphs in Space: Russia, Russia

by EDWARD K. DELONG
SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—The first space pilots had to develop new skills and techniques to deal with a hostile new environment, learning by trial and error that the comparative safety of earth orbit, before man could challenge the moon.

It was an exciting time, full of firsts and steps into the unknown. And striking differences quickly appeared between the Russian and American approaches to the conquest of space differences which gave the Soviet Union most of the early firsts.

Russia opened the age of man in space April 12, 1961, with a flight that carried cosmonaut Yuri A. Gagarin once around the globe in 1 hour 48 minutes.

America followed 23 days later with the up-and-down flight of astronaut Alan B. Shepard. More cautious than Gagarin's flight, Shepard's mission lasted 15 minutes, 22 seconds, and merely carried him into space and back down to the Atlantic, much less than one orbit.

That set the pattern of the "early days" of manned space flight.

The second American manned flight on July 21, 1961, two months after Shepard's hop, repeated the maiden Mercury flight. Astronaut Virgil I. "Gus" Grissom rode his Liberty Bell 7 capsule 118 miles high and splashed into the Atlantic after 15 minutes, 37 seconds.

Before an American could fly in orbit, engineers had to make sure they had successfully modified the Atlas missile so it could safely carry a man instead of a payload on its nose. In early 1962 they were satisfied.

On Feb. 20, 1962, John Glenn was given the "go" to rocket into orbit—the first American to circle the globe in space. Glenn sailed three times around the earth in 4 hours, 55 minutes. His flight, stacked on top of Russia's accomplishments, proved that man could indeed function in an orbiting spacecraft.

But man's eyesight would not deteriorate, doctors had feared. Weightlessness did not make him become violently ill or completely disoriented as they had also feared. Now the question arose: How long could man take it in space?

The final three Mercury spaceflights set the answer.

Astronaut M. Scott Carpenter took his Liberty 7 capsule aloft May 24, 1962, and sailed Glenn's three-orbit flight. Then Walter M. Schirra flew Sigma 7 through 10 orbits on Oct. 30, 1962, a mission that lasted 9 hours, 13 minutes.

Finally, L. Gordon Cooper piloted his Liberty 7 spacecraft through 22 orbits of the earth on May 16, 1963. During his 34 hours, 23 minutes, in space he also proved space-men could meet and solve the unexpected. An electrical short circuit wrecked Cooper's automatic control system, but the astronaut calmly flew into reentry by hand and landed safely within four miles of his recovery ship.

The Mercury program was ended. Americans would next enter space in the spring of 1968, flying the two-man Gemini spacecraft, a larger version of the bell-shaped Mercury.

While America's Mercury pioneers blazed a cautious trail through space, Russia's cosmonauts stepped boldly from one first to another.

In the four years after Gagarin's flight, Russian cosmonauts rocketed into space five more times in the one-man Vostok spacecraft. Each remained in orbit longer or performed a more impressive feat than the last. Russia also launched two multiple-man Vostok flights, one bearing three men aloft and the other carrying two.

Records the Soviet Union claimed during these missions included the first woman in space, the first spacewalk and a record time aloft of 119 hours, 6 minutes.

Unlike the United States, Russians never repeated a flight. The second Russian in space, cosmonaut Gherman S. Titov, spun 17 times around the earth. His flight in Vostok 2 lasted 25 hours, 18 minutes.

America's Mercury capsule had been designed for a maximum of three orbits, but its lifetime in space was stretched to over a day. Russia's Vostok, from the very first, carried air, water, food and batteries enough for 10 days in orbit.

This was so its orbit could decay naturally if its retrorockets failed to fire and return a cosmonaut home. The Russians put their long-duration capability to work, starting with their next flights.

On Aug. 11 and Aug. 12, 1962, Vostoks 3 and 4 shot into space on the first Soviet "group" flight.

Vostok 3, carrying cosmonaut Andrian Nikolayev, blasted into space first and orbited for 94 hours, 22 minutes. It was joined next day by Vostok 4, piloted by cosmonaut Pavel Popovich, who soared into orbit with an accuracy that placed him four miles from Vostok 3.

The two craft came back to earth within six minutes of each other, after Popovich had been in space 70 hours, 57 minutes.

The next Soviet group flight put the first woman in space.

Vostok 5 carried pilot Valery Bykovsky into space June 16, 1963, to remain for a record 81 orbits lasting 119 hours, 6 minutes. He was joined two days later by cosmonette Valentina Tereshkova in Vostok 6, and she orbited with him for 70 hours, 50 minutes.

Then the Soviets stepped up their pace with the multiman Vostok flights. These new spacecrafts, larger than the Vostok, were so roomy they had two living compartments for the cosmonauts.

Vostok 1 sped into space Oct. 12, 1964—during the break between America's Mercury and Gemini programs—with three men aboard. This flight came as a shock to the United States, which was not to orbit three men at one time for another four years.

The Vostok trio—pilot Vladimir Komarov, scientist Konstantin Feoktistov, and medical doctor Boris Yegorov—wore business suits instead of uncomfortable spacesuits and helmets during their 24-hour, 17-minute venture in space.

Russia's second Vostok carried only two men. It etched a permanent niche in history, however, with two accomplishments—the first spacewalk, and a flight to a record 308 miles from earth.

Cosmonauts Pavel Belyayev and Alexei Leonov blasted away from their launch pad March 18, 1965. On the second of their 17 orbits, Leonov slipped through an airlock and—clad in a special spacesuit—floated up to 16 feet outside the spacecraft for 10 minutes.

With that flight Russia ended its concentrated efforts in the manned spaceflight arena. As usual, Russian secrecy hid the reason, but Western experts feel military development may have been given a higher priority for Soviet space dollars.

Five days later America fired its first Gemini craft, Gemini 3, into space. Astronauts Grissom and John W. Young orbited three times around the world and became the first space pilots to change their path through the cosmos.

This demonstration of maneuverability was only the first of many Gemini accomplishments that paved the way for this month's mission to the moon.

Gemini 4 astronauts James A. McDivitt and Edward H. White blasted away from Cape Kennedy June 3, 1965, and White floated outside his hatch for 23 minutes—maneuvering himself with a hand-held jet gun—to perform the first American spacewalk.

The pilots of Gemini 5, Cooper and Charles "Pete" Conrad, set out Aug. 21, 1965, to spend a full week in space. Their mission lasted 190 hours 56 minutes despite trouble with their ship's electricity-producing fuel cells on the first day.

Launch problems delayed Gemini 6, so Gemini 7 came next. Astronauts Frank Borman and James A. Lovell rode their Titan 2 rocket away from the cape Dec. 4, 1965, and spent a record 14 days—actually 330 hours, 35 minutes—orbiting in their cramped craft.

On Dec. 15, 1965, pilots Schirra and Thomas P. Stafford flew their Gemini 6 spacecraft up to join Gemini 7 in the world's first manned space rendezvous and the two vehicles flew nose-to-nose a foot apart. The Gemini 6 crew returned to earth next day.

Gemini 8 provided the first docking of a manned ship with another vehicle—a link-up procedure vital to the moon mission—and the first emergency in space. Pilots Neil A. Armstrong and David R. Scott brought their crippled ship safely to an emergency Pacific Ocean splashdown 10 hours and 42 minutes after it was launched March 16, 1966.

Next came the "angry alligator" flight of Gemini 9, a name given to the Agena target rocket by command pilot Stafford to describe a shroud on the rocket which opened only part way and prevented a docking. Eugene A. Cernan performed three types of spacewalking, but was bothered by fatigue and fogging on his space helmet visor and had to stop early.

Young and Michael Collins launched into space July 18, 1966, to make the 70-hour, 47-minute flight of Gemini 10. They docked with an Agena rocket, used it to blast themselves 475 miles from earth, and Collins made two separate spacewalks but became a second victim to space fatigue.

Space fatigue cut short the Gemini 11 spacewalk of Richard F. Gordon, too, and made doctors wonder if man could work in weightlessness. Gordon and Conrad blasted off Sept. 12, 1966, and during their 71-hour, 17-minute mission set an altitude record of 850 miles.

The last Gemini flight, launched Nov. 11, 1966, solved the space fatigue problem and set a record length spacewalk. Lovell piloted the 94-hour, 35-minute flight, and Edwin E. "Buzz" Aldrin proved that with proper training and restraints man could work outside a spaceship. His three ventures outside Gemini 12 totaled five and a half hours.

For A Happy Life

It's Fun in July To:

1. Take your children berry-picking some fine summer day.
2. Salvage and paint an old wicker chair a lemon yellow, petunia pink or bitter green.
3. Ask a question when you don't know what to say.
4. Let your teenager plan the meals and do the grocery shopping for one whole week.
5. Write down the names of people you have met at the end of each day.
6. Mix your own shade of nail polish by combining two different shades.
7. Read aloud a story or book about man's explorations in Antarctica.
8. Heed this by F. Hawes: "Aim at the sun and you may not reach it; but your arrow will fly higher than if aimed at an object on a level with yourself."

Garden Symposium

Garden Club of Illinois and Illinois Council of Nationally Accredited Flower Show Judges will sponsor their sixth annual symposium July 23-25 at Concord Motor Inn, 6565 N. Mannheim Road, Des Plaines.

The public is invited to attend the series of lectures by specialists in the fields of horticulture and floral design. Nationally accredited flower show judges may take the course for credit as a refresher or as a required symposium toward a Master Certificate.

Theme for this year's symposium is "Outreach," with Mrs. John Harker of Park Ridge as chairman.

THE PROGRAM for Wednesday, July 23, will feature Dr. Charles W. Dunham, professor of horticulture at University of Delaware, who has specialized in plant nutrition and propagation. Exhibition and judging of marigolds, petunias, hemerocallis and true lilies are scheduled for the afternoon.

The Wednesday evening banquet to which husbands are invited will have as featured guest John Mosiman, who will present his program, "Musical Paintings."

Thursday's program includes floral artists Mrs. Raymond Russ Stoltz of New Jersey and Mrs. E. F. Simpson of Tennessee. They will lecture on arranging and flower show judging.

ART CRITIC and professor Joshua B. Kind of the Chicago Art Institute and Gene Stelvatier, a Milwaukee landscape architect, are on Friday's program.

Mrs. Joseph F. Koenen of the Arlington Heights Garden Club will serve as co-chairman of publicity with Mrs. Eugene Tarnillo of Des Plaines. Mrs. Jerome Thelander of Mount Prospect and Mrs. Charles Pease of Palatine will continue the tradition of decoration "In the Pink." Topiary trees of fresh greens and pink roses will be used on the luncheon tables.

Mrs. Harry Eichenberg of Palatine is in charge of artistic exhibits made by members of the Garden Club of Illinois. These will be discussed and evaluated by the group.

Tickets and advance registration requests should be directed to Mrs. Archie Lingle, 1725 Good Ave., Park Ridge 60068.

Outing for Infant Welfare

Area members of the Chicago Infant Welfare Society are busily getting ready for their big day at the Oak Brook Sports Core where they will sponsor the "Oak Brook Equestrian Grand Prix" Sunday, July 20.

The all-day fun affair will include the Grand Prix itself at 1 p.m., one of only four such competitions for hunters and jumpers in the United States. Representatives of United States, Canadian and European Olympic teams will be participating.

A 20-goal polo match will follow at 4 o'clock.

The day's program also includes performances by the Tempel Smith Lipizzans and the U.S. Air Force Band.

The polo grounds will open at 10 a.m. and there will be food and beverages available all day.

TICKETS MAY be purchased through Mrs. Larry Zonsius, Arlington Heights, CL 3-6377.

Profits from the Grand Prix benefit will be used for the new Infant Welfare child development center which will include a diagnostic nursery school for emotionally disturbed children, psychotherapy for both children and adults and counseling in planned parenthood, budgeting and nutrition for low income families.

Infant Welfare's already established program provides prenatal care to needy mothers-to-be and pediatric care for needy youngsters from birth to six years of age.

Clothing Tips

An easy and effective way to help keep a clothes closet protected from moth damage, according to the American Institute of Men's and Boys' Wear, Inc., is to give the walls and floor a good wiping with a cloth dampened in turpentine.

Soup stains on shirts will come out if first rubbed with a cake of dry soap, then washed thoroughly.

You may have been advised to use a hair dryer on the insides of shoes that have gotten wet. That's okay — but use the cold air only.

Shape of Summer: The Bra Dress

Newest look this summer is the bra dress... a shapely style that's far more feminine and flattering than the loose-fitting shifts of the past few seasons.

Pattern companies, as usual, were quick to note the trend and have come up with a variety of pattern styles for the girl who sews.

When it comes to fabrics for making your own bra dress, sewing experts recommend you choose firmly-woven cottons. Their non-sagging qualities make them an ideal choice for a well-fitting bra dress that will keep its shape. And new prints and colors in cottons have never been more inspiring, according to the National Cotton Council.

Secret to successful shaping of bra dresses is in the handling of darts. From sewing experts come these tips: first, pin all darts in place and baste. Start at outer edge of dart and sew along markings to point of dart. Then try on the dress to check position of darts.

AFTER MAKING SURE they are correctly placed, machine-stitch darts from widest part at seam edge in a smooth even line to the point. Make the point sharp with two or three stitches on thread of fold and an equal number beyond the point.

To help shape darts, iron them over a press mitt. Use a press cloth to protect the fabric, and place a strip of paper under darts to prevent marking the garment. When ironing, carry the crease line only as far as the stitching.

Follow pattern directions for constructing the bra part. Or, if you prefer, purchase bra cups at a notions counter and sew into bodice.

FIRMLY WOVEN COTTON pique is the ideal choice for sewing the bra dress at left. Non-woven interfacing and elastic sewed in the side seams accentuate the uplift. Made from McCall's Pattern 9773.

TEXTURED AND BRILLIANTLY printed cotton interprets the dress with waistline cut-outs and tiny shoulder straps, sewn from Simplicity Pattern 8194.

Arlington Couple United

Miss June Mary Schoepke and Robert L. Ross, who were sweethearts at Arlington High School, spoke marriage vows June 7 in Faith Lutheran Church. They are the daughter and son of the Arthur Schoepkes, 121 S. Mitchell, and the Ernest Rosses, 818 N. Princeton, all of Arlington Heights.

For her wedding the bride chose an A-line gown of white silk organza featuring a bodice of chantilly lace lightly frosted with tiny seed pearls, a scalloped neckline and short lace sleeves. Appliques of lace and pearls enhanced the skirt and edged the full chapel train.

A crown of lace, pearls and crystals held her three-tiered silk illusion veil. She carried a cascading bouquet of phalaenopsis, stephanotis, baby's breath and ivy.

ATTENDING the bride as maid of honor was Linda Schulz of Downers Grove, her roommate at Northern Illinois University. Bridesmaids were Karen Crowe of Hoffman Estates, cousin of the bride; Jan Nelson of Arlington Heights, and Kathy Boyce, another of the bride's roommates.

All the girls wore aqua A-line sleeveless gowns with white Venice lace trim around the standup collar and down the front. Their headpieces were aqua petals with short veils. They carried colonial bouquets of aqua carnations and deep blue statice.

The flower girls, Tammy Creamer, niece of the bride, and Linda Ross, niece of the groom, wore deeper aqua gowns with empire waists and full skirts. They carried wicker baskets of aqua carnations and blue statice.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ross

THE GROOM HAD James K. Kunkl, Bloomington, a classmate at NIU, as his best man. David Dimmlich, Rockford, a close friend, and Jerry Ross and David Schoepke, brothers of the couple, were ushers.

The bride's mother wore an aqua dress and coat ensemble, and the groom's mother chose a pink ensemble for the ceremony and buffet supper which followed in the church hall.

After a honeymoon in the Pocono Mountains, the couple will return to summer school at NIU, where the groom will be graduated in August and then enter the U.S. Air Force. The bride expects to get her degree next January.

Wedding Follows College Romance

The wedding of Phyllis Catherine Brasch and Kevan Theron Nye was a double ring, double cake affair. At the reception in the church parlor, guests were served both a bride's cake in traditional white and a groom's cake in chocolate.

Phyllis is the daughter of the F. M. Brasches, 1909 Bonita, Mount Prospect, and Kevan is the son of the Laurence Nyes of Portland, Ore. The bridal pair met at Nebraska Wesleyan University which is also the alma mater of both sets of their parents. The university is located in Lincoln, Neb., where the couple's wedding took place June 15 in the First United Methodist Church. Dr. Kenneth Nye, an uncle of the groom from Glenview Community Church, officiated at the candle-light rites.

AS SHE WAS given away by her father, the bride wore a white silk organza gown with crescent neckline and long bell sleeves. The dress was trimmed with appliques of French lace in a delicate floral pattern. The floral motif was repeated at the hem of the gown and at the aisle-wide train. A bouffant silk illusion veil was held in place by a crown of Venice lace. The bridal bouquet was composed of white sweetheart roses.

Beverly Lynn Brasch, the bride's sister, was maid of honor. She wore a pink chiffon dress embroidered in a rose motif and carried a nosegay of pink sweetheart roses.

Best man was the Rev. Richard Howard, the groom's cousin from Northfield. Howard Brasch, brother of the groom, and Jack Parkhurst, both of Lincoln, Neb., were ushers.

THE BRIDE'S mother wore a rose pink costume with a white orchid corsage, and the groom's mother wore a blue lace dress with a white orchid as they welcomed 100 guests at the reception.

Following a honeymoon trip through the Northwest, the couple settled in Portland where the groom will attend graduate school at Portland State University.

The bride was graduated from Forest View High School and received her degree from Nebraska Wesleyan in '68. This past year she taught English in Beatrice, Neb., High School.

Urges Better Franks Label

The Illinois Federation of Consumers has urged U. S. Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin to require meat processors to give as much information about the nutritional value of frankfurters as the department requires processors to give on dog food.

Speaking on behalf of Illinois consumers, Mrs. Helen Nelson, executive vice president of IFC, noted that processed dog and cat foods containing meat are required to specify on their labels the percentage of their contents which is protein, carbohydrates, fat, water, etc., but that no such requirement exists for frankfurters and other processed meat products consumed by human beings.

Mrs. Nelson declared, "Of course, it's nice that the purchaser can know the balance of nutrients in the product he is feeding his pet, but surely it is more important that he know the protein, fat and carbohydrate content of the processed meat he feeds his family."

PRESENTLY, according to Mrs. Nelson, an "all meat" frankfurter often is one-third fat. "Consumers have a right to know which franks are 33 per cent fat and 12 per cent protein and which are 12 per cent fat and 33 per cent protein," she asserted, adding that IFC "expects labeling standards for consumer meat products to be as high, certainly, as those already established for cat and dog food."

The U. S. Department of Agriculture sets labeling requirements for all processed meat products. Currently, it is reviewing its standards for sausage products including frankfurters.

The IFC is a statewide, non-partisan organization of individuals and groups dedicated to protecting the interests of consumers.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Yates

Their Lutheran church affiliation in Arlington Heights started a romance between Anna Marie Bazik and Douglas H. Yates which culminated in their marriage June 28. Members of Faith Lutheran Church, the couple planned their wedding to take place in the bride's hometown of Streator, Ill. The Rev. Martin Cizmar performed the ceremony at 2 in the afternoon in Holy Trinity Lutheran Church.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Bazik of Streator, is a counselor and assistant professor at Harper Junior College. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Yates, 903 N. Vall Ave., Arlington Heights, and works for Protection Controls, Inc., Skokie.

ALTAR BOUQUETS of carnations and 12 lighted tapers decorated the chancel for the couple's wedding. The bride chose a gown of white chantilly lace trimmed with peau de sole, styled with a scalloped neckline, long sleeves and an A-line skirt with a chapel train. Her silk illusion veil was held by a large organ and lace rose studded with crystals. She carried a bouquet of white roses and carnations.

Her sister, Edna Bazik, was maid of honor, wearing a floor-length karate silk gown in spring pink with a white lace bodice overlay. She carried pink carnations.

Attired in gowns identical to the maid of honor's but in a mint green were four bridesmaids — Susan and Deborah Yates, of Wilmette, a cousin of the bride, and Mrs. A. Matthew Bazik of Evanston, the bride's sister-in-law. They also carried bouquets of pink carnations.

THEIR ESCORTS were Bruce Yates, the groom's brother from Los Angeles, who also served as best man; and ushers Neil and George Zachariasen of Wauwatosa, Wis., Robert Yates, Elk Grove Village, and Edward Wahl, Urbana. All of the ushers except Mr. Wahl are cousins of the groom.

For the reception which followed in the church hall, the bride's mother received in a beige lace dress with a matching coat. The groom's mother appeared in a mint green embroidered sheath with a matching organ and lace coat.

The newlyweds are making their home in Arlington Heights.

Palatine's Lawrence R. Grant, just back from army duty in Vietnam, was married to the former Miss Lynette Kieso of Aurora in 2 p.m. ceremonies May 31 at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church in Aurora. The double ring ceremony followed a pre-nuptial blessing at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, also in Aurora.

The new Mrs. Grant is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Kieso. She was graduated from East Aurora High School and electronic Machine Accounting College.

Mrs. Lawrence Grant

The groom is the son of the Harvey Grants of 508 Columbine Circle, Lexington Field Estates, Palatine.

THE BRIDE WORE a gown of white silk organza and Venice lace in an A-line cage design. Her chapel-length train was adorned with a lace motif, and the same lace formed petals with pearl trim for her headpiece. She carried a cascade of white and peach roses with white daisies.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Kenneth Dremmen of Aurora, was gowned in apricot karate in an A-line silhouette. Bridesmaids Mrs. Michael Grant of Hoffman Estates, Mrs. John Quirin of Aurora, and junior bridesmaid Miss Kimberley Besser of Buffalo Grove were dressed identically to the matron of honor. All bridesmaids carried mixed garden flowers.

The best man was Timothy Grant of Palatine, brother of the groom, and his other brothers, Michael and Frederick Grant, ushered along with Thomas Kieso, the bride's brother, and John Meyer of Aurora.

IMMEDIATELY following the wedding, a garden buffet reception for 350 was held at the home of the bride's parents. After a two-week honeymoon to Nassau, the couple will reside in Aurora.

The bride is employed at Northern Illinois Gas Company. The groom was graduated from Electronic Machine Accounting College, and Quartermaster Officer Candidate School, and recently completed a year's service in Vietnam. He works for United States Steel Corporation in Chicago.

Easy Family Trip

If you plan a car trip or camping vacation with the family, here's a packing tip that will save a lot of time and trouble later. First, for easy washability on the road, choose outfits that are all-cotton. Pack one whole outfit for each child — cotton pants, shirt, underwear, socks — in a plastic bag and write the child's name on the bag. Then put all the plastic bags in one big suitcase.

Vale Theatre's Troupe Wows Crowds

The Troupe, a repertory company, performing at the Vale Theatre near Carpentersville, has been providing such smashing performances of their current production, "Barefoot in the Park" that attendance has grown to standing-room-only. Six curtain calls at last Saturday's late show gave ample evidence of the quality of the performance.

The Vale Theatre, located on Jim Saine's Tralee Farm on Route 25, a half mile south of Route 62, started life as a barn. However, under the artistic direction of J. J. Butler, the interior was redesigned as a theater while at the same time retaining all of the original qualities of the barn's structure.

Mention J. J. or his wife, Penny Brown, to anyone in Chicago theatrical or movie circles and they will light up in recognition. J. J.'s first concern in the theater is and always has been the audience. He disagrees with the concept of "theater for the sake of theater." Instead, he believes that the show is for the audience. Thus, everything at the Vale Theatre is audience aligned. The show begins and ends at the parking lot and everything in between is a part of the show.

WHEN MEMBERS of the audience return three times to see the same show, when people who have seen "Barefoot in the Park" on Broadway and in Chicago proclaim the Vale performance to be the best, this is ample proof that J. J.'s methods are paying off.

A children's theater is currently being developed at the Vale Theatre and will soon announce its first production to be scheduled for Saturday and Sunday matinees. Also under development are classes and workshops in the performing arts for both children and adults.

"Barefoot in the Park" is being held over for two more weeks. Reservations may be obtained by calling 428-4318 or 428-4461 or by writing Vale Theatre, Box 577, Rural Route 2, Dundee.

DIPLOMATS AND DEER make for an interesting golf course.

Recently we spent a Chicago-like, rainy week down in the Ozarks — four of the six mornings were spent at the Dogwood Hills Golf Course in Osage Beach, Mo.

A few years earlier the 18-hole layout had become famous in the area as the place where the Midwest governors played all their golf while attending a convention at the plush Tan Tara Resort just down the road.

Among the more notable pictures located near the cashier's counter were the honorable Otto Kerner, judge of the U.S. Court of Appeals in Chicago and former governor of Illinois, and George Romney, secretary of Housing and Urban Development and ex-governor of Michigan.

All of the governors for the 50 states will be playing here next year (August), said the affable head pro, John Woodhall. They enjoyed themselves here the last time and Romney played every day he was here.

Even though some of the greats in government weren't there to see, just playing on the same course was kind of enjoyable.

And that takes care of the first "d." But the second — deer — made the 6,135-yard, par 70 layout famous or infamous (depending on whether you've had a run-in with one or not).

The scorecard warns "Deer tracks on the greens . . . Look for deer . . . Move your ball — no penalty." And to the left of the card is a large hoof print, probably there to let the club slickers know just what they looked like.

This reporter-golfer thought that the advice on the cards was a joke. Probably there just to be a tourist gimmick. However, one morning — just before I arrived — a golfer stumbled into the pro shop telling of a deer that raced by him just as he swung the club on the eighth hole.

The guy was still white as a sheet when he got to the clubhouse," the pro laughingly exclaimed.

After that I kept a watchful eye on the woods whenever I got near there but the only run-in that occurred in the timber wasn't hair-raising for me — my playing partner was stung in the head by a bee.

I got in 72 holes despite the rain and the final hole could have been the greatest one in my golfing life — I seemed to have had a short putt for my first eagle.

"Seemed" is the best word to describe the situation. After a long drive, I sent a three wood shot toward the right side of the par 5, 487-yard finishing hole — right on the pin.

But after my lucky fairway shot, the greenskeeper moved on the green and changed the cup placement. When I got to the green, instead of having a 12-footer for my three I had a 50-footer!

What could have been an eagle turned into a bogey — a four putt green.

When I walked away from that frustration, I hoped that a deer would take aim at the greenskeeper when he bent over to change the next cup. Or, at least, maybe he'd be the next victim who turns white on the course!

JULY FOURTH did not prove to be a profitable night for the "Frank May Project" — a drive to raise money toward the education of Coach Hal Sprehe's three daughters, left fatherless a few weeks ago when Sprehe was killed in an accident.

During the fireworks display at the Forest View High School football field, buckets were passed around in hopes of being filled. However, only $142.62 was raised.

There might have been more but some lowly, so-called Americans — supposedly celebrating our nation's birthday — cleaned out one bucket and another disappeared entirely!

Despite the thievery, the fund now has approximately $658.00 after just two weeks of work.

Another project will be held this Saturday at Forest View's north parking lot. Many student-friends of Mr. Sprehe will be on hand to clean both inside and out of every car for only a $1. If the owner would like to donate more, it will be greatly appreciated.

The car wash, which is being supervised by two former Falcon seniors — Frank May and Chip Upping, will begin at nine and run until 4 p.m. Approximately 20 people will be on hand at all times so there should be no waiting.

Reminders of the wash are posted in many of the area's grocery stores so that no one should have an excuse about forgetting about it. And all of you who dipped into those buckets last Friday night, here's your chance to ease your consciences and re-donate what you took.

Forest View High School is located at 2121 S. Goebbert Road, Arlington Heights, just one block east and one block south of the Arlington Heights-Golf Road intersection.

"VERSATILE" is the best way to sum up the talents of Mike Pettenuzzo of the Logan Square Lions. He has seen action as a pitcher, catcher, and outfielder this season and has been an important figure in the Lions' recent eight-game winning streak. Only a sophomore, Pettenuzzo's showing this past spring for St. Viator was dazzling. He led the club with a .449 batting average, batted in 26 runs in 21 games, and boasted a 4-1 pitching record.

Lions' Win Streak Hits Eight Games

It seems that the Logan Square Lions always have some sort of streak going. Their latest one is on the plus side.

As of Monday, the Lions had a winning streak of eight straight games to run their overall record to 16-10. They reeled off four more non-league wins last week to make their record outside the Ninth District an even handsomer 12-5.

Prior to the current winning skunk, Larry Nomellini's gang had lost six in a row. And before that, they had won five straight.

THE LIONS held their own Fourth of July celebration at the St. Viator diamond Friday, dealing Lane Tech High School a double defeat by scores of 3-2 and 6-3.

Jim Kenny, a husky, versatile performer who has played outfield, catcher, and pitcher at different times this year, turned in a five-hitter on the mound in the opening 3-2 win. The game was a scoreless pitchers' duel until the seventh, when all five of the game's runs crossed the plate.

Kenny was excellent through those first six frames, allowing only two hits, striking out four, and walking three.

The hits were both singles, with neither runner advancing past first base.

IN FACT, NO Lane Tech runner got farther than second base in the first six innings. The only time it happened was in the fourth, when Kenny issued two walks.

The stifling heat finally seemed to affect both hurlers in the seventh. Two singles and a triple accounted for Lane Tech's runs in the top of the seventh.

But instead of despairing, the Lions came right back with three hits in the seventh — as many as they had totaled for the entire game, to pull out a thriller.

Mike Pettenuzzo singled to start the rally. John Wendell walked, Pat Donohue reached on an error, and Mike O'Donnell rapped a clutch single.

MIKE ABINANTI drew a walk to load the bases with still nobody out. After Larry Geyer reached on a fielder's choice, Kenny won his own game by sacrificing the run home.

Mike O'Donnell took the mound in the second game and stopped the visitors with help from Pettenuzzo. Again, both teams exploded in the late innings, with the Lions breaking a 3-3 tie in the sixth for a 6-3 win.

The Lions took a 1-0 lead in the fourth on three errors. They made it 3-0 in the fifth when Jim Hynes and Brian Rooney reached on a walk and error and were driven home on singles by O'Donnell and John Keller.

THAT LEAD vanished in the top of the sixth, when three straight singles and a double produced three runs for the visitors.

But Logan Square came right back in the bottom of that inning. Hynes singled, Rooney walked, and Mark Rossi blasted a three-run homer to settle the issue.

Thursday, the Lions had pulled out a 6-5 squeaker at Deerfield, getting their runs in the early innings instead of waiting until the last minute.

They jumped to a 3-0 lead immediately when O'Donnell and Hynes singled and

Arseneau Now Dean Of Students

Don Arseneau, varsity basketball head coach and assistant cross country coach at Prospect High School, will be Dean of Students at Prospect for the coming school year, it was announced at Monday night's District 214 board meeting.

The appointment means that Arseneau will have to step down from his coaching positions and also give up his work in the physical education department.

Arseneau, who is studying this summer at the University of Illinois, was unavailable for comment. But George Gattas, Prospect's Athletic Director, said that Arseneau's leaving will create a vacancy in the athletic department.

"I felt he was being considered for the position of Dean of Students," Gattas said, "but I didn't know that anything was certain until he was appointed Monday night. So right now, as of today, we're looking for a man to fill his spot in the department."

"We're trying to get the best man possible for the job that we can," Gattas added. "I can't say whether we'll find him within or out of the district, but he will be someone who fits in with our methods and way of doing things."

Last year, Arseneau piloted his Knight cage charges to a 5-16 record overall and an eight place ranking in the Mid-Suburban League with a 4-10 mark. He also assisted Joe Wanner in Prospect's cross country program.

Because of the nature of his duties as Dean of Students, an administrative post that was created this year, Arseneau will not have time to continue his coaching, Gattas said.

Entry Forms in Mail For Paddock Golf Meet

Entry forms for the approaching Paddock Publications Inter-League Handicap golf tournament have been mailed to secretaries of 24 twilight golf leagues.

First place teams of these leagues as of Saturday, Aug. 2, are eligible for the big event Sunday, Aug. 17 at Palatine Hills golf course.

Tournament was enlarged last year with addition of a Communications Center near the 18th green so golfers could relax while watching scores. Participation patches were given golfers, in addition to medals to members of first, second and third place teams.

The medals have been changed this time to attractive silver-plated ash trays "that the wife of any golfer would be pleased to use in the home" according to tournament director Bob Paddock. Many of the previously-given medals rest in desk drawers, and rarely greet the public eye.

Busse Flowers team of Old Orchard Scratch league won the event last year.

Leagues invited to participate this year include:

Auto, Cycle Stunt Circus In Spotlight at Santa Fe

Danny Fleenor's Hurricane Hell Drivers, world's largest, roughest, wildest automobile and motorcycle stunt circus will present their "two hour circus of death" in front of the grandstand at Santa Fe Speedway tonight. Starting time is 8:30 P.M. for the 28-event show.

Billed as "automotive fury and motorcycle insanity" with a touch of "calculated calamity" the "madmen on wheels" will present top-flight precision driving in 1969 Dodge Cars in addition to turning automobiles into "mangled masses of metal" in deliberate wrecks in front of the grandstand.

While the head-on collisions and car rollovers are possibly the greatest crowd pleasers, Fleenor, dean of the dare-devils is quick to point out that precision driving with new cars, racing them over high rampways at a mile a minute clip, playing automobile tag and missing other cars by a fraction of an inch and balancing cars on two wheels for hundreds of feet down the track actually requires by far the greatest driving ability.

Fleenor, who has personally tutored every one of the more than 20 stunt men who will be at the fair, points out that the first "thriller" attempted is usually a "slide for life through blazing gasoline" followed by wall crashes and the demolishing of cars in deliberate roll-overs. If the neophyte stunt man successfully follows instructions in the "smash-em up" features he eventually graduates to the new cars and the beauties of precision driving.

In addition to the auto dare-devils the show will offer "motorcycle maniacs" crashing through blazing walls, leaping over seven men and three parked cars and demonstrating trick and fancy riding.

A troupe of dare-devil clowns works between each thrill event, helping alleviate the tension caused by the "men and women who defy death to live."

Santa Fe Speedway highlights top-action motorcycle shows every Wednesday night.

Santa Fe Speedway is located at 91st and Wolf Road approximately 20 minutes from downtown Chicago via the Stevenson Expressway.

EXCITING ROLLOVERS will be a part of the action tonight as the Santa Fe Speedway, 91st and Wolf road, presents the world's largest automobile and motorcycle stunt circus. Starting time is 8:30 p.m. for the 28-event show. Points are awarded for such things as the number of rollovers a driver manages to accomplish, the number of flips accomplished in consecutive crashes in the T-bone crash events, the distance a driver can keep a car balanced on two wheels at high speeds and the length of ramp-to-ramp jumps.

Wennerstrom Wins In 1-0 Mound Duel

Gary Wennerstrom of Palwaukee beat Art Taylor 1 to 0 as they hooked up in a pitcher's duel. Both gave up four hits with the only run scoring on a sacrifice fly by Terry Smith in this Wheeling Pony League action.

Henry's moved into third place in the standings as they downed Palwaukee 7 to 3 and Hackneys 2 to 0. Henry's managed only three hits off Gary Reynolds but Bobby Peters allowed Hackneys only two safeties.

Hackneys took over 4th place as Ted Rohloff defeated Phil Lacy of Kole. A triple by Gary Reynolds a double by Dan can Proudfoot and good fielding by Mark Filtrich helped Rohloff get the win.

The outstanding pitching performance of the week was turned in by Gary Raupp as he pitched one hit ball against VFW winning 3 to 2. A Sento-like stop of Jon Carlberg's shot down the third base line preserved Gary's win. Mark Torp's double with the bases loaded was the only hit for VFW.

Mrs. Jerry Johnson,

Larry Moran Triumph

The Buffalo Grove Golf Club Men's League opened its ranks to women drivers and putters for a two-ball golf tournament Saturday, June 28.

Mixed pairs of golfers teed off in late afternoon competition at Buffalo Grove Golf Club in Buffalo Grove.

The team of Larry Moran and Mrs. Jerry Johnson finished in first place, with Emmett McDougall and Barbara Adams in second.

Pairs for the tournament were matched through a random drawing of names. The pairs alternated shots with each golfer teeing off and then playing his or her part on a ball.

The last place team was awarded a unique booby prize. They were given a kite and with tongue-in-cheek, asked to go fly it.

After the tournament winners were feted and losers' feelings were soothed during dinner in the Buffalo Grove Dining room.

Pro Tennis Tourney Set For Evanston in September

The Chicago area becomes the site of its first major professional tennis tournament this fall according to an announcement made recently by Lamar Hunt, Vice President of World Championship Tennis.

Sixteen of the world's best professional players will compete for the $25,000 prize money including: Tony Roche, Poncho Gonzalez, John Newcombe, Dennis Ralston, Tom Okker, Ken Rosewall, Roy Emerson, Marty Riessen, Butch Buchholz, Fred Stolle, Pierre Barthes, Nicka Pilic, Andres Gimeno, Cliff Drysdale, Ray Moore, and Ron Holmberg. The players represent both professional groups currently touring: World Championship Tennis and National Tennis League.

The four-day competition titled, "Planters Chicago Pro Tennis Championships" will be held Sept. 8, 9, 10 and 11, 1969 at Northwestern University's McGraw Hall in Evanston.

Responsible for bringing the tournament to Chicago are: Asher Birnbaum, Publisher of Tennis Magazine, Aaron D. Cushman, Chicago public relations executive, and Standard Brands Incorporated whose Planters Peanuts product line have a long history of support for national sporting events and tennis in particular.

Cushman pointed out, "There are more men and women playing tennis in Chicago-land now than ever before. Indoor and outdoor court facilities have expanded in direct proportion to this demand and still tennis court time is at a premium. Chicago is long overdue for a tournament of these proportions."

Roy H. Fishman, Director of Publicity and Educational Services, Standard Brands Incorporated stated, "Sponsorship of the Planters Chicago Pro Tennis Championships represents an expansion of the company's concern for good nutrition and physical fitness."

Previously, Planters have held tennis clinics at the Pro Tennis Championships in Miami Beach, The Forest Hills Open and the Philadelphia International Indoor Open Tennis Championships. In addition they have produced football training films with the New York Jets and baseball training films with the New York Yankees. These have been in distribution to schools and youth groups reaching an audience of over 800,000.

Timing for the Chicago matches should be excellent, according to Cushman, since they begin the day after Forest Hills and immediately prior to the Davis Cup Challenge Round in Cleveland.

Wicklund Fires Sharp Game; Fremd

by GEORGE SAUERBERG

Mark Wicklund did his thing for the Fremd Vikings Wednesday night. His thing is pitching and he did it even in a rocky seventh inning to give Fremd a 4 to 2 win over Hersey at MacArthur junior high field.

After allowing a run on Ken Kenepp's lead-off triple and Steve Koch's sacrifice fly in the first, Wicklund settled down to pitch hitless baseball until the seventh. The Vikings went out and got two runs in the third, one in the sixth and another in the seventh, but their 4 to 1 lead began to look a little shaky when Hersey's Ken Morales lined Wicklund's 0.1 delivery into center field for a triple.

Wicklund came back to strike out Jim Quade but Al Fletcher clouted one deep to left for another triple scoring Morales. But Viking third baseman Russ Ali held Fletcher at third while Rick Kornelly grounded out to him, and Wicklund fanned Huskie losing pitcher hurler Steve Perry, his ninth strike out of the night.

"I got a fast ball up around the waist," said Wicklund, explaining Fletcher's blast. "I was worried, of course, but everything was all right after that — after I got my control back." Wicklund walked only two and hit one batter en route to his third win in as many games.

Fremd coach Gary Kraft brought Rick Peekel in from right field to warm up at the start of the seventh, but, he said, "I was confident Wicklund could finish the ball game. His legs are in shape, and he looked strong when he started. He brought the ball game to 'em with his fast ball."

"I didn't think we hit exceptionally well," continued Kraft, "but we got some key hits when we needed 'em." The Vikings scored twice in the third without a hit.

Bob Loughlin walked with one out. He stole second and went on to third when Huskie catcher Quade's throw sailed into Dave Hauswirth's glove in with a booming triple to left center. Ed Wlodarczyk followed with a walk and beat Quade's throw to steal second. Loughlin, however, edged toward the plate and second baseman Morales' throw to try to hold him at third went into somebody's yard.

Both runners came home, and with Wicklund's pitching Fremd's 2 to 1 lead looked fairly solid. The Vikings, however, padded it with a run in each of the last two innings.

Tom Burns hit an infield single up the middle with two away in the sixth, and Loughlin singled to short with one out in the seventh, stole second, and went to third on another errant throw by Quade. Wlodarczyk popped a bunt just out of Perry's reach, and Loughlin slid across the plate on the squeeze to make it 4 to 1.

Then came Hersey's rally in the bottom of the seventh. But the Vikings had Mark Wicklund down his thing. And he did it pretty well.

Wheeling Adds To Huskie Skid

by GEORGE SAUERBERG

Hersey coach Harvey Foster watched from his third base box as two of his runners — Ken Kenepp, who was on with a walk, and Steve Koch, who had just singled — arrived at first base simultaneously.

Kenepp, who thought he had heard Foster telling him to go back after heading for second, was ruled out when Wheeling right fielder Scott Day fielded Koch's hit and threw to shortstop John Dyson standing on second base.

Although it did not seem so to Foster at the time, this first-inning episode was one of the more humorous ones in the Huskies' 2 to 1 loss at Wheeling Thursday night, their fourth defeat in a row.

"WE CAN'T GET a hit when we need one," said Foster. "We're playing good baseball," he continued, saying that fielding errors were not the cause of the team's skid.

Foster does not plan to juggle his line-up in trying to break the Huskies' losing streak. "We don't have any changes," he said. "I have 13 kids and five pitchers. I set 'em in a rotation, and that's the way we play."

Hersey right hander Terry Smith went the distance for Foster against Wheeling, allowing only four hits. He was tagged with the loss, however, making his record 2-2.

THE WILDCATS jumped on Smith right away. Speedy Weisen led off the first inning by stroking a single over second base. Smith retired the next two batters, but Weisen stole second and scored when Day smacked a sinking liner into right field for a triple.

Wheeling sent the winning run across the plate in the fourth. Terry Lundquist singled to center to start the rally. He then stole second and scored on Dean Sheridan's single between short and second. This gave the Wildcats a 2 to 1 lead, which Day made hold up for the win.

Day, now 4-0 in summer league play, came on in the top of the fourth in relief of starter Bill Tyler. Tyler pitched three full innings, gave up three of Hersey's four hits and allowed the Huskies' only run in the third.

Smith led off the third with an infield hit to short and went to second when Dyson's throw to first got away from Dan Hull. Smith scored when Kenepp smashed a two-base hit to center, but Kenepp was out trying to stretch it into a triple.

That was one of the six times Huskies were gunned down on the base paths, but most of the time there was just one runner trying to get to a certain base. Those were six would-be runs that did not score, however — six runners who could not be brought around by base hits. And that, says Harvey Foster, is what losing streaks are all about.
